Vast IHSA Changes In Phillips' Tenure

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press International
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — When L. V. Phillips steps down as "big chief" of Indiana high school sports, he will take along the satisfaction that his regime was instrumental in organizing one of the top athletic programs in the country.

After 18 years as IHSAA commissioner, Phillips figures it's time to turn the job over to a younger administration. At 71, he years for a rest.

But he indicated today the job is far from done. Indiana, he said, must continue to strive for a well-rounded, meaningful high school athletic program. How that is accomplished, he added, "will be up to the next commissioner, the IHSAA Board of Control and the Athletic Council."

The IHSAA Board of Control will meet shortly to start screening the field. Officials indicated several "outstanding" applicants are seeking the post, but their names remained a well-kept secret.

Keller "Not A Candidate"
Herman Keller, the veteran Evansville coach who became assistant commissioner only last June, said flatly he was not a candidate for the $19,250-a-year post, although he admitted he has been urged by several sources to seek it actively.

Phillips himself said he does not plan to submit a recommendation, nor does he have a personal choice for a successor. He announced last week he requested retirement, although his four-year contract does not expire until Aug. 1, 1964.

"I thought it was about time I retired," he said. He added he and his wife, Thelma, plan to remain in Indiana—"probably Indianapolis, at least for the time being."

Indiana's schoolboy athletic program has undergone vast changes since Phillips became the IHSAA's second commissioner in 1945. Among others he cited attendance and financial growth of the state basketball tournament, with gate receipts increased 150 per cent from the mid-40s to a million-dollar business.

The number of football playing schools more than doubled and will continue to grow. Indiana had 239 grid-participating schools last fall, 218 of them fielding 11-man teams.

"As a result of consolidations, we will have more and better football," he said.

Cites Expansion
When Phillips took office, only basketball and track and field crowned state champions. Since then, team champions in cross-country, wrestling, swimming and golf were revived.

"Our goal should remain more sports participation by all schools," he said. "I'm hoping for continued expansion of the athletic program and continued equipment improvement for the safety of our athletes."

"We have more and better athletic facilities than ever before," he said, and added, "I like to see a swimming pool in every school."

Phillips credited much of the success of his administration to Robert Hinshaw. He said much of the program, such as organizing officials' associations throughout the state, was supervised by the late assistant commissioner.

Phillips was a member of a committee that worked out an agreement with the major leagues in the late 1940s, providing that no boys be signed to baseball contracts until they had completed high school.

Seymour Case Highlight
He also took pride in outcome of the famed Seymour eligibility case, athletic insurance plans, coaching schools and clinics resulting in more uniformity in officiating football and basketball, and immediate release of the basketball tourney pairings, which he called a "great and popular improvement."

The celebrated Seymour case, which went to the Indiana Supreme Court, involved two red-hot basketball prospects imported from Joppla, Ill. The two brothers were ruled ineligible by the IHSAA on grounds "undue influence" was used in their transfer. The high court ruled the IHSAA was correct in determining eligibility of athletes of member schools.

A former teacher, coach and principal, Phillips takes with him a wealth of fond memories and a stack of about 25 scrap books compiled by his wife and detailing his IHSAA career. But he is just as proud of the high-level relationship he maintained with member schools, officials, the public and the press.

"I've tried to do this job fair and square," he summed it up. The next time Phillips goes to an athletic event—and track is his favorite sport—he can enjoy his cigar at leisure. He said he hopes to be in the stands often—"if I can get a ticket."

Giants, Yanks Both Extend Win Streaks

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

The fellow who said lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place never heard of the San Francisco Giants and New York Yankees.

With the Giants and Yankees it seems that home run lightning strikes day after day... sometimes early... but more often in the late innings. Both lineups are loaded with whiplast-batting sluggers and there's just no telling when or where the blow will come.

The National and American league front runners did it again Wednesday to run their winning streaks to eight and seven games, respectively. The Giants now lead the NL by 1½ games while the Yankees have opened up an early 2½-length margin.

Willie Mays rocketed his eighth homer of the season halfway up the left field seats at Candlestick Park in the sixth inning to give the Giants a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The winning streak is the longest the Giants have achieved since they transferred from New York to San Francisco in 1958.

Chicago White Sox rookie Joe Horlen had the Yankees beaten, 3-2, entering the ninth inning but suddenly found himself a 4-3 loser after throwing only two pitches. Yogi Berra hit the first one for a double and Elston Howard hit the next one for a game-winning two-run homer.

