State Institutions Short Of Physicians

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Board of Medical Registration and Examination had under study today a plan to issue temporary permits to alien doctors in an effort to ease a critical shortage of physicians at the various state institutions.

Governor Welsh met with the board and with officers of the Indiana Medical Association Wednesday to discuss the problem. He said the state's biggest penal institution doesn't even have a single physician. The only doctor on the staff at the Indiana State Prison, he said, left Wednesday night.

Commissioner Arthur Campbell of the State Board of Corrections and Dr. Stewart Ginsberg, state mental health commissioner, also emphasized needs for more physicians at institutions under their departments.

The board said it would hold a special meeting to see what could be done but would make no immediate comment on Welsh's suggestion that alien doctors be hired.

Welsh said the doctors did indicate they would attempt to work out a plan under which some doctors licensed in 14 states which are not recognized by Indiana could practice under "recommendation by endorsement."

But James Waggener, executive secretary of the IMA, said he believed the State Personnel Act prevents any alien from being a state employee.

Some of the doctors suggested the time has come for Indiana to have a second medical school but has not set one up.

Dr. John Van Nuys, dean of the Indiana University Medical School, said the school provides only half of the new doctors needed each year in the state.

Campbell reported the state reformatory and the state penal farm each has one doctor and more are needed at both. Dr. Andrew C. Offutt, state health commissioner, also told of chronic shortages in institutions under his department.

Welsh said Dr. Paul Lamey, Anderson, secretary of the medical registration board, who served as spokesman, said the board would check with Atty. Gen. Edwin K. Steers to see if it could issue temporary permits to alien doctors.

The governor said he was advised that the ending of reciprocity with the 14 states which use a mechanically-graded multiple choice examination instead of the hand-graded essay type used in Indiana was due to an attorney general's opinion.

Citizens Favorable To Nuclear Treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., said today he doesn't want to say "I told you so" next year, but he's afraid that will be his unhappy privilege.

His wheat bill, a voluntary version of the administration's rejected compulsory program of strict controls and high supports, produced about as much echo as a wheat stalk falling on a South Dakota field.

It picked up bipartisan support when Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D., Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., Gale McGee, D-Wyo., and Milton R. Young, R-N.D., joined as co-sponsors.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant majority leader, did not specifically endorse McGovern's proposal, one of three now before the Senate Agriculture Committee. He did, however, commend McGovern for introducing the bill and directed pointed remarks to administration policy makers who so far have shown no inclination to call for new wheat legislation.

Wheat growers were warned in advance that nothing further would be done this year if the administration's compulsory plan were defeated in the May referendum, according to these strategists, and that is how it will be. Price supports will fall from $2 to $1.25 or less on the 1964 crop unless Congress acts.

When this certain prospect is closer at hand, next spring, for example, a second referendum on the administration-favored compulsory formula might carry the day, it is suggested.

Humphrey obviously does not agree. "I say to the administration, as one of its loyal supporters, that we cannot content ourselves with doing nothing," he said. "Let that be clear."

McGovern fears the Senate and
