Two Accidents In Decatur Wednesday

Two accidents occurred in Decatur Wednesday afternoon, one involving a boy on a bicycle.

A car driven by Richard Lewis Elzey, 24, route 3, Decatur, was parked in the alley on Stevenson street, at 4:16 p.m. Wednesday, when Jay Foreman, 7, son of Richard Foreman, made a right turn into the alley. Jay did not see the car sitting there and rode into it.

The Foreman boy was taken to a doctor, with a bruised right hand and is to be kept under observation at home for 24 hours. No damage was done to either the car or the bicycle.

At 1:58 p.m. Wednesday, a car driven by Mary Ann Allbaugh, 35, 314 Madison street, was traveling north on Third street. When she approached the stop sign, she applied the brakes, but slid on the wet pavement, through the stop sign and into the path of another car. The other car was driven by Lloyd Raymond Spiegel, 40, 318 N. Ninth street.

No one was injured, but there was an estimated $400 damage done to the Spiegel car and $450 damage to the car driven by Mary Allbaugh.

Seymour Girl Drowns In Municipal Pool

SEYMOUR, Ind. (UPI)—Janice Cooper, 12, Seymour drowned in the municipal swimming pool here Wednesday while swimming with her two younger brothers, David, 10, and Garnett, 8. It was the first drowning accident in the pool since it was built in 1937.

Bitter Contest In Tennessee Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Tennessee Democrats vote today in a bitterly contested primary considered a dress rehearsal for the role the South will play in the November presidential election.

The issues are simple and clear-cut: The civil rights liberalism of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) versus the states' rights, segregation conservatism of Kefauver's politically powerful challenger, Circuit Judge Andrew (Tip) Taylor.

Throughout the campaign Taylor has criticized Kefauver's civil rights voting record in 22 years in Congress. Kefauver, in defending it, said last week, "my votes were exactly the same as Sen. Lyndon Johnson's. But Lyndon is a hero, and I'm smeared all over Tennessee."

Political Oddball
The Deep South, frankly and openly, has considered Kefauver a sort of political oddball since he was first elected to Congress in 1938. He said in his first Senate race 10 years later his purpose had little to do with ordinary hard-core politics. As he expressed it: "The deepest desire in my heart is to see world peace realized. 'I want to be one of those who makes it come true.'"

To achieve that he had to buck the all-powerful political machine of the late E. H. Crump of Memphis. For the first time in 20 years Crump's candidates lost, and one of the main reasons was a sarcastic comment that backfired.

Dons Coonskin Cap
The Crump forces lampooned Kefauver as a "pet coon" of the administration. Kefauver, whose life and career seems that of a Democratic Abe Lincoln, promptly donned a coonskin cap and replied: "This coon may have a ring around its tail, but it will never have a ring through its nose."

The 6-foot-3 Kefauver has been fighting the odds and winning ever since.

His publicized Senate investigation of organized crime in 1950 and 1951 gave him a head start toward the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination. He went to the convention that year with more pledged delegates than any other candidate, but party leaders did not want him.

He tried again in 1956, but the opposition of the South and former President Truman blocked his way. He settled for the vice presidential nomination.

Tubeless Auto Tires
When a small leak in a tubeless auto tire will not show a bubble when submerged in water, look the tire over carefully and put a small dab of mastic or liquid glue on every indentation that could possibly be a leak. The mastic or liquid glue will reveal a small leak where water will fail.

Rust-Free
Keep the inside surfaces of breadboxes and other tin containers from rusting by coating them with some melted paraffin.

Prevent Lumps
Brown sugar will not become lumpy if it is stored in your refrigerator.

A Good Scourer
Pumice is one of the best household scouring and polishing agents. Pumice is a spongy, porous stone tossed out by volcanoes and it is usually a form of obsidian, should you be curious, containing from 60 to 75 per cent silica. It can be obtained as a stone, or in powdered form in varying degrees of fineness, at paint and hardware stores. Many commercial scouring powders contain pumice.

Whiter Paint
For a cold-white color in an exterior paint composed of white lead and linseed oil, add a little raw sienna. This tends to neutralize the yellow in linseed oil, and the paint will bleach white.

Mildewed Clothing
Mildew in clothing will respond to an overnight soaking in buttermilk. The next day, launder as usual.

Nixon Carries Campaign Into Hawaii Islands

HONOLULU (UPI)—Vice President Richard Nixon beamed his presidential campaigning today into the remotest reaches of this far-flung island state as he backed up his pledge to campaign anywhere and everywhere as the GOP presidential nominee.

Nixon believes that even the smallest state may decide what he sees as a hairline November contest and he is pitching hard for Hawaii's three electoral votes.

Already, Nixon is the first presidential nominee to campaign Hawaii in all of its proud history. He set out today on a schedule that would make him the first nationally elected official to visit more than two of Hawaii's five major islands.

Will Island Hop
Although some 70 per cent of the people and votes are on the island of Oahu, Nixon scheduled island hopping visits and hand-shaking tours of such lesser known islands as Kauai and Maui as well as the "big island" of Hawaii, which was the area here hardest hit by tidal waves following Chile's earthquake. His schedule today spanned some 300 miles.

The vice president arrived Wednesday to the thunderous roars of the islanders. He and his wife had rested only briefly after a tough 21-hour schedule Tuesday, but appeared fresh as they stepped from their DC-7 airliner and were greeted by some 3,000 well-wishers at the airport.

