A Look Downhill

There are many people who try to rationalize fear away with the old saw that "it's all in the head." In a sense, it is, but psychologically, fear is a definite reality. It is the final culmination of negative thinking.

Fear can invade a whole town, if there are enough individuals, preaching the negative side of things. And, if allowed to continue, it can eventually ruin a town.

There are too many people who fear Decatur might lose an industry. There are merchants who fear that business might get worse, instead of better. There are many citizens who fear that the tax rate might increase. And, believe it or not, there are those who fear that the city might progress.

The biggest evil connected with fear in particular and negative thinking in general is the fact that if we fear something long enough, it will become a reality. We can condition our minds to the point where we actually act to bring about our worst fears — if we have fears.

All of which sounds pretty frightening.

But the opposite is just as true, and certainly much brighter.

Those people, those businesses, those cities that have an aura of confidence, a feeling of success, are the winners. Those merchants who feel that business is good are the ones that have good business. Those communities that appreciate industry for its positive additions and contributions are the ones that obtain and keep industry. And those industries that stay positive, stay healthy and prosperous.

The successful person does not think in terms of success because he is successful — he is successful because he thinks in terms of success.

That sounds ridiculously easy, and it is.

In fact, it's so simple that many will not believe it. They will not believe every great philosophy from the Bible through the ancient Greeks and into the moderns. Each one of these philosophies has somewhere in it, in almost identical words, the fact that a man's life is the result of his thoughts. It follows, that the results of a group of men's efforts are what they thought.

Despite every positive example that this philosophy is true and workable, there is that group of people that do not really want success for themselves or others. This group would rather wallow in their own excuses, their own self-pity than look forward with enthusiasm to a bright and prosperous future.

The breaks come to those people, businesses and cities that are prepared for them and looking for them. The others deserve a floating glance of sorrow for having so little self-respect — nothing else.

Blizzard-Like Storm Pounds Midwest Area

By United Press International
A blizzard-like storm blocked roads in at least five Midwest states today. Polar cold pushing south behind the snow dropped temperatures below zero in the Northern Plains.

Heavy rains washed portions of Dixie and the Pacific Northwest. Miami, Fla., had 75 of an inch of rain in six hours. Tatooch Island, Wash., had an inch of rain in 12 hours. Seattle, Wash., had 62 of an inch.

The mercury quickly dipped back below zero in portions of Montana and the Dakotas. Bismarck, N.D., had a high of 9 degrees Sunday.

Roads were blocked by the storm, packing 40 mile winds, in parts of Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Occupants of a dozen autos were rescued by snow plow crews when the cars stalled near Geneva, Ill. Nineteen Girl Scouts got an extra day of winter outing when snow prevented their bus from reaching their camp near East Troy, Wis.

Iowa called in its snow plow crews in many areas when drifts closed in behind them and visibility was cut at zero. Minneapolis, Minn., had a 6-inch snowfall and the Minnesota Highway Department urged motorists to stay home, as did highway officials in Wisconsin, Iowa and Nebraska.

Near Cincinnati, Ohio, authorities continued a search in the Winton-Woods County Park for a man whose car was found partly submerged in a rain-swollen creek over the weekend.

At least 20 families were evacuated over the weekend at New Albany, Ind., where the Ohio River was expected to crest today. Further evacuations were expected at Evansville and Mount Vernon, Ind. Twenty Indiana roads were reported blocked by high water.

The Ohio River was rapidly returning to its banks at Cincinnati, Ohio, and authorities Sunday began the clean up job. The flood crest on the Ohio was expected to move on toward Cairo, Ill., from Louisville, Ky. today. The Kentucky River also was receding but many Kentucky highways remained blocked by high water.

U. S. Over-Matched In Stalin Dealings

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Recommended for reading today are "The Cardinal Spellman story" in the current Look magazine and a 50-cent paperback published by the Henry Regnery Co. of Chicago, titled "Roosevelt's Road to Russia."

The cardinal's story relates FDR's idea that the postwar world would be divided in four parts with the Soviet Union dominant in Europe. Great Britain, the United States and China each, were to be top dogs in three other areas: Africa, the Pacific and Asia.

The new Regnery paperback was written by George N. Crocker. It is fierce and bluntly worded. The book will be offensive to FDR's defenders because it challenges their hero as the architect of World War II strategies that left the world in the now-prevailing condition, which is a mess. The theme of Crocker's book is that FDR was a glib stooge for J.V. Stalin's master plan to dominate the postwar world or as much of it as possible. The cardinal's story seems to tie in there.

