Adams county went "way over" in its bloodmobile program Monday, giving 195 pints, the highest in the history of the program here.

Mrs. Ferris Bower, chairman of the Red Cross blood committee, said this morning.

The quota was 125, but the blood bank is so short of blood that it is being rationed to hospitals in the area, and the 70 pint overage will be put to good use, she added.

The firemen who put out the flags, and the four city street department employees who helped set up and tear down the mobile unit operation, partly on their free time, were all thanked for making the visit such a success.

Butler Funeral To Be Held Wednesday

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for William Butler, 64, who was found dead Monday morning in his house trailer at 908 Meibers street, apparently due to a heart attack suffered late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Zwick funeral home, with the Rev. William C. Feller officiating. Burial will be in the Decatur cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. today until time of the services.

A lifelong resident of this city, he was born in Decatur Dec. 31, 1897, a son of Samuel and Hester Catherine Stalter-Butler.

He had been employed in recent years at the Decatur Industries.

Only survivors are two sisters, Mrs. Marie Tindall of Van Wert, O., and Mrs. J. R. (Ireta) Peterson of Terre Haute.

To Receive Fallout Shelter Supplies

About 6,250 cubic feet of fallout shelter supplies will be sent in the near future to Adams county, to be stored until the material can be transferred to shelters, Charles L. Arnold, Adams county civil defense director, said today.

The material will fill a room 25 by 25 by 10 feet, or about one-quarter of a cubic foot per man, woman, and child in the county, Arnold said.

Keep At Jail
The Adams county jail and garage have been designated as location for the material and Arnold will act as custodian of the goods.

The distribution is being made under the federal fallout shelter survey program, Arnold added.

A large number of the booklets, "Fallout protection, what to know and do about nuclear attack" have been received by the local post office, and are now available through that source, it was learned today.

Many inexpensive shelters are diagrammed in the booklet, including a basement shelter for $125, and a back yard shelter for about $150.

Check List
In addition, every article needed in the shelter is pictured, so that a simple check off method can be made to provide what is needed.

Arnold stated that he expects the government will make a survey soon of public buildings to see which ones are suitable for conversion to fallout shelters with little trouble.

The 46-page booklet gives a number of fine ideas not available in other publications, and also lists eight more sources of information on shelters.

Arnold advised everyone seriously interested in surviving by planning ahead to get one of the booklets, and make it a part of fallout shelter equipment.

on Jan. 18, and his annual economic message will come Jan. 22. The State of the Union message will be delivered Thursday.

Today's conference marked the resumption of Kennedy's Tuesday breakfast meeting with the Democratic leaders, a regular feature when Congress is in session.

But one missing face today was that of the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, who died of cancer last year. In his place today was McCormack, who was to be elected formally as speaker later today.

The election, a mere formality, will be the first change in Democratic leadership in the House in 21 years. Replacing McCormack as the party's floor leader in Congress is Rep. Carl Albert, from Oklahoma, who sat in on today's White House session.

After his session with the congressional leaders, Kennedy held his first meeting with his Cabinet since Nov. 9.

School Board Approves Fund For Additions

The Decatur school board, meeting to hear objections or questions on the special appropriation of $265,000 from the cumulative building fund to pay for the proposed additions to the high school and Northwest elementary school buildings, unanimously approved the appropriation as no dissenters appeared before the board. Contracts are scheduled to be let January 23.

Superintendent Gail Grabbill announced that the firm of Bradley and Bradley of Fort Wayne, architects for the new additions, reported that seven general contractors have picked up copies of the plans. The contractors include three from Fort Wayne, two from Decatur, and one each from Bluffton and Berne.

Grabbill made reports on the general conditions of the various schools following some routine and emergency repairs, and also reported on the progress of the midwest airborne television program. The program, financed for its first two years by grants from the Ford foundation and industry, will be turned over to the schools for continuing maintenance.

The board briefly discussed broadening the local educational opportunities by offering some programs in on-the-job training for high school drop-outs and evening classes for adult education. The plans will be discussed and considered at later meetings when more available material has been collected. Surveys will also have to be made in this area to ascertain exactly what types of programs will be most beneficial to the specific needs of this locality.

