

Quell Revolt In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—President Arturo Frondizi crushed a bloodless "pocket revolt" by military forces in the city of San Luis in western Argentina today, just six hours before he was to leave for Europe. Not a shot was fired.

Most of the rebels fled, leaving the government in the hands of Gen. Mauricio Gomez, self-styled commander of the "army of the Andes" and one of the two highest-ranking officers in the uprising.

Gen. Fortunato Giovannoni, 66, a retired officer, had been named "provisional president" by the rebels and the "capital" of Argentina proclaimed by them as San Luis.

But the revolt scarcely got off the ground, and Giovannoni disappeared with most of the rest of the rebels, including the "ministers" of his short-lived cabinet.

Capture Radio Station
The rebels gained some successes in the first few hours by arresting Gov. Alberto Domenech of San Luis Province and some of his ministers. But they received no additional support and their most intense campaign was waged orally over the radio.

The rebels captured a radio station in San Luis shortly before midnight, and announced they were staging a coup "against the Communist and Trotskyist government."

They said they had formed a "national revolutionary movement" to free Argentina "from Communists and Peronists"—the latter a reference to followers of deposed dictator Juan D. Peron.

But desperate radio appeals to other military garrisons to join the revolution failed and telephone contacts established by Gomez with the commander of the 4th Army division in Cordoba produced nothing.

All the armed forces rallied to the defense of the Frondizi government, and the revolt was doomed to failure when it was unable to extend its influence to other areas.

Loyalists Restore Government
The revolution started at 11:09 Sunday night when the rebels seized the LV 13 station, and ended at 5:40 a.m. today when the radio stopped broadcasting rebel pronouncements.

Ten minutes later, Gov. Domenech announced over the same station that he had resumed power and that the situation was normal again.

The government had estimated the rebel strength at about 400 men. Reports reaching here indicated at least some of them were captured.

The reports said Col. Miguel Angel Montes, a loyalist officer, restored the provincial government and returned the governor to his office.

The government had reported the uprising "practically liquidated" only a few hours after it started. Frondizi went to bed at four a.m. his plans to leave for Europe this afternoon unchanged.

Secretary of War Gen. Rodolfo Larcher indicated the revolt had been bloodless. He said the army would crush it, "fighting if necessary."

The rebels seized the radio station in San Luis 50.0 miles west of Buenos Aires, and proclaimed retired Gen. Fortunato Giovannoni provisional president. They claimed support from other garrison towns and captured the governor of San Luis Province.

Limited to San Luis
The government said the revolt was limited to San Luis city. Frondizi called his top military aides to his heavily-guarded office for early-morning talks and announced afterwards he would not postpone his departure this afternoon.

Employment Hits Record Level In May

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The number of jobs increased by 1,049,000 last month to reach a record of 67,208,000 for May, the government announced today. Unemployment fell by 201,000 to 3,459,000, it said.

The Labor Department reported across-the-board improvement in the nation's job picture, except for a marked weakness in steel and machinery industries which experienced continued layoffs.

Seymour L. Wolfbein, the department's manpower expert, said the gain in employment and the decline in joblessness during May followed the seasonal spring pattern.

Wolfbein said that nearly 850,000 workers entered the labor force seeking jobs in May.

The drop in unemployment pushed the seasonally adjusted rate of joblessness down to 4.9 per cent. This was only a slight improvement from the 5.0 per cent rate in April.

Employment in the durable goods sector of manufacturing fell by 53,000. This was attributed to continued cutbacks in the steel and steel-using industries.

Long-term unemployment of 15 weeks or more fell sharply by 300,000 to about 900,000 last month. Nearly half of the jobless were seeking work for less than five weeks.

The average work week in factories rose by 24 minutes to 39.8 hours, despite a sharp reduction in working hours at steel plants. The increase reversed a three-month decline.

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers rose by 91 cents to $90.74 and overtime payments increased by 18 minutes a week to 2.4 hours a week for the average worker.

Weekend Rainfall In County's Areas

Adams county was "blessed" with more rain this weekend, with most of the townships receiving at least an inch of rain. Blue Creek township hit the high water mark with two inches of rain, according to Austin Merriman.

Gloria Koenen and Hugo Bulmahn each reported that Preble got 1.6 inches of rain, while Erwin Felling, reported Union also received 1.6 inches. Root township had exactly an inch of rain.