Get Good Pitching
What makes the Giants and Yankees look even stronger is the powerful pitching each has been getting from a so-called question mark staff.

Juan Marichal struck out seven and pitched a seven-hitter to win his fourth game for the Giants. He was the sixth consecutive Giant pitcher to go the distance and he tagged the Pirates with their seventh loss in 10 games. When Pirate pitcher Earl Francis departed in the eighth, it marked the 22nd straight time the Giants kayoed their rivals' starting pitcher.

Ralph Terry was tagged for three White Sox runs in six innings but then Jim Coates took over to throttle the Sox on one hit during the last three innings. Bobby Richardson ran his hitting streak to 17 straight games for the Yankees and Al Smith had three of the White Sox' four hits.

The St. Louis Cardinals scored a 4-1 victory over the Houston Colts and the Chicago Cubs beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-1, in other NL games. The Kansas City Athletics outslugged the Detroit Tigers, 12-8, and the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins, 6-5, in the other AL action. Four major league games were rained out.

Strikes Out Nine
Former Harlem Globetrotter Bob Gibson struck out nine and walked only one in beating the Colts for the second straight time. Bill White homered and Julio Go-tay had three hits to lead the nine-hit Cardinal attack that dealt Ken Johnson, who fanned 10, his fourth loss in a row. Jim Pendleton homered for Houston.

Bob Buhl, in his first start since being obtained from Milwaukee, allowed two hits in six innings to snap the Cubs' seven-game losing streak. Strike-out king Sandy Koufax whiffed eight in 6 1/3 innings but committed a key error preceding a two-run double by Andre Rodgers in the fourth inning. Sandy's first strike-

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is no thought in Casey Stengel's mind today of stepping out as manager of the moth-eaten New York Mets and in shrugging off the suggestion he figures maybe he'll outlast scores of television sets.

"The way we been going must be tough on a lot of TV sets," he analyzed. "Everywhere I go the interest is tremendous and one guy told me he kicked the front out of his set when we lost a tough one."

"Maybe that's what happened to Edna," he said of his wife, who made a trip to the West Coast. "I haven't heard from her so maybe she kicked out the tee-vee set."

A lot of people are sorry that the Old Perfesser decided to come back to baseball with what had to be a loser. They figure that he should have stayed retired a winner and that all he can do now is to tarnish the golden reputation he forged with the Yankees after being a perennial prowler of the cellar division during his long-gone days as a National League pilot.

Better Than None
They overlook one fact. Even losing baseball is better to Stengel than no baseball at all.

Old Casey was happy as a winner with the Yankees, where he picked up 10 pennants and seven world championships in 12 years. He probably would still have been there, basking in his long-awaited reputation as a guiding genius, if the Yankees hadn't fired him.

"I'm one who was sorry to see him come back," says Billy Martin, now a scout with the Minnesota Twins. "I like him and I always will. I hate to see this happen to him."

You can only understand how deep Martin's feeling runs — and how typical it is — by realizing that Billy the Kid once was known as "Casey's Boy" and yet hasn't spoken to Stengel since the Yanks traded the scrappy infielder away to Kansas City in 1957.

Stems From Fight
Martin was intimidated by the Yankee brass to have been the one who led Mickey Mantle astray. It was Billy who bore the brunt of that fistic party at the Copacabana in which Hank Bauer made a ham on rye out of a heckler. But when he was sent away, Billy felt that Stengel hadn't gone to bat properly for him with the front office and the iciness which developed remains unthawed.

"What they'll say now is that he was just another manager," Martin asserts. "It's not true. He made a lot of ball players."

The Yankees dismissed Stengel, and general manager George Weiss, on grounds of age. Yet, two years after that goodbye, Stengel has shown an alertness with the Mets which throws the lie at senility. In a few brief weeks he has a sharply focused "book" on every National League player he has seen and can discuss their merits and defects with out of the night raised his career total to 1,000.

Gino Cimoli and Norm Siebern collected three hits each as the A's routed Don Mossi in a seven-run second inning and went on to pound five Detroit pitchers for 15 hits. Al Kalline, Dick Brown and Bill Bruton hit homers for the Tigers.

Rookie John Powell hit two-run homers to pace a rally that enabled the Orioles to overcome a Minnesota early