What Do We Have?
"But what does Indiana have to offer?" Heller continued. "For one thing, Indiana is the crossroads of America, and its location is of primary value. If people don't necessarily start out with the idea of vacationing in Indiana, at least they will probably pass through the state on their way to their vacation area."

"But our location will be of no value unless we advertise what we have: our history, our factories, our lakes, and our man-made or commercial attractions," he stated.

Annual Reports Are Given County Board

Lawrence Noll's report for the month of December of the county highway department, and Frank Kitson's report for the county home for the same month, were submitted to the Adams county commissioners at their regular meeting Monday in the courthouse.

Both reports were approved by the commissioners. Noll's report showed some 5,620 tons of stone hauled on the roads; 28,769 miles traveled by the trucks; 386 miles grades; and equipment in use 2,126 hours, among other items.

Kitson's report revealed that there were 17 male and nine female patients at the county farm, the same number as at the first of the month.

A petition to blacktop county road 22 1/2, from its intersection with U.S. 27 north of Geneva, extending west approximately three miles, to its intersection with county road 37 was submitted to the commissioners. The petition was signed by 29 residents or landowners adjacent to the road, which is in both Wabash and Hartford townships.

Ditch Petition
A petition for the cleaning and repairing of the James K. Martz ditch in Monroe, St. Mary's and Blue Creek townships, was also submitted. The petition was signed by all persons. No action was taken by the commissioners on either petition.

A group of persons who filed a petition April 10, 1961, against the meeting to remind the commissioners of their petition. They had requested blacktopping county road 12, between U. S. 27 and county road 34.

A 1961 report of the $2,800 appropriation for the 4-H club work was submitted and approved, as was an inventory of the highway department, filed by Lawrence Noll, department head.

The commissioners spent the afternoon, inspecting ditches, bridges, and roads throughout the county.

Dick Heller Speaks To Decatur Lions

Decatur isn't getting its share of Indiana's annual quarter billion dollars in tourist business, but it can, if local people will think in terms of making more money, Dick D. Heller Jr., publisher of the Decatur Daily Democrat, told the Decatur Lions club Monday night.

Last year Michigan businessmen made $650,000,000, nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars, from tourists. Equally important, tourists then paid $40 million in taxes. This tax money would have come from the pockets of local people, had Michigan not had an active tourist program.

What Do We Have?
"But what does Indiana have to offer?" Heller continued. "For one thing, Indiana is the crossroads of America, and its location is of primary value. If people don't necessarily start out with the idea of vacationing in Indiana, at least they will probably pass through the state on their way to their vacation area."

"But our location will be of no value unless we advertise what we have: our history, our factories, our lakes, and our man-made or commercial attractions," he stated.

Meanwhile, San Francisco had a high of 79 degrees Monday, breaking an 85-year-old record for the date and the 63-year-old record for the month of January.

The death toll since the latest weather onslaught began last weekend reached 60. Wisconsin had 17 deaths, Illinois 16 Michigan 9, Iowa 6, Massachusetts and New Hampshire 3 each, Colorado 2, and Missouri, Kansas, Montana and North Carolina 1 each.

Below freezing temperatures stretched as far southward as the Gulf states. Snow fell as far east as New York.

The U.S. Weather Bureau warned that record low temperatures were likely for the next two or three days in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, northern New Mexico, northern Texas and south-

Citizens Telephone Seeks Added Funds

The Citizens Telephone company asked the Indiana public service commission Monday for authority to borrow $400,000 from Lincoln Life to finish its building program and to make more lines available to neighboring exchanges, such as Berne, it was learned today.

Two hearings before the commission involved the local company. The first hearing was on a four-point request on behalf of the Nappanee Telephone company, the stock of which is wholly owned by Citizens. The points were:

1. Authority was requested to convert to automatic dial.
2. Authority was requested to provide extended area service to Wakarusa and New Paris from Nappanee.

3. The Nappanee company asked permission to borrow $300,000 from Lincoln Life to make the needed improvements in physical plant, etc.

Sell Stock To Citizens
4. Because the company can only borrow up to a certain percent of its capitalized value, Nappanee asked permission to sell an additional 255 shares of stock to Citizens Telephone company, for the book value of $50,076.90.

This would get the company capitalized at a high enough figure to borrow the amount of money requested in item 3.