Kirkland collected approximately an inch of rain and Ben Mazelin related French township received 1.15 inches. Joe Wilson stated that French township received only .4 of an inch, while Ivan Huser reported that Hartford township acquired 1.3 inches. Jack Hurst of Geneva and Wabash township said they received a little over an inch of rain.

According to weatherman Louis Landrum, Decatur received .86 inch of rain over the weekend and the river has risen slightly to 3.16 feet.

Only two walls were left standing after the flames died down.

Among the injured was Thomas O'Brien, 68, who crawled out a window to a narrow ledge and waited until firemen hoisted an aerial ladder and carried him to the street. He was taken to Mercy hospital suffering from shock and smoke injuries.

During the height of the blaze, residents and guests of the Courtview Hotel located next door to the Commercial were ordered to evacuate.

Miss Phillips said hotel guests ran into the street in their night clothing after groping their way to fire escapes and stairways through smoke which curled upward through the building.

Miss Phillips said she saw several men climbing along ledges of the second and third floors calling for help. Firemen rescued them with ladders.

One Dead, 3 Missing In Gary Hotel Fire

GARY, Ind. (UPI)—One guest was killed and three were missing as the result of a three-alarm $150,000 fire which roared through the Commercial Hotel in downtown Gary early Sunday.

The body of Jim Ennis, about 65, an ironworker who lived in the hotel, was found in the ruins. Francisco Ortega, 22, Puerto Rico, who was visiting his brother at the hotel, was missing.

Two other hotel guests previously believed to have been accounted for were placed on the missing list this morning. They were James Moncelone, 52, a steelworker who failed to report to his job this morning, and Michael Sabo, whose relatives said he had not been seen since the fire.

Five persons were treated for smoke inhalation, including Thomas Hannal, 65, and his wife, Mary, 60, who operated the hotel. Fire chief John Massa said all others found listed on the hotel's register were accounted for and were safe. About 60 persons were registered.

The flames broke out in a basement laundry of the three-story brick structure about 5 a. m.

Miss Carolyn Phillips, a ticket agent for the Greyhound Bus Co. which operates a station across the street from the hotel, said a man ran into the station and told her there was a fire.

Ike Starts On Tour Of Orient

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—President Eisenhower flew out of Alaska for the Orient today on the second leg of a tour that will take him to the ancient islands of the Far East and their multitude of 20th Century problems.

The President's first Oriental port of call was Manila, metropolis of the Philippine republic, where a million or more Filipinos waited to give him a hearty welcome.

President Eisenhower arrived at the rain-dampened air strip after spending the night at Elmendorf Air Force Base. With him was Lt. Gen. Frank J. Armstrong Jr., commander of Alaskan military forces.

They stood at attention in 50-degree weather while a military band played the national anthem and the Marine Corps hymn. The President then inspected a company of air police as well as the band. He chatted with Armstrong while he reviewed the troops and smiled broadly as he boarded the plane.

Undaunted by recent riots in Japan against the U.S.-Japan security treaty, the President still was determined to go on to Tokyo, via Formosa and Okinawa, after his three days as guest of Philippine President Carlos P. Garcia.

Reports that Moscow and Peking propaganda organs were encouraging anti-Eisenhower demonstrations caused no major changes in the President's plans and for this he received accolades from the European press.

"This man has guts," said the London Daily Mirror. "We tip our hat because of his personal courage," said the West German newspaper "Neue Presse."

Some revisions in Eisenhower's Japanese schedule were under consideration by the two governments, according to Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, but the basic plan of the visit beginning in Tokyo June 19 remained unchanged. Hagerty, however, may not be able to announce a detailed itinerary for Japan until shortly before the President prepares to leave the Philippines.

Refuel at Wake Island
En route from Alaska to the Philippines today, the President's big silver and orange jet transport scheduled a refueling stop at Wake Island. The flight to Wake, the tiny dot of land in the Pacific that looped into history during World War II, is expected to take seven and one-half hours.

From Wake, the President has another long overwater flight (over six hours) to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines where he will switch to a propeller-powered plane, the Columbine (III), for a short hop into the Manila International Airport.

American and Imperial government officials in Tokyo still were discussing revisions in the President's Japanese schedule which could be made without altering the overall concept of the visit and still reduce the chances of embarrassing crowd incidents involving Eisenhower.

