Social Security Quiz

Answers Many Queries (Editor's Note) Do you have any questions about Social Security? We all do, don't we? Send any question you might have to Social Security Quiz, c/o Daily Democrat. You'll find your answer in this column, which is published regularly.)

1. Q-Is a man who is blind considered disabled even though he is able to work each day? A-Only for purposes of the disability freeze. A person who meets the statutory standard for blindness is considered to be under a disability for the disability freeze. However, he cannot receive monthly benefits at age 50 unless he meets the same requirements as other disabled persons and is unable to engage in substantial gainful activity.

2. Q-I have worked as a hired hand on a farm for the last 2 years. How much must I earn to have my job covered by social security? A-Your employer is obligated under the law to report your earnings if you had cash wages of $150 or more during any calendar year, or if you worked on the farm for 20 or more days during the year for cash wages of any amount figured on a time basis rather than piece work basis.

3. Q-I will be old enough to retire in 1969. I worked under social security all of 1937. Then I stopped when I got married and returned the first of 1955. I continued to work through June of 1958. Have I earned enough calendar quarters of credit to get benefits if I never work again? A-No. If you reach retirement age in 1969, you will need from 36 to 37 calendar quarters of coverage to be insured and eligible for a social security benefit. You have only worked 4 1/2 years and could not have earned more than 18 calendar quarters of coverage. 4. Q-My first husband died in 1955. In addition to rental income, I was drawing about $45 a month in social security benefits. Then I remarried and my social security checks stopped the month I was married. My second husband died six months later and the social security office said that because I wasn't married to him for a year, I couldn't get benefits. Here I am an old woman, sick, and hardly able to live on my rentals. Can I ever get my social security again? A-Yes. The law has been changed since you visited the social security office. Now, if a widow is receiving payments on her deceased husband's account and she remarries, she can resume getting payments on her first husband's account if her second husband dies before the first anniversary of her marriage. Visit your social security office to re-apply for benefits on your first husband's record.

5. Q-My 25-year-old son has been mentally retarded since birth. Some people say that he should be getting social security benefits. My husband is 66 years old and is still earning the maximum under social security. Is it possible for our son to get benefits? A-Your son could get monthly benefits as a disabled child on your husband's social security record if your husband were receiving retirement benefits. But obviously he is earning too much to get benefits. In case of your husband's retirement or death, your child could receive benefits as a child who became disabled before reaching age 18.

6. Q-I expect to keep on working after 65. Do I need to contact the social security office when I am 65? A-Most working people and anyone who could become entitled to a social security benefit should contact the social security office within six months after becoming disabled or when a worker in the family dies. It is important to learn your rights. Don't lose benefits because you don't understand the law as it applies to you.
