West Berlin
Worried Over
Talk Failure

BERLIN (UPI) — Fallout from the Khrushchev-devastated summit conference settled on the streets of West Berlin today.

Residents of the free community 110 miles inside the Iron Curtain felt they never have been in greater jeopardy since the total land blockade which dictator Joseph Stalin clamped around them in 1948.

Throughout the city, small groups gathered to discuss the news of the summit failure and speculate when and how the Communists would renew their assault on West Berlin independence. The atmosphere was one of quiet resignation, rather than fear or panic.

The visit of the flamboyant Soviet premier to the Eastern sector on his way home from Paris was expected by many to result in a new ultimatum for the withdrawal of U.S., British and French troops. The status of these forces in West Berlin was one of the key issues the Paris meeting was supposed to have resolved.

Considered less imminent was Khrushchev's threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, thus putting Berlin's exposed communication lifelines to the West in the hands of satellite functionaries and setting the stage for another blockade.

East German leaders themselves said Tuesday night no such treaty would be signed pending further attempts to negotiate a peace including both Germans.

West Berliners had not expected the summit meeting to result in any major agreements about their status, but they had hoped it would help remove them from the shadow of a Communist coup.

"Anything can happen now," was the typical reaction of workers, businessmen, cabbies and the like who were interviewed on the street.

Robert J. Stapleton
Is Named Commander

Lt. Comdr. Robert J. Stapleton, U.S. Naval Reserve, formerly of Decatur and a brother of Clarence A. Stapleton of Homestead 11, has been recently promoted to commander.

Stapleton was graduated from Decatur high school in 1940. He and his family of three children presently reside in Clinton, Iowa, where he is managing director of the Clinton Development Company.

On Staff

He received his new rank insignia last month but his date of rank reverts to Nov. 1, 1959. He is presently on the staff of the Naval reserve surface battalion 9-6 at Davenport, Iowa.

After graduation from Decatur high school, Stapleton attended Valparaiso University and enlisted in the Navy Aug. 12, 1942. During World War II he served on small craft in the southwest Pacific area including time as commanding officer, USS YP-518 and executive officer of a fleet tug. Later in the war he became an underwater salvage diver for the Navy.

Attended Colleges

Since 1940 he has attended the University of Michigan, Columbia University, and the University of Wisconsin, in addition to Valparaiso University. He received a master of science degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1947 and worked as an industrial development representative of Commonwealth Edison Company in Chicago from 1947 until 1955, when he moved to Clinton, Iowa.

Since 1946 Stapleton has been active in Naval reserve units at Michigan City, Ind., Joliet, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa. On August 12 of this year he will complete 18 years of service in the U. S. Naval reserve.

His father was a former Decatur manager of Northern Indiana Public Service company until his death.

Heavy Damage
In East From Severe Storms

United Press International
Violent thunderstorms packing 60 mile an hour winds and golf-ball-size hailstones brought death and widespread damage to the East Tuesday.

Pennsylvania took the brunt of the storm. At Johnstown, hail stones smashed 50,000 panes of glass in a greenhouse. Homeowners brought out snow shovels to clear the 13 inches of hail on the ground.

High winds toppled trees and telephone wires in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Lightning bolts killed a 6-year-old boy in Altoona and started a $10,000 barn fire in Ebensburg. Several high flying tornadoes were sighted near Washington, D.C. and in Virginia at the height of the storm which raked the Atlantic seaboard. It was believed no tornado touched ground.

As the eastern storm front swept out to sea, new spring turbulence built up in the West.

Tornadoes and severe thunderstorms raked Texas and Oklahoma, but most of the twisters struck in open country. No damage or injuries were reported.

Southwest Oklahoma and Laredo, Tex. received more than an inch of rain. Fifty mile an hour winds and quarter-inch hailstones struck near Oklahoma City. The thunderstorms spread into the northern and central Rockies, but turned to snow at West Yellowstone, Mont., where an inch covered the ground.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said more thunderstorms were expected today along the Gulf Coast and the entire western half of the nation except Nevada and California. By contrast, warm, sunny weather was predicted for the east, except for scattered showers in the Carolinas and New England.

Three-Day Siege Of Showers For State

United Press International

A three-day siege of showers and thundershowers is expected to drip one to two inches of precipitation on Indiana this weekend, forecasters said today.

The total will be even heavier in scattered local areas.

The five-day outlook called for the showery pattern to develop late Thursday and continue through Sunday.

Temperatures during the remainder of the week are expected to average 3 to 7 degrees above normal highs of 60 to 80 and normal lows of 50 to 57. Highs in the 70s and 80s will prevail until a cooler trend develops about Sunday.

A cold front which moved across Indiana Tuesday resulted in overnight lows down to a chilly 41 at South Bend, 43 at Goshen and 49 at Fort Wayne. Indianapolis had a low of 50 and Evansville's minimum was a comparatively warm 57.

There was a wide variation in highs Tuesday as the cold front moved across the upper two-thirds of the state but missed the extreme south. The high was 59 at Lafayette and 81 at Evansville.

Fair to partly cloudy conditions were expected to develop this afternoon over most of the state, sending the mercury mounting to a range of 70 to 73. It will be fair and cool tonight, with lows ranging from 48 to 52 north to 58 to 63 south. Thursday highs will range from 71 to 84.