Citizens Hearing
The second hearing, involving Citizens Telephone Co., of Decatur, involved two main points:

1. Authority was requested to allow Citizens to buy the additional 255 shares of Nappanee at book value.

2. Authority was requested to borrow $400,000 from Lincoln Life. The Citizens Telephone company has to show, in its application, how it intends to spend the money, and how it plans to repay the principal and interest. The two main uses to be made of the money are finishing the present building program of the company, and to make more lines available to other areas, so that the busy signal will not occur so frequently.

Charles Ehinger, president of the company, and Robert S. Anderson, company attorney, attended the hearings, and represented the interests of Citizens Telephone Co.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry agreed today to release the Belgian Sabena airliner that was forced down in Soviet Armenia Monday with 27 persons aboard.

Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily Kuznetsov told Belgian Ambassador Hippolyte Coels that the plane probably would be released Wednesday.

Kuznetsov said the French-built twin-jet Caravelle and its 19 passengers and eight crew members were in good condition.

(At Tehran, the point from which the plane departed on its flight, Sabena Airlines identified three of the passengers as Americans. The airline said they were Charles and Maria Weimer of New York and a Fred Holden, whose address was not immediately available. Sabena said Weimer is an employee in Tehran of the Morrison Knudsen engineering firm of New York, while Holden was in transit from the far east to Istanbul.)

He added that the plane and its occupants were now at Broznyi, not far from the Caspian Sea, about 124 miles northeast of Tbilisi capital of the Georgian Republic.

When Soviet jets intercepted the airliner near the tense Soviet-Turkish border, they were reported to have forced it to land at a military airport near Yerevan, capital of the Armenian Republic.

Belgian officials immediately asked the Soviet government to release the plane, which apparently had been operating with a defective radio compass and wandered across the Soviet frontier.

The exact point of interception was unknown. But the plane was on a flight from Tehran, Iran, to Brussels, with scheduled stops at Istanbul, Athens and Frankfurt. The Tehran-Istanbul leg is near the point where the Soviet-Turkish-Iranian frontiers converge in rugged country, and a pilot can wander off course with little trouble.

An 84-year-old Batesville area man died today from injuries received in a traffic accident last week, raising Indiana's traffic fatality toll for 1962 to at least 12.

Trainman Dies In Iowa Crash

AURELIA, Iowa (UPI) — One trainman was killed and another was trapped in the wreckage of a smashed diesel engine today when an Illinois Central passenger train roared from its tracks in snow-swept Iowa farm country.

Expressman John Nelson was cut out of the twisted steel of the express car, but died of his injuries.

The engineer, Darrell E. Johnson, Sioux City, Iowa, was trapped in his cab when the lead diesel of the eight-unit train careened off the tracks and smashed onto its side. Blow torches were needed to cut Johnson from the wreckage.

He was hospitalized in Storm Lake, in critical condition suffering from broken ribs and internal injuries.

The Iowa highway patrol said at least six passengers on the Chicago-to-Sioux City "Hawkeye" were injured. Other estimates of the injured ran as high as 10.

The train was a half hour late, cruising at 40 miles per hour, when it lurched from the tracks without warning two miles east of this northwest Iowa village and 50 miles northeast of Sioux City.

The temperature was 15 degrees below zero and the flat Iowa farm country was raked by blowing snow.

The train had left Chicago at 8 p.m. Monday and was due to arrive in Sioux City at 9:30 a.m. The derailment occurred at 8:30.

Mrs. Carrie Haubold Dies This Morning

Mrs. Carrie T. Haubold, of 228 South Third street, one of Decatur's most prominent ladies in music, church and civic circles, died at 6 o'clock this morning at the Adams county memorial hospital. She had been ill for the past month, and hospitalized for about two weeks. She was 75.

Born in Berne March 25, 1886, she was a daughter of Dr. Philip B. and Estelle Hart-Thomas. Her father was a prominent Decatur physician for many years. She was married Oct. 28, 1908, to Otto H. Haubold, who preceded her in death in 1915.

Mrs. Haubold was a member of the First Presbyterian church, the Music department of the Decatur Woman's club, the Research club, and the Sigma Alpha Iota, national honorary music sorority. One of the city's most accomplished musicians, she had served as organist at the First Presbyterian church for 29 years, and previously was organist at the First Methodist church. She had attended the Northwestern University school of music.