At Nixon's elbow was Sen. Hiram L. Fong (R-Hawaii) and Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton, both of whom accompanied him from Washington.

Fifth Island Trip
It was Nixon's first visit to the 50th state since it won admission to the nation, but it was his fifth trip to the islands.

Nixon told reporters that "the President of the United States must always put the security of America first and obtain intelligence information that will protect us against surprise attack" such as Japan's onslaught against Hawaii which launched America into World War II.

On the evening, the vice president appeared on an hour-long statewide television show where he charged that his Democratic opponent for the presidency has paid the price of allowing the nation's union leaders to dictate his labor platform in order to get their support.

He answered questions put to him by Hawaii's newspaper editors. Nixon said it was his contention that "the President of the United States cannot owe his election to any one group or be under the influence of any one segment of the people of the United States."

The vice president was scheduled to wind up his Hawaiian campaigning with a major speech tonight in Honolulu and will leave Friday morning aboard a chartered flight for Seattle, Wash.

Special Offerings To Aid Robt. Brown

The Monroe Methodist church has announced that a special offering will be received for Robert Brown on the Sundays of August 21 and 28.

Brown was nearly electrocuted in an accident while doing construction work several weeks ago. Since that time he has been a patient in the Parkview hospital in Fort Wayne. He has had surgery several times. Both of his hands and one foot and a large part of the other foot have been removed. He has also had an extensive amount of skin grafting.

In spite of the seriousness of his injury his improvement has been remarkable. He is now able to be up in a wheel chair a small amount of time each day.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown, who farm northeast of Berne. The Browns attend the Monroe Methodist church.

The Monroe Methodist congregation is anxious to assist the family in their heavy financial responsibilities. A special offering will be received Aug. 21 and Aug. 28. This project in the Monroe church is being sponsored by the commission on social concerns. Members of this commission include: Mrs. Russel Mitchell, Mrs. John Gage, Arthur Mitchell, Mrs. George Snyder, Mrs. Louis Mattox, Edward Boggs, Glen Workinger, Mrs. Daisy Bahner, Mrs. Orval Lenhart, Homer Whitelegg, Mrs. Otto Longenberger, Mrs. Sheldon Wagley, Mrs. Gerald Tullis, Mrs. Marvin Taylor, Martin Watson, Mrs. Clifford Essex, Mrs. Loren Burkhead, Jr., Mrs. Harvey Rupert, Philip Barger, and Mrs. James Lobsiger.

The Monroe congregation would invite any in the community who would desire to, to share in this giving. Any money may be handed to any of the above named people.

Woodworking Premium Winners Are Listed

Woodworking premium winners were announced today at the Adams county 4-H fair at Monroe. Woodworking is one of the new 4-H projects this year and was judged by Maurice Marshall, of Steuben county.

First placing exhibit was made by Richard Welland of the Union Workers 4-H club. Second place honors went to Walter Reiter, also of the Union Workers club. Gary Jeffrey of Preble Jolly Juniors exhibited the third place exhibit. Jack Miller of the Root Roving Rangers placed fourth and Richard Boone, Jr. of the Kirkland Future Farmers placed fifth. Twenty-seven 4-H boys had exhibits in the project.

Shortage Of Food In East Germany

BERLIN (UPI)—A cartoon in the East German newspaper Berliner Zeitung showed zoo visitors crowded around a glass cage in which a hen had just laid an egg. Elephants, giraffes and hippopotamuses in nearby cages went unnoticed.

The joke was that hens and eggs are about as rare in Communist East Germany as are animals usually found in a zoo.

But it's no laughing matter to East German housewives who have to stand in line for hours to get the bare necessities of life.

While there appears to be no actual hunger, the Soviet zone of Germany has been hit by its worst food shortage since the workers anti-Communist revolt of 1953.

Stories in the Communist press and statements by Communist officials disclose that everything is scarce — meat, bread, potatoes, flour, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

There never has been a great variety of meat in East Germany. Housewives always have lined up for fruit. But in the past East Germans could at least fill up on bread and potatoes.

Now even those dietary mainstays must be sought after, and meat and fruits are scarcer than ever.

To the consternation of the Communists the shortages have made a mockery of their boast that they will begin to out-produce prosperous West Germany by the end of next year.

There appears to be two main troubles—a virtual strike by many farmers and a breakdown in the distribution system. The Communists admit the second cause. They do not admit the first.

But a careful reading of the East German press discloses that farmers who were forced to give up their land to collectives are dragging their heels.

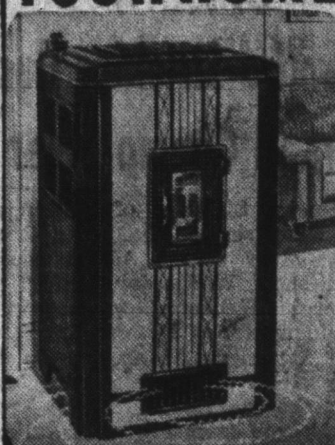

For example, the Communist agricultural newspaper "Der Frei Bauer" said six collective farms near Cottbus each delivered less than a dozen eggs in one month to the state.

One county alone in the district of Schwerin was said to have withheld from delivery to the state 430 tons of pork, 275 tons of beef, 19 tons of chickens, 3,624 tons of milk and 104,000 eggs.

West German officials say this is the price the Communists are paying for abolishing private farming last April.