Asked if there was any doubt about the President's going to Tokyo, Hagerty told reporters Sunday night, "No, none that I know of."

Lady Hiker Injured When Struck By Car

BRAZIL, Ind. (UPI)—Dr. Barbara Moore, a transcontinental hiker on a foot trip from California to New York, was struck and injured by a car today as she walked along U. S. 40.

Dr. Moore was taken to Clay County hospital here in an ambulance shortly after the accident on the four-lane transcontinental highway about three miles west of Brazil and about 14 miles east of Terre Haute.

She was taken to the hospital's emergency room. The ambulance driver confirmed she had been struck by a car.

Mrs. Madge Scobble, assistant administrator of the hospital, said Dr. Moore was being examined by physicians and it appeared that she was in "satisfactory condition."

Dr. Moore was conscious and able to talk with the doctors, Mrs. Scobble said.

Mrs. Scobble said Dr. Moore suffered abrasions but none of them appeared serious. She said X-rays were taken and Dr. Moore would be detained at the hospital until the results of the examination was known.

The ambulance driver was identified as Phil Slack. Dr. Robert Webster attended her at the hospital.

Indiana State Police Trooper Harry Foy, 36, identified the driver of the car as Elizabeth M. Kline, 67, Shamokin County, Pa. Foy said she was driving slowly and the car, headed in the same direction as Dr. Moore, barely bumped the hiker, knocking her down.

Witnesses told authorities, Dr. Moore was walking in a grassy strip separating the east and west-bound lanes of the highway and apparently stepped from the strip to the edge of the pavement just as the car came along. Witnesses said the car was operating at a speed of no more than 5 or 10 miles an hour.

Father Will Visit Spy-Pilot Powers
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The father of captured spy-pilot, Francis G. Powers, obtained a U. S. passport today and said he was going to Russia to see his son in about 60 days.

Oliver Powers, 55, a Norton, Va., cobbler, was asked whether he had assurance that he will see the younger Powers who was shot down while piloting a U-2 spy plane over the Soviet Union last May 1.

"Yes, I do," Powers told reporters.

But he said only "That's my business" when asked who had extended these assurances.

The elder Powers wrote Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev asking his help. The Russian leader offered to aid him to see his son but Khrushchev refused to interfere with the trial of the U-2 pilot.

Powers left the passport office to confer with State Department officials and the Soviet affairs division. He said he would seek a visa from the Soviet embassy later today.

Then, his voice choking with emotion, the father read a statement asking reporters to stop bothering him.

He said that newsmen already have delayed his trip for at least two months.

He said after getting speedy treatment on his passport that he planned to fly to Russia to visit his son.

State Areas Soaked By Weekend Rainfall

United Press International
Indiana's first rains in a week soaked state areas during the weekend and again today. Some areas got nearly two inches of precipitation.

A heavy line of demarcation between the north and the south resulted in top temperatures today varying nearly 30 degrees from Lake Michigan to the Ohio River.

South Bend measured 1.68 inches of rain and the Cincinnati area 1.43 in the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m. today. Chicago had nearly an inch, Louisville .61, Indianapolis .34 and Evansville .24. Less than one-tenth of an inch was recorded at Fort Wayne and Lafayette.

Logansport got a severe thunderstorm late Saturday which damaged an airport hangar and disrupted electrical power.

It was warm and humid Sunday over the southern half of the state, with Evansville recording an 89, Cincinnati 86, Louisville 85 and Indianapolis 81.

But upstate, Chicago's top was a chilly 60, South Bend's 69 and Fort Wayne and Lafayette 71. Overnight lows ranged from 54 at Chicago to 69 at Evansville.

Scattered showers were expected to continue today and tonight over the state with high temperatures ranging from the upper 60s north to the low 80s south, and lows tonight from the mid 50s to the low 60s.

Highs Tuesday will range from the low 70s to the upper 70s, and Wednesday will be warmer and "near normal" temperaturewise.

After today's and tonight's rain, there should be no more the weatherman said, until about Thursday or Friday.

The five-day outlook called for temperatures averaging about four degrees below normal highs of 77 to 88 and normal lows of 57 to 69.

There will be a warmup Tuesday through Thursday, turning cooler again about Friday or Saturday, the outlook said, and precipitation will total about half an inch north and about three-fourths of an inch south.
