Many Homes Invaded By Little Red Bugs

Myriads of little red bugs are invading many new Decatur homes, and while presenting a terrific nuisance to the housewife, they will do no harm, county agent Leo N. Seltener said this morning.

The bugs, called clover mites, are sort of first cousins of the red spider mite that infests evergreens. In the spring they come in from yards and clover fields to pester the home owner.

Seltener says they are easily controlled by spraying the yard with a dust or spray containing malathion. By spraying the yard, the residual effect of mites coming a greater distance should keep the little pests from Decatur homes.

In addition, the home itself can be sprayed with an insect killer containing the same chemical, malathion.

Some homes are so badly infested that the bugs are even in the beds, causing considerable alarm.

The house must be sprayed periodically during the spring to prevent their return.

At the same time, the odds are that the new constitutional amendment also will be approved the same day, since it has the backing of the legal profession and no active opposition.

That would appear to mean that Affolder, should he be nominated, would be the judge-elect, but

More Violence From Turkey

ISTANBUL (UPI) — Violent street fighting broke out today in Ankara between police and enraged students demanding the resignation of Premier Adnan Menderes. Unofficial reports said the death toll had climbed to 14 in two days of rioting.

Rumors swept the capital that Menderes was about to resign but there was no official confirmation.

Radio Ankara announced that Menderes would broadcast a statement later today.

Anti-government demonstrations were reported in other major cities of Turkey including Istanbul where police used tear gas against the Korean-type student rioters. But the major battle was fought in Ankara.

Students also told of the materials which are sent out as a result of inquiries made to some of the advertising in these magazines. It has been estimated that six out of ten youngsters may at some time receive some of this lewd and indecent trash through the mail. Parents are urged to report any of this type of literature to the post office.

The citizens for decent literature group feels that this poisoning of youth must be stopped. They pointed out that most magazine dealers are cooperative and will not tolerate this type of literature on their racks. It was readily admitted that there were some borderline cases as to what was obscene, but there could be no question about the materials on display at last night's meeting.

Major Donald Gage and prosecuting attorney Severin Schurger were guests at the meeting.

President H. P. Schmitt, Jr., reported on the recent Gary conference.

Attack Police Guards

Three thousands students armed with chair legs and pieces of desks roared out of the university in Ankara and attacked police guarding the school under martial law imposed in Turkey's major cities Thursday.

Police fired toward the students but it was not known immediately whether they shot above or into the mob. Witnesses reported many students bleeding profusely were carried away in ambulances. Girl students were mixed up in the battle and they were seen weeping on the sidelines.

Turkish officials admitted only that one student was killed in Thursday's rioting, but unofficial estimates put the figure as high as 11. Three more students were reported killed today, bringing the total to 14.

The anti-government riots recalled the Korean student demonstrations which forced the resignation of President Syngman Rhee. The Turkish rioting was directed against government attempts to muzzle the political opposition.

Folows Public Mourning

Today's rioting erupted in Ankara when university students massed on the campus to observe one minute of silence for the students killed Thursday. When the minute was over they surged toward the street calling for Menderes to resign and shouting the name of Ismet Inonu, the national

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Television disc jockey Dick Clark swore under oath today he has never taken payola but acknowledged that he had received gifts worth $4,400 and a $7,000 payment as a "royalty."

In a command appearance, Clark also told a House investigating subcommittee that he has been "convicted, condemned and denounced" on payola charges without being given a chance to give his side of the story.

He emphatically denied in his prepared statement that he ever took payola or special payments for playing songs on the air.

In the same statement, he admitted that he accepted a ring for himself and a fur stole and necklace for his wife worth approximately $4,400. These gifts, which Clark said "embarrassed" him, were from Lou Bedell of Era and Dore Records in 1958, the TV star testified.

Presents, Not Payola

The cash payment, Clark said, came from Bernard Lowe, a song writer and publisher who owned the song "Butterfly." He insisted that this was a royalty payment which Lowe gave him even though he told Lowe it was unnecessary.

Of the gifts, Clark said he gave Bedell a $300 check as payment for the stole which he later learned was valued at $1,000.

The disc jockey insisted these were "presents" not payola.

"I did not receive them because of any agreement or understanding that I was to give Mr. Bedell's records any special treatment," Clark said.

According to Clark, Bedell charged the gifts off as a business promotion expense.

Worthman Field Lights

Another problem is the metering of Worthman field lights, used for night football and baseball, including the Little League. These were previously unmetred and were listed as line loss in the operating expenses, the customers paying the total electric bill.

Major Gage stated that he plans to meet with the Decatur school board, which administers the Worthman field program. However, the field will not start on I&M's billing until July 1, and half of the Little League season will then be over. Since the city school system expects to save nearly $1,200 in billing from I&M, it will be suggested that they use this savings to pay the added cost of Worthman field, thus settling the problem.

Storage of Trucks

The third problem deals with the storage of trucks and vehicles belonging to the city street department. These are presently stored at the diesel plant location, which will be the location of the new I&M substation.

The city plans tentatively to transfer the street department headquarters to the quonset hut; however, I&M has the right to use this building for up to one year.

Major Gage plans to meet with Hill on the question of storing city equipment until that time; it may be possible for the present facilities to be used for some time, and then transfer the vehicles to the Grant street buildings. If not, the city will make other arrangements, using the money from the sale, or from other funds which will then revert to the city.

Sale July 1

According to section 3 of the contract, the purchase will be closed at 11 a.m. Friday, July 1, at the office of the city of Decatur, or such other place as may be agreed on.

I&M promises to pay, in cash, $2,073,050 to the city at the time of exchange for all necessary papers, etc. The city will receive credit for $26,041.50 towards paying for electricity for street lights.

At the same time as the closing of the contract, the city will pay off the outstanding bonds on the diesel plant — some $600,000 worth.

Alley Lights Unaffected

A number of Decatur citizens have suggested that the transaction be moved to a public place, so that everyone may see that the payment of the money is fair, legal, and aboveboard.

Affolder came here Wednesday to discuss the matter with Secretary of State John Walsh, a fellow Democrat. But Walsh was out.

Affolder indicated he would be back if it didn't interfere with his campaigning.

Indiana-Michigan Prepares Brochure

Indiana-Michigan began preparation today of a brochure on the city of Decatur, to be presented to its many industrial users throughout the county, explaining the history, industrial potential, and possibilities of the city for new industry.

Warren Wiedenhofer, public relations director for the Fort Wayne division, and two other I&M employees, spent the morning in Decatur gathering information from the Decatur Daily Democrat, Adams county historical society, and Chamber of Commerce which will be used in preparation of the booklet.
