

Gray Ladies Hold Business Meeting

The Gray Ladies of the American Red Cross in Adams county held their monthly business meeting recently in the Indiana & Michigan building in this city. Mrs. Leo Sheets, Gray Lady chairman, presided.

Seven new volunteers were introduced: Mrs. Ward Chapman, Mrs. Lester Sheets, Mrs. Herman Moderau, Rex Rhodes, all of Decatur, Mrs. Paul German of Preble, Mrs. Noah Brunner and Mrs. Marcus Lugnbill of Berne.

Rex Rhodes is the first Adams county man to volunteer as a Gray Lady in this Red Cross service. These new volunteers will shortly be given Gray Lady and Man instructions, and also the orientation of the Red Cross. They will then serve a probationary training period to certify them for the service.

Sept. 9 is the date for presenting Red Cross pins to a number of Gray Ladies who have completed 50 hours in active service in the county. Also, seven Gray Ladies will be given their certificates for completing requirements for Gray Lady service.

Mrs. Frank Braun reported on the hours of each member, and Mrs. Walter Bauer detailed the program outline for the month of September.

Clara Neuschwander, chairman of the Adams county Red Cross chapter, gave her personal viewpoint of the Gray Lady service in the county, and Mrs. Wanda Oelberg, executive secretary, added her comments on the service in the community.

March Latest In Long Series

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The First Amendment to the U. S. Constitution specifically guarantees "the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Today's civil rights demonstration is but the latest in a long series of historic occasions when Americans have marched on their capital city to invoke that right.

One of the first and most famous marches was that of "Coxey's Army" in 1894. The country was in the grip of a severe depression and there were many unemployed.

"General" Jacob Coxey, a Massillon, Ohio, businessman, gathered 300 of the town's jobless workers to accompany him in a march on Washington to demand that the government undertake public works.

His ragged little "army" gathered recruits along the route to Washington and was about 500 strong when it camped on the outskirts of the capital. Coxey and a small group of marchers went to the capitol building to present their demands.

They were charged by mounted police. Coxey was arrested and spent 20 days in jail, the First Amendment notwithstanding. His pathetic "army" remained in Washington for several months, until government funds were provided to transport the marchers back to their homes.

In 1913, suffragettes began organizing marches on Washington to demand votes for women. The largest demonstration, on March 13, 1913, saw 5,000 women marching determinedly down Pennsylvania Avenue. (Women were finally granted suffrage in 1921).

The Great Depression of the 1930s prompted several "hunger marches" on Washington. The largest was that of the so-called "Bonus Army" — thousands of World War I veterans who converged on the city in June, 1932, while Congress was debating a soldiers' bonus bill.

The House passed the bill, but the Senate, with 12,000 veterans milling about the Capitol, overwhelmingly rejected the measure. Congress voted money to send the bonus marchers home, but many of them continued to camp in abandoned buildings near the Capitol. Police who tried to evict them were driven off with clubs and rocks.

On July 28, President Herbert C. Hoover ordered the Army to drive the bonus marchers out of Washington. The Army troops were led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then chief of staff. His staff included a young major named Dwight D. Eisenhower. The troops moved in on the veterans with sabers, tear gas and tanks, driving them from the city in chaotic flight.

Post Office Plans In Event Of Strike

Postmaster John Boch announced today that planes, trucks, and buses will be pressed into service to move air and first-class mail to its destination, and to move other classes of mail within the second zone (approximately a 150-mile radius) of Decatur, in the event of a nation-wide rail strike.

However, Postmaster Boch noted that he received instructions not to accept mailings, other than first class, air mail and parcel post, which are destined for points more than 150 miles from the Decatur office for the duration of the rail strike if it occurs. Boch stated, "We are prepared to handle any letter or parcel addressed to any point, provided first class or air mail postage is paid on the item."

But he cautioned that service will be temporarily suspended on second-class magazines addressed to points beyond the second parcel post zone — extending 150 miles beyond the points of mailing — as part of the national post office contingency plan for operating under a rail strike emergency.

Boch advised mailers that any emergency shipments, such as medicines or badly needed spare parts, should be sent first class or air mail during the strike, if it occurs, and if the shipment demands delivery beyond the 150-mile limit. Perishable items, such as baby chicks and honey bees should not be mailed for the duration of the strike if it occurs.

Mailing of items covered by the temporary and limited service suspension, if deposited at post offices immediately prior to the risk of the mailer. The department cannot guarantee early delivery of perishable items and other than first class and air mail parcels, letters and other matter if they are in transit at the beginning of the strike or within the post office of acceptance at the time the strike commences.

Boch noted that Indianapolis, Columbus, Ohio, Danville, Ill., are among cities within the 150-mile zone of the Decatur office, which will continue to get full mail service from this post office, if and when the strike occurs.

"We urge publishers and large mailers to call the post office at 3-3205 for detailed information, and to get answers to technical questions involving their particular mailing problems," Boch concluded.
