Unexpected Cool Weather Overnight

By United Press International

Hoosiers got an unexpected break from the weather early today. Instead of a warm night as predicted, it was cool.

Temperatures dipped into the 50s over most of the state and barely climbed above 60 in other areas. It was 52 at Fort Wayne, 57 at Indianapolis and Cincinnati, 58 at Lafayette, 61 at South Bend, Evansville and Louisville.

Forecasts had called for overnight lows generally in the 60s.

A further cooling trend was expected Saturday afternoon and evening in the northern third of the state.

Meanwhile, daytime highs will range into the 80s and low 90s throughout the state, with lows tonight ranging from 65 to 71.

Highs Thursday ranged from 78 at South Bend to 92 at Evansville.

The five-day outlook called for temperatures to average near normal except a little below normal north. The upstate cooler trend will last only during the weekend. Downstate, no important changes were expected through the period ending next Wednesday.

No rain was recorded Thursday. But scattered thunderstorms and thundershowers were likely this afternoon and tonight north and Saturday elsewhere. Sunday will be mostly fair and mild.

Rain the next five days will total more than an inch north and one-half inch central and south, mostly Saturday and again near the middle of next week.

Change Procedure At State Library

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana State Library will be closed to the public for over-the-desk lending of books and other materials beginning about Jan. 1. The ban, however, will not apply to persons using the library without removing books, and Hoosiers still can get state-owned books by mail if they have no local library service and through their local libraries if they do.

McClarren, who formerly was director of the Huntington W.Va. library, said that under the new policy no direct lending to the general public would be permitted but the state library would become "a librarians' library."

Dick Heller, Jr., Decatur secretary of the board, said the "librarians' library" terminology was misleading because the new rule affects only the methods and not the privilege of borrowing books. He said 50 per cent of Hoosiers can still borrow by mail as they always have.

McClarren said the rule was imposed partly because of a growing use of the library by Indianapolis, Marion County and suburban county borrowers to such extent the "legal responsibilities" of the institution are handicapped.

No Authority In Law
The state library has no authority in law for direct lending of any materials," McClarren declared. "Yet this library does the business of a good-sized branch library. It is very clearly in direct public service."

McClarren said that he felt the taxpayers of Indiana were paying for a public library for Marion County and that so long as this practice continued, the Marion County commissioners would make no effort to provide public library service.

He said that he and the American Association of University Women had consulted with the county commissioners and had been told that the property tax burden would not permit the addition of public library service in the county.

"They suggested that the state legislature should be asked to provide some other source of revenue than property taxes for library service," McClarren said.

Public Relations Problem
He conceded that whenever direct lending service to the general public ceases, "we are going to have a public relations reaction." But he said that by giving ample notice, he hoped current users of the library would not be inconvenienced.

"They still can borrow by mail, just as do taxpayers throughout the state, whether they live in Marion County or Steuben County," he said.

McClarren said that 11 fulltime staff members of the library work solely in providing direct public service, and that they could be transferred to work serving the entire state and not Marion County alone.

"The selection of material also is affected," he said. "You tend to pick what the public wants, which other libraries all have, instead of using your funds to strengthen and supplement what other libraries have."

McClarren said he has made a study of the state library from its founding in 1925 when it was created solely for use of members of the legislature and elected state officials. He said by "law and tradition" the state library has three responsibilities:

—A responsibility for professional leadership.

—A responsibility to provide special service to state government.

—To serve as a librarians' library.

"It is our responsibility to help other libraries, to supply libraries of the state with material they don't have, not to duplicate what they do have. We are to provide service not otherwise provided, such as our genealogy library, our Indiana collection and our service for the blind," McClarren said.

"We have a responsibility also to do legislative work to help libraries, and to provide governmental agencies with service they ask for, and to serve as the archives of official records," he added.

McClarren said that whenever direct public lending ceases at the state library, Marion County will have "over 200,000 citizens without library service. One out of every 100 American citizens without library service will live in Marion County."

Rev. Robert Hammond Preaches Here Sunday
The Rev. Robert Hammond will preach at the First Baptist church Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Hammond, former pastor of the church, is now director of Christian education for the Indiana Baptist convention.

ALLEN L. SCHEIDERER, right, of 910 W. Monroe, was sworn into the Marine Corps July 25 by Major Vernon L. Sylvester, new recruiting director for the state. Allen was the first man to be sworn in at the Fort Wayne Recruiting Office. Normally the ceremony is conducted at the main recruiting station in Indianapolis. Allen will begin "boot camp" in September at the Marine Corps recruit depot in San Diego, Calif. Upon completion of his boot training Allen will be assigned to Marine Corps Aviation School. Allen is a graduate of Decatur high school, class of 1962 and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Scheiderer.

Rev. Donald Gillig Goes To South Bend

The Rev. Donald J. Gillig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gillig of Decatur, who has been assistant pastor at St. Joseph Catholic church at Garrett, has been transferred to become assistant at St. Anthony de Padua, South Bend.

Rev. Gillig's transfer was one of 16 pastoral assignments announced Thursday by the Most Rev. Leo A. Pursley, bishop of the Fort Wayne-South Bend diocese.
