was followed by an installation ceremony conducted by CWF past-president, Mrs. Paul Daniels.

"The Golden Key" theme was repeated in the combined worship and installation service held in the sanctuary. The worship center held a large key surrounded by pink pennies with white tapers on either side. Miss Florence Lichtensteiger, worship chairman, placed her symbol of worship, the open Bible, upon the center, followed by religious literature symbolizing study, by Mrs. Homer Ruhl, and a roll of bandage representing service was placed on the center by Mrs. Harmon Kraft, retiring service chairman. All service projects of the fellowship for the past year were dedicated at this time.

Mrs. Daniels presented a golden key symbolic of her office to each of the following officers: Mrs. John Rosier, president; Mrs. William Kohler, vice president; Mrs. Edward Anderson, secretary; Mrs. William Bauman, treasurer; and Miss Lichtensteiger, worship chairman. Appointed officers for the year are Mrs. Edward Pacha, study chairman, and Mrs. Jesse Patch, service chairman.

Background music for the candlelight service was provided by organist, Mrs. Gerald Strickler. Special music was presented by Mrs. Rex Fausler and Mrs. Rosier during devotions and by Mrs. Norman Koons who sang, "My Task," at the close of the installation service.

During a business meeting amendments to the constitution were accepted by the fellowship. The installation of the "Condense O'Matic" reading plan was approved and a special report was given by Mrs. Ruhl, finance committee chairman.

The bride's going away dress is mint green in sheer pastel batiste, bedecked with lace, colored embroidered bands and wide tucks.

The former Miss Braun is a graduate of Decatur Catholic high school. Her husband graduated from Decatur Catholic high school also, and is presently employed by Central Soya.

The couple will live at route 4, Preble.

FOLLOWING BUFFET SUPPER

Pink and red roses and two large golden keys centered a white-covered table for a buffet served to members and guests of the Christian Women's Fellowship at the First Christian church Wednesday night. Pink tapers, encircled with roses, and small golden keys were used the length of the table, while rose and gold covered nut cups featured miniature keys.

Officers for the 1960-61 year were in charge of the supper which

Owners Of Theaters

Score 'Ben Hur' Ban

INDIANAPOLIS — The actor's strike in New York City affected a mere handful of American citizens as compared with the strike of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer against 18,000 of the nation's motion picture theaters and untold millions of potential movie-goers by withholding the exhibition of the production of "Ben-Hur," the effect of such strike bringing about a segregation of movie patrons in large "have" cities and small "have not" cities and towns. This statement, expressed by Richard Lochry, president of the Allied Theatre Owners of Indiana, was the sentiment indicated by the board of directors of that organization in a meeting held recently in Indianapolis.

In a strongly worded resolution those representatives of Indiana's movie theaters called upon the public to write Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and its president, Joseph Vogel, to end the strike and segregation by permitting the showing of this Academy award winning motion picture to Hoosier citizens as well as the millions of other Americans eager to view this tremendous production.

Terminating this action a deliberate strike against the loyal movie fans of America who have supported the industry for many years, the board pointed out that a mere two dozen favored cities are now permitted to show the picture. In the state of Indiana, only two cities are exhibiting "Ben-Hur."

Many Indiana residents who want to see the picture in their home towns and not travel many miles to distant cities, feel that it is the fault of their local theater managers that "Ben-Hur" is withheld from them. It was to dispel this erroneous belief and to point out the reason for the non-showing of the picture that the board of directors took this vigorous action.

Wyss-Loshe Vows Spoken

Vases of pink and white mums and gladioli banked the altar of the St. Joseph Catholic church, Hessen Cassel, before which Miss Shirley J. Wyss became the bride of R. Paul Loshe June 4. The Rev. Mathias Bodinger performed the double ring ceremony.

Music for the reciting of the nuptial vows was provided by Sr. Teresa, organist, and Mrs. Harold Rauner, vocalist. Musical selections were "Ave Maria" and "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother."

The former Miss Wyss is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Wyss of route 4, Fort Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Loshe are the parents of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a dress with a basque bodice featuring a scalloped lace sash and neckline and long tapered sleeves. The bouffant skirt was made with organza inserts on each side forming a wide pyramid border ending in a chapel length train. Her finger tip veil of French illusion fell from a crystal crown and she carried two white orchids and pink roses on her mother's prayerbook.

Miss Dian Wyss, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a white lace over pink taffeta styled with a scoop neckline and brief sleeves with a softly pleated skirt scalloped at the bottom and topped with a pink taffeta bow. A matching pink clip with a short veil sat atop her head and she carried a cascade arrangement of American Beauty carnations.