U.S. Was Over-Matched

"Roosevelt's Road to Russia" is a chronicle of the men around FDR and of the wartime conferences at which these men matched wits, notably with Stalin and V.M. Molotov. Crocker finds the U.S. team out-played and over-matched. He especially tags the late Harry Hopkins as a safety man who forever was dropping the ball for lack of the will to catch it.

"That a web of subversion was spun over Washington during Roosevelt's administration is now beyond question," Crocker writes. "J. Edgar Hoover's 'Masters of Deceit' is but one of many authoritative sources which verify that the government was infiltrated by both Communist agents and Communist sympathizers and that U.S. plans, policies and official attitudes were not only influenced by these infiltrations but also promptly reported to Moscow."

"If Franklin D. Roosevelt became, as war went on, Stalin's favorite fellow-traveler, it was not necessarily because any ideological conversion occurred."

Pro-Russian Atmosphere

"The pro-Russian atmosphere in Washington... was galling to many, including the frustrated secretary of Navy, James V. Forrestal. His diaries reveal that in September, 1944, he had written that: 'If any American suggests that we act in accord with our own interests, he is apt to be called a... fascist or imperialist, while if Uncle Joe (Stalin) suggests that he needs the Baltic provinces, half of Poland, all of Bessarabia, and access to the Mediterranean, Washington agrees that he is a fine, frank, candid and generally delightful fellow.' Such was the frame of mind Roosevelt took to Yalta."

The publishers believe that many people will be made angry by this paperback. That is a reasonable expectation. The book was published originally in hard covers at $5 and had a large sale. The paperback at 50 cents is expected to do better.

Look should do well with the cardinal's story, too. It relates that FDR told Spellman in 1943 that at the least Stalin would gobble up Finland, the Baltic states, half of Poland and Bessarabia. FDR expected Stalin to appoint Communist governments for Germany and Austria. No counter-move was contemplated.

Driver Uninjured As Car Hits Fence

Raymond V. Cook, 17, route 5, Decatur, escaped injury but nearly demolished his car in a one-vehicle accident at 1:35 a.m. Sunday, one mile east of Bobo on county road 8 1/2, at its intersection with county road 27.

Cook was traveling east on 18 1/2 when he lost control of his car in the loose stone, and smashed into a fence in the northeast corner of the intersection. The car suffered approximately $600 damages, which may be a total loss.

Two rods of fence and three posts owned by Chuck Wagner, route 5, Decatur, received approximately $75 damage. Sheriff Merle Affolder investigated.

Two Break-ins Are Being Investigated

The local police department and the county's sheriff department are investigating two weekend burglaries one in Decatur and the other at the Mesberger Bros. Stone Corp. Blue Creek plant.

Investigation is continuing in a break-in at the home of Lawrence Anspaugh, Homestead 9, which occurred between approximately 6 p.m. Friday and 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Anspaugh reported the incident to the city police at 7:00 p.m. Sunday.

Investigation showed that entry had been gained by forcing open a window located in the rear porch at the home. A lamp was knocked over and damaged and $5 in change taken from a bank. Two small banks in the second floor were taken, one containing $5 and the other $10. The thief or thieves then left through the back door, leaving it wide open.

Was Out Of Town

Anspaugh told investigating officers that he had left town about 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, but a carpenter was working at the home until 6 o'clock that night. The carpenter stated everything was all right when he left, and he locked the back door. The Anspaugh then returned about 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

The sheriff's department is investigating a break-in over the weekend at the Blue Creek plant of Mesberger Bros., located four and one-half miles south of Pleasant Mills. O. T. Reynolds, route 1, Monroe, plant manager, reported the burglary.

Entrance was gained by breaking a padlock on the gate of the large fence surrounding the building. The gate was then opened, and the office of the plant entered by prying open a window on the north side with a tire tool. Taken was some petty cash, the total of which was not known this morning, and some candy.

The thieves attempted to steal the entire safe from the office. The safe was removed from the office and unsuccessfully attempted to be loaded into a car, using a portable hoist. Approximately 14 and one-half gallons of gasoline were also taken.

Sheriff Merle Affolder and state detective Walter Schindler were continuing their investigation this morning.
