

To Face Challenge Of Common Market

LEBANON, Ind. (UPI) — The challenge of the European Common Market must be met by the United States, Governor Welsh told guests at a Jaycee dinner here Tuesday.

The governor said that President Kennedy will go before Congress soon to ask for the necessary legislation to effectively meet the challenge.

"What the Congress does in granting or withholding this essential authority will determine to a significant degree the future of that part of Indiana's production that eventually reaches foreign markets," he said.

Welsh said that Indiana had gained a reputation as a center of isolationism in past years but that World War II and the Korean conflict shattered this philosophy.

He said that now that Hoosiers have met the present challenges of foreign trade, it becomes necessary to meet the new challenge of a common market.

The governor said Hoosiers should inform themselves on this issue and should be heard from before the President goes before Congress to ask for the authority to trade with foreign countries.

Dr. Ralph E. Allison of Decatur and Dr. Max A. Lehman, Berne, are planning to attend the 78th annual convention of the Indiana veterinary medical association at Indianapolis January 14-17.

Veterinarians from throughout the state will convene in Indianapolis, at the Severin Hotel where the convention is slated to be held. Dr. T. W. Freas, Veederburg, association president, will preside at the various convention business sessions, and Dr. George R. Burch of New Augusta, president-elect, will be elevated to the association's top office during the convention. Dr. Freas said more than 500 veterinarians engaged in research, regulatory and teaching work, as well as practitioners engaged in large and small animal practice, will attend the four-day party.

Township Reports To Be Published

Reports from each township will be published before Feb. 1.

Problem Of Traffic Accidents Monster

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Governor Welsh told the first combined meeting of three state traffic safety groups today that the problem of motor accidents is a "monster that will devour us if it gets out of control."

Welsh spoke at a meeting attended by members of the Traffic Safety Committee, the Traffic Safety Study Commission and the Traffic Safety Advisory Board.

He said death and injury on highways and streets constitutes "a problem that will be with us from now on in and is going to get worse."

He promised the groups "the fullest possible cooperation of the executive department" and urged them to keep in motion the 1961 momentum toward actual reduction of traffic deaths.

Some Progress Is Reported On Common Market

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Ministers to the European Common Market appeared today to be making some progress toward an agricultural agreement that could send the economic bloc into its vital second stage.

Frances' problem of disposing of its farm surpluses so far has blocked the transition, which originally had been scheduled for Jan. 1.

The ministers expressed cautious optimism after Tuesday's session and prepared for another one today.

Right now each of the six market members holds a veto over the bloc's decisions. The members are France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

When the second stage is reached, none will have veto rights and the transition is expected to result in further cuts in trade tariffs between the six members.

French Agriculture Minister Edgar Pisani predicted a full agreement by next Sunday.

"I am certain the world understands the French view," he said. "To fail now would be to lose what Europe has already gained."

Council Vice President Sisco L. Mansholt of Holland concurred. "We simply have to get out of this thing by Saturday," he said.

Alfred Mueller-Armack, West German secretary of state for economic affairs, expressed satisfaction over Tuesday's meeting. France's apprehension over its surplus farm products has led to demands for access to German markets.

Reports said the ministers agreed on a common wine policy, called for details on a sugar and beef proposal by June 1 and set up a 1/2 per cent "compensation" tax on imports of processed farm products. They concurred on the need for bloc-wide wine designations to protect quality, the reports said.

The ministers also discussed whether to apply to agriculture the rules governing industrial competition and cartels.