Miss Rose Marie Loshe, sister of the groom, Miss Susan Wyss, the bride's niece, and Miss Gertrude Herber were bridesmaids. Nancy Loshe, the groom's sister, was flower girl. Master Leslie Lynn Wyss served as ring bearer.

NOTES FROM AFTER THIRTY

FOR MEN ONLY

We put that heading there because it's the surest way to get women to read this.

Each year, around Mother's Day, we men read grand and glorious tributes to our wives, mothers, and daughters. They are all true, by the way, and well deserved.

Comes now Father's Day, and what do we hear?

Get Dad a new lawn mower for Father's Day. How about some hedge clippers for good old Dad? Here's a grill for Dad, so he can do the cooking.

For Mothers, the slogan is "A Rested Mother Is A Happy Mother." For Father's Day it must read, "An Exhausted Dad Is A Happy Dad."

Mom gets gifts to help her relax, and Dad gets gifts to put him to work, after he spends eight to twelve hours a day working.

Also, we read about all the things Mothers must be: cook, nurse, accountant, etc.

All Dad has to be is a breadwinner, pony for the kids, baseball player, football player, basketball player, clothes model, furniture mover, plumber, carpenter, yard man, interior decorator (after Mom has decided eight different times that she wants the walls eight different colors), child psychologist, female psychologist, and adept at making decisions that are the best for the family in a way that Mom thinks they were her decisions, but that he made them himself with her influence.

All in all, it comes out pretty even. Most men are real happy to have women for mothers and wives. Likewise, despite their growlings at times, the ladies are fairly well content with the men. The ones that have it made are the kids. Every day is children's day—the only thing wrong is that we don't realize it until we're no longer kids.

PLANELOAD OF JACKASSES

Bill Schnepp and Gail Grabill were talking the other day, laughing about their respective experiences in the Air Force during the Second World War. Bill was stationed in northern Africa, and then Italy, and Gail spent his time in Inja's sunny clime, as Mr. Kipling put it. The pair got to discussing the weird cargo some of the flights had, and Bill started chuckling. He said while he was flying cargo, they expected to carry almost anything, but one day, he almost applied for the infantry. His plane was scheduled to carry a load of donkeys. Not only scheduled, but did fly them to the front. Bill said he didn't know what they were for, and didn't bother to find out. He was just mighty glad to get them out of the plane. From some of the comments after former G. I.'s have made, the mules might have been for supper.

HOW STRANGE

God bless the American tourist abroad—there's no one else like them. We've heard several times from Mom, and she's having a wonderful time on her tour of Europe. One of her latest letters told of some of the experiences in Germany. Everything is simply perfect. One evening the group went to a German restaurant for dinner, and afterwards, they had a program. The costumes were beautiful, the story was clever, and it was all in German. Anyway, she was fortunate in seeing the Passion play at Oberammergau, reported to be one of the great experiences in religious performances.

SOUNDS FISHY

Two Decatur brothers, Arnold and Lloyd Spiegel, were fishing up at Clear Lake about three weeks ago—Lloyd didn't want to go out in the boat because he didn't have a fishing license, so he sat on the shore and fished from the shadow of the car. Doc Spiegel hadn't been fishing too long when the game warden came up on his boat, and asked him for his license. Unfortunately Doc had left it in the automobile, and when the game warden returned to the car, he found Lloyd sitting there fishing. It cost Lloyd $31 to find out that it was just as illegal to fish from the bank as from the boat without a license. Doc, by the way, really had a license in the car.

WHAT WILL PEOPLE THINK?

How many people do you know whose lives are governed by this statement? How many foolish, useless and even barbaric practices do we perform each day because we're worried about what people will think of us? How many ways of rationalizing have we developed to convince ourselves that we are doing something because we want to, or for the good of someone else, when really we are merely worried about what others will think? And how many things that we would really enjoy, do we decide not to do, because others might frown on them, even though they aren't bad things—just a little different?

Vandalism Reported Here Friday Night

Vandals were on the prowl at the dance held at the Community Center Friday night. A car owned by Jerry McIntosh had the air left out of all four tires and the window on the driver's side was shattered. At first the tires were thought to be slashed, but further investigation showed that only the air was left out.

Dick Linn, manager of the Center, made the announcement last night that the next six dances scheduled to be held at the Center will be cancelled because of the vandalism. Conduct at the Center will determine whether or not this order will stay in effect. Further action may also be taken, after the situation is discussed.

Over 2,600 Daily Democrats are sold and delivered in Decatur each day.
