

New Engraver To Be Used By Newspaper

Photographs and some other printed material in the Decatur Daily Democrat will be made on a new high speed electronic engraving machine soon to be installed in the newspaper's plant.

The machine, known as the photo-lathe automated engraver, scans original photos which have been placed on a revolving cylinder and simultaneously cuts the scanned image into a metal plate attached to a second cylinder. It will replace the leased Scano-graver now being used.

In addition to continuous tone photographs, the machine also produces black and white printing plates from pen and ink drawings, charts, maps and advertisements on a hard cellulose acetate material and will offer advertisers additional advantages.

Basically, the device is a simplified lathe to which has been added high fidelity phonograph amplifiers and optical scanning and cutting heads. Once started, the machine is entirely automatic and operates unattended, shutting off its own switches upon completion of each plate. The machine was invented by William J. Barron of Graphic Electronics, Inc., LaSalle, Ill., and was introduced in 1962.

The Decatur Democrat company was one of the early newspapers to order it. The manufacturers now have a backlog of orders from all over the world.

Only Minor Damage As Vehicles Collide

A car and a pick-up truck suffered only minor damages in an accident Tuesday at 4:20 p.m., in front of the Blingen elevator, located on the Adams-Allen county line road.

Charles Berning, 75, route 2, Decatur, driver of the pick-up, had pulled off the left side of the road, and a short time later turned across the road to turn into the elevator.

Berning, however, turned his vehicle into the path of an auto driven on the road by Joseph H. Schaadt, 28, route 1, Decatur.

Deputy sheriff Harold August investigated, estimating damages at $50 to the pickup truck and $35 to the auto.

State trooper Alan Coppes was one of the investigating officers at the scene of a two-car accident in Berne Tuesday at 9:45 p.m. in the 300 block of W. Main St.

Ernestine Bertha Bixler, 46, route 2, Berne, pulled away from a parking space along the curb, and pulled into the path of a westbound vehicle operated by Darlene Fae Shultz, 21, Berne.

Damages were estimated at $100 to each of the two vehicles involved in the crash.

Three Men Are Feared Dead In Illinois Mine

LOGAN, Ill. (UPI) — Mine workers sealed off a fire that raged out of control in the Freeman coal mine No. 5 today, leaving little hope for three miners missing and presumed dead.

Wooden seals covered with plaster were placed over mine entrance and openings to contain the blaze in an area about one-half mile wide by a mile long. Officials hoped the lack of oxygen would snuff out the flames.

The relatively new and modern mine was the successor to the company's Orient No. 2 mine at West Frankfort, where an explosion and fire claimed 120 lives on Dec. 21, 1951. The fire began Tuesday afternoon about a half mile from the main shaft and about five miles from the site of the 1951 tragedy.

The missing miners were identified as Charles J. Marvel, 43, a cutting machine operator and father of seven children; Harold Glenn Miller, 37, a mechanic and father of three; and Paul W. Hartsock, 34, a shuttle car operator and father of four.

Between 150 and 200 men were in the mine when the fire began. Seven or eight men suffered smoke inhalation and four men were hospitalized. At first officials believed everyone had escaped safely. But company officials later found street clothes of the missing men hanging in a washroom.

Harry Treadwell, personnel director of the mine, said "We just don't know what happened to the men. One theory is that they might have been coming out and then went back to a resuscitator station, became woozy and collapsed."

Families of Hartsock and Miller remained at the mine until the fire section was sealed off.

Two six-man rescue crews made a thorough check of other sections of the mine before the seals were finished, but reported no trace of the missing men.

Officials feared an underground explosion might occur.

The fire began along a 400-foot section west of the main shaft near a rubber conveyor belt. Cause of the blaze was not known and company officers refused to hazard a guess.
