

Student Honored

Decatur high school student Cheri Bollenbacher was honored this month when her idea on the ideal high school was included in the January edition of Builders, the youth fellowship magazine of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, a national publication.

Miss Bollenbacher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Bollenbacher of 910 Walnut street, and is a member of the Decatur EUB church, Trinity congregation. A senior at Decatur high school, she has been on the honor roll, accompanies the choir on the piano, and is on the Jacket Journal staff.

In a column called Teeners Jam Session, the question was asked, "What is Your Idea of the Ideal High school?"

Seven answers, from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, Kentucky, Canada and Kansas were printed, as well as Miss Bollenbacher's.

She suggested:

"In my opinion, the ideal school is one which (a) provides the needed, up-to-date facilities and atmosphere for its students to learn quickly and learn well, (b) has qualified teachers who will, besides teaching their specific courses, take a personal interest in the individual and (c) be an institution of learning of which the students will be proud and show a determination to better themselves."

This shows a good deal of thought on Miss Bollenbacher's part, and it is interesting to note that a group of us were discussing this very thing Monday.

The big question, we felt, with modern schools is this: are the facilities being used wisely? We realize that modern, up-to-date rooms are badly needed. But, should they be built in such quantity that they remain empty most of the time?

We suggested holding school on four shifts, two each day, six days a week, 12 months a year. This would take an extra shift of teachers, with part of a third shift, to provide vacations.

In the old days, it made sense for dedicated teachers to teach during the winter months as their vacation, and then earn a living working on the farm or in town during the spring, summer, and until harvest.

But today it's downright silly to have school teachers working seven hours a day, five days a week, 7-9 months a year, with more vacation during the school year than most of us get all year, plus their summer vacation.

And an empty school building every afternoon, evening, Saturday and Sunday, and part of the summer is very wasteful of expensive facilities.

These may not be the answers — but better use of the talents of our teachers, and of the teaching facilities, is a must. We can no longer follow the calf-paths of past expediency — our children's future is at stake, through unwise tax expenditures, and through waste of time in providing education.

Highlights Of 1963 Education Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Highlights of President Kennedy's 1963 education program:

Public grade and high schools — New four-year, $1.5 billion grant program for classrooms and teacher pay raises. Four-year extension of present $345 million yearly "impacted areas" aid plan. Continuation of grants and loans for science, mathematics and language teaching equipment.

Public and private four-year colleges — New three-year $1 billion low interest loan program for classrooms and other academic buildings.

Public junior colleges — New three-year, $150 million grant program for construction of campus buildings and facilities.

Public and private college libraries, technician schools, science-engineering buildings, and graduate centers — New three-year, $300 million grant program for buildings, books and equipment. Expanded National Science Foundation grants for teaching and research.

College student aid — 50 per cent increase in $90 million yearly National Defense Education Act student loan fund; increase graduate fellowships from 1,500 to 10,000 a year; new three-year, $67 million grant program for college "work-study" plans; new three-year federal insurance program for up to $150 million in student loans by colleges and banks. National Science Foundation fellowships increased from 2,800 to 8,700 a year.

Improvement of teaching quality — Extension and enlargement of National Defense Education Act teacher training programs, guidance and counseling services.

Other programs — New or increased programs for vocational education, teaching of the handicapped, adult basic education, public library construction and general university extension courses.

Modern Etiquette

By Robert Lee

Q. When attending a buffet dinner, is it permissible for a guest to revisit the serving table for a second helping?

A. This is perfectly proper, and expected. The big rule to remember is never to take more than you are sure you can eat. It would be very poor manners to heap your plate with food, and then leave half of it uneaten.

Q. When the bride is being married in a traveling dress, what should the bridegroom wear?

A. An ordinary business suit, or one that is appropriate for traveling, with perhaps a little white flower from the bride's corsage in his lapel.

Q. When women, already seated at a luncheon table, are introduced to one another, do they shake hands seated, when it is convenient to do so?

A. No; they bow. It is much too awkward to reach across a table to shake hands.

Million-Man Ground Force Is Suggested

FT. MONROE, Va. (UPI) — Gen. Herbert B. Powell, retiring continental Army commander, today called for a million-man ground force with a spearhead of entirely new "air-assault" divisions.

In an interview with United Press International, the chief of the Army's biggest command, provided the first official details of tentative plans for a fast-moving airborne version of the old horse cavalry — air assault units able to "overrun the enemy so fast he won't know what hit him."

An experimental outfit of 15,000 men is provided for in President Kennedy's new defense budget and it probably will begin to form at Ft. Benning, Ga., next month.

Powell said the Army eventually may organize 5 or 6 of its 16 divisions on the air cavalry principle, equipping them with hordes of helicopters and light aircraft to drive into battle and permit wide dispersal in the face of tactical atomic attack.

Two-Auto Accident Here This Morning

Total estimated damage of $300 resulted in a two-car accident this morning at 7:57 o'clock, at the intersection of Madison and First streets.

A car operated by Richard Earl Sheets, 44, 345 Limberlost Trail, struck a vehicle driven by Carolyn Jean Baker, 21, Willshire, O., on the left rear, as the Willshire woman turned into the path of the Sheets car.

Sheets was southbound on First street and the Willshire lady was eastbound on Madison, and made a left turn onto First street, into the path of the Sheets car. Her vision was obscured by a number of cars parked on First St. Damages were listed at $175 to the Baker car and $125 to the Sheets vehicle.
