

Science Institute Honors Decatur Men

Robert W. Cook and Lee F. McBride, who are employed by the C. W. Fueling Co., Inc., of 125 Grant street in Decatur, have been awarded a Walton Clark medal by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, Pa. The medal was awarded to the two Decatur men on a recommendation of the science and arts committee of the institute. After the committee recommended the two, the board members unanimously voted to award the medal to the men. The medal was awarded for "contribution to public welfare and safety by the development of a successful leak-sealing system for gas mains."

McBride and Cook developed an electronic mechanism for sealing the joint of a gas main. For this invention they were chosen for this award and the two will be given a dinner along with winners of other medals given by the institute, Tuesday, October 18. The dinner will precede the medal day exercises which will be held Wednesday. McBride and Cook were picked for this honor after the committee scoured the world for a recipient.

Their invention, which is called the Fueling method, was first put to work in 1953 and since that time it has been used in the largest cities in the nation. At the June 15 meeting of the institute McBride and Cook received the recognition of which they are well deserving.

At the time the Franklin Institute was founded, one of its primary objectives was the recognition and encouragement of scientific inventions. To carry out this objective, the "Committee on Inventions" was formed in 1824, and under its auspices, the first trade exhibition in the history of the country was held in 1824, in the confident belief that the new United States "may compete with foreigners in the manufacture of all useful articles." In 1834 the committee became the present "Committee on science and arts."

Science knows no national boundaries. Benjamin Franklin believed that all truly scientific exchanges should be free and open. The Franklin Institute perpetuates this belief and hopes for a still closer exchange of useful knowledge between nations which may help to bring better understanding and peace among nations.

Base New TV Show On Roaring 20's

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Success of "The Untouchables" has inspired another television show based on the roaring 20's.

In fact, that's the title—"The Roaring 20's."

Why the 20's roared more than any other decade has not been determined. But unlike "The Untouchables," which roars with gunfire, the new one roars with sex.

Providing the sex appeal is Dorothy Provine, who formerly starred in the now defunct "The Alaskans" series.

"My role is every actress' dream come true," she said between takes at Warner Brothers studios. "I sing, dance and wear the most fabulous wardrobe you've ever seen."

"All my dresses are beaded, spangled and tasseled. One gown cost $1,800 for a single dance sequence."

Co-starring with Dorothy are Donald May and Rex Reason who play a pair of daring newspaper reporters.

Dorothy fired up a cigarette in a foot-long, bejeweled holder, explaining it was part of her costume.

To get a feeling of the manners and morals of the 20's, the picture-faced actress studied five or six movies a week—all of them based on the era.

"Any way you look at it, 'The Roaring 20's' is a big improvement over wearing boots and a parka in the old series," she concluded.

Propose Surtax On Gross Income Tax

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—The Indiana Legislative Advisory Commission accepted for inclusion in its annual report to the 1961 Legislature a proposal that a gross income tax surtax be levied to raise $4 million dollars a year for state aid to schools.

The commission accepted the recommendation of the Indiana School Boards Association without actually voting on whether to approve it.

Jesse E. Sheets, legislative chairman of the association, outlined the proposal, which calls for a one-fourth of one per cent surtax, the income to be earmarked exclusively for schools.

Commission members also asked Rep. William G. Bray of Indiana's 7th District to determine if 1,000 acres of Camp Atterbury may be purchased by the state as a site for a penal center advocated by the Penal Institutions Study Committee.

Commission members accepted a proposed measure changing the beginner driving permit law so that graduates of school driver education courses would not be discriminated against.

But a plan to set a 40-mile speed limit on unimproved roads was sent back to the Traffic Safety Study Commission on grounds that it lacked a method of posting the speeds and therefore would be valueless.

Sen. Johnson Might Accept Second Place

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (Texas) left no doubt today that he is ready to take his record and flight it out with all comers for the Democratic presidential nomination in Los Angeles next week.

If the Johnson forces were impressed by the apparent lead of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), there was no sign of it as their long-planned campaign to a red into the open with Johnson's formal announcement Tuesday of his candidacy.

Johnson's announcement, however, left political circles buzzing on one point—his refusal to close the door on accepting the vice presidential nomination.

Those closest to the 51-year-old Johnson have long felt that it would have to be the top spot or nothing for him. He was reported to regard his present job as Senate majority leader as more important than the vice presidency.

Under questioning at his news conference, Johnson twice refused to flatly exclude himself as a vice presidential possibility, although he voiced no open interest in it.

While Johnson's move left his well-organized lieutenants a freer hand with which to operate at Los Angeles and elsewhere, it left the Kennedy forces unruffled, openly at least.

Hope For Deadlock
A spokesman for Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), the third named candidate, said Johnson's statement made it more important for Symington's delegates to hold fast until a deadlock develops.

A convention deadlock is Symington's only apparent hope. His forces contend that the final choice will lie between the Missouri senator and Adlai E. Stevenson, the 1952 and 1956 nominee.

In his announcement, Johnson made it clear that he would base his fight against the younger Kennedy on the need for "seasoned" leadership in the world. And on the argument that the Democrats need a proven leader who can unite the party and "get things done."

South African Paper Attacks Government
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—A major South African newspaper openly attacked the government today for keeping 1,600 persons in jail for three months without charges or court appearances.

The Cape Times noted that it has been exactly 100 days since the white government proclaimed a state of emergency.

The government took the action when racial violence broke out after police at Sharpeville, near Johannesburg, shot and killed 67 demonstrating natives and wounded nearly 200 others.

The government jailed hundreds of persons considered opposed to its white supremacy policies and although it has begun lifting the state of emergency gradually none of the detained persons has been released.

"We shall probably never know why 1,600 citizens have been incarcerated for more than three months without charges being preferred and without access to a lawyer," the Cape Times said.

The newspaper even criticized the treatment of David Pratt, a wealthy white farmer arrested in connection with the attempted assassination of Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd. For a while South African police refused to let newspapers print his name.

"Why has he been locked up for three months and prevented from seeing a lawyer," the newspaper asked editorially.

Disclose Mutiny By Soldiers In Congo

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—African soldiers were reported today to have mutinied in three camps in the Republic of the Congo which gained its independence from Belgium June 30.

Reports from Leopoldville, carried by the official Belga news agency, said the rebellious soldiers refused to obey their European officers or Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba.

The mutinies were reported to have broken out at Camps Leopold, Thysville and Kalina.

The reports said about 100 unarmed soldiers left Camp Leopold this morning carrying belts with heavy buckles and refused to listen to an appeal for order made personally by Lumumba.

The troops managed to break through police lines thrown up between the camp and Leopoldville. Dispatches said they grouped before the premier's house and parliament and that others joined 2,000 public transport strikers demonstrating in front of transport headquarters.

The Congo has been torn with violence since independence day. At least 16 persons have been killed in clashes with government forces trying to put down bitter inter-tribal battling in several sections of the country.

The tribal feuds have been simmering for years but they broke out into the open with the granting of independence. Some tribal areas have even threatened to secede.

Unconfirmed reports from Thysville, about 160 miles from Leopoldville, said the mutineers were controlling all roads in the area, stopping cars and arresting occupants.

From Kalina, also in Leopoldville Province, reports merely said the troops were refusing to obey their European officers.