Voice Of America's Broadcasts Jammed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Voice of America said its Russian language news broadcasts were almost completely "blotted out" by a combination of "heavy jamming" and poor atmospheric conditions.

Officials said Soviet jammers appeared to have cracked down even harder since Monday, when only the first nine minutes of 15 minute broadcasts were jammed.

Radio Free Europe also reported that Communist jamming of its broadcasts continued without let-up. FRE said too that Communist stations were distorting the news out of Paris and other world capitals about the summit conference collapse. As a "typical" example, FRE said Radio Sofia falsely quoted Adlai Stevenson as saying: "If we want to safeguard peace, the Americans must leave Europe and Berlin."

Russia relaxed jamming at the time of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's trip here last September. The jamming was stepped up May 5 when Khrushchev announced a U.S. reconnaissance plane had been shot down in Russia.

Commissioners View
Used Gravel Loader

The county commissioners left at noon today to inspect a used gravel loader at Butler, that the county is considering buying for about $900.

The county is now negotiating the purchase of from 15,000 to 20,000 cubic yards of gravel at 80 cents a cubic yard, which weighs 2,700 pounds. This compares with a price of $1.45 for a ton, or 2,000 pounds, of crushed stone. The gravel is now being measured.

To lead the gravel, a bucket-type loading machine is needed. The machines rent for between $800 and $1,300 a month, about as much as the county hopes to pay for a used machine.

Analyzes Reasons
Of Summit Failure

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Why and how did the summit meeting fail? And where do East and West go from here? The chief of the United Press International diplomatic staff in Washington analyzes the reasons and effects in the following dispatch.)

By STEWART HENSLEY

United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — What wrecked the summit conference? The question comes today from all parts of the world. Stripped of diplomatic verbiage, the following questions and answers tell the story.

Question: When was this summit arranged, and with what objectives?

Answer: The Western big three, President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, and French President Charles de Gaulle, decided at a meeting in Paris last December to invite Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to summit talks.

All four agreed to meet on May 16 and on a tentative agenda: disarmament, the future of divided Berlin, German reunification, and the improvement of East-West relations.

Q: What led up to the Allied invitation to Khrushchev?

A: Khrushchev's ultimatum in November, 1958, in which he demanded the Allies quit West Berlin within six months. He later removed his time limit.

Q: What were the major Allied hopes for the conference?

A: They hoped to make some progress in disarmament by getting Khrushchev to agree on some specific items, such as banning nuclear warheads in outer space and putting in an inspection system to guard against surprise attack. They also thought it possible to sign a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests.

Q: What, so far as is known, did the Soviets hope to achieve at the time the conference was arranged?

A: Eisenhower and the other Western leaders believed that Khrushchev wanted to make some progress on disarmament, principally to reduce the nation's economic burden. They also thought he wanted to get a nuclear test ban.

They knew, too, that he would like to pressure them into negotiating separate treaties with East and West Berlin and pulling Western forces out of West Berlin. But the Allies had no intention of giving in on those points. Khrushchev, at the time of the summit preparations, acted as though he honestly wanted better relations with the West.

Reason For Collapse

Q: What was the major reason for the conference collapse?

A: The immediate reason was Khrushchev's refusal to meet with Eisenhower unless the President apologized for the spy plane incident, promised to punish those responsible for it, and pledged never to send another military intelligence craft over the Soviet Union.

Q: What were Khrushchev's real reasons for wrecking the conference?

A: They are believed to include various internal problems, such as the fact that important elements in the Soviet army and party leadership were increasingly discontented with his softer policy toward the West. So were the Chinese Communists, who opposed the summit from the start.

Q: What efforts did the West make to meet Khrushchev's conditions?

A: Eisenhower announced that the spy flights had been suspended and would not be resumed as long as he was president. He offered to submit a new and broader "open skies" plan for international air inspection under United Nations control. He said such a system would eliminate the need for aerial espionage.

Q: What efforts did the Soviet Union make to meet the West half-way?

A: None, at least publicly.

Effects of Failure

Q: What are the most serious effects of the summit failure?

A: The most serious immediate effect probably is that it has restored all the bitterness of the cold war, has increased tensions, and has heightened the chances of "war by miscalculation."

Q: It poses the threat of armed conflict if Russia goes through with its promise to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and cut off Allied access to West Berlin.

Q: Where, briefly, does the West go from here?

A: It plans to keep trying at Geneva to get agreement on a nuclear test ban and some sort of arms reduction. It must prepare for a resumption of the cold war and look to its defenses until Khrushchev, or his successor, is ready to talk in moderate terms.

Q: What, in the Western view, is Russia likely to do?

A: First, it will step up its propaganda. It already has resumed jamming American and British broadcasts. Khrushchev may sign a separate peace treaty with his East German Communist regime. Communist infiltration in the Middle East, Southeast Asia, and Latin America probably will increase.

Report Jerry Miller
Is Still Serious

The condition of Jerry Miller, injured in a one-car accident Monday, has not improved any since yesterday. Jerry has been having a hard time keeping food down, and doctors are now examining him for possible broken ribs.

If his condition improves at all he is expected to be transferred to Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis Thursday and then to Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C. At the present time he cannot be moved even to take X-rays.
