Wood You?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — You wouldn't use a stick of pulpwood to wipe the cold cream from your face at bedtime — or would you? The American Forest Products Industries reports you have been doing it for years. But the wood you use isn't in the form that it grows in the forest. It has been processed into paper. Last year, the average American used paper products weighing 440 pounds.

The ant takes long rests, sometimes remaining motionless for hours. An anthill seems to be always bustling because the nappers hide from sight.

If you have something to sell or trade — use the Democrat Want ads — they get BIG results.
