Frank G. Clement Wins In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Frank G. Clement, his vote-getting ability still as sharp as his speech-making, won the Democratic governorship nomination in Thursday's primary, practically assuring him the office for a third time.

Clement, 10 years older at 42 than when he first was elected governor in 1952, trounced two major opponents, Chattanooga Mayor P.R. Oligati and Memphis City Commissioner William Farris.

With returns in from 2,536 of the state's 2,695 precincts, Clement had 285,705 votes to 198,273 for Oligati and 185,561 for Farris.

That was about 40 per cent of the vote in a state that does not have a run-off law.

Democratic nomination is practically the same as election in Tennessee. There has been talk of the Republican party running retired Tennessee Vally Authority Chairman Gen. Herbert Vogel in November.

"I can only say I have no feeling except a desire to do the best I'm capable of doing to be the best governor that Tennessee could possibly have," Clement said in a victory statement.

Leftover roofing cement can be kept soft and fresh indefinitely if you'll fill the can with water, before replacing the lid. The water keeps air from hardening the cement, will not affect the non-water-soluble material, and is easily poured off when the cement is needed again.

Effects Of School Reorganization Seen

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The effects of Indiana's school reorganization program were clearly shown today in figures from the Statehouse that a current fund distribution went to 750 school corporations, a total 146 lower than last year.

William E. Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction, said 896 corporations shared in the disbursement a year ago but during the year 199 corporations merged into 53 new units as a result of consolidation.

School support checks and credits totaling nearly $39 million were mailed this week, Wilson said. The credits, amounting to more than $4.5 million, represented deductions of payments to go in the Teachers Retirement Fund. The method of deducting reduced administrative costs for the local school units, Wilson said.

The July payment represents one-half of the net distribution in the instructional and other current expense funds and the entire transportation figure. The balance will be paid in October.
