

Brazil Leader In Office Two Years

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Brazil's President Joao Goulart observes an important anniversary on Sept. 7.

It was on that date two years ago that he took office after the sudden resignation of Janio Quadros had left Brazil leaderless and on the verge of civil war.

Goulart has regained for his office the powers stripped from it two years ago by a combination of conservative politicians and military leaders. But it has been a rough two years and Brazil, torn by extremists of both left and right, continues to march toward an uncertain future.

Urges Senate Pass Nuclear Test Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today it was "entirely satisfied" that the test ban treaty would not keep the United States from using nuclear weapons in wartime. And it said advantages Russia might gain by cheating on the pact are "generally not considered to be worth the effort."

The committee made the statement in releasing a report recommending Senate ratification of the treaty as a "net advantage to the United States."

Committee members, who earlier voted 16-1 to recommend ratification, said they concluded that the treaty "poses no serious risk" to U.S. ability to make a nuclear strike. Nor, they said, would it appreciably restrict development of a defense system against enemy missiles.

The committee rejected arguments against the treaty made by Dr. Edward Teller, nuclear physicist, and stressed that the test ban first was proposed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959. It said "now would seem to be a good time to stop" nuclear explosions in the atmosphere.

Although Russia might "slowly erode" the U.S. nuclear lead in some areas by underground tests, the only kind permitted by the treaty, the committee said the continuance of unrestricted testing might close this gap "much more rapidly."

Risks Acceptable
The 26-page report concluded that risks contained in the treaty would be acceptable because of what it said is this country's superior strike forces. The report was made public today in advance of debate on the treaty which opens Monday on the Senate floor.

The foreign relations committee members said in dismissing Teller's argument that the treaty would stimulate, rather than prevent, an arms race: "The treaty is directed against the arms race."

The group's statement that it found the treaty would not limit U.S. war potential was aimed at satisfying concern by Eisenhower who urged in endorsing the treaty that the United States "be the sole judge" of the weapons and equipment it would use in event of armed aggression endangering vital U.S. interests.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., cautioned today in a statement against adoption of "crippled" reservations to the treaty on the Senate floor. He said such amendments could be a "kiss of death."

The committee concluded that the treaty will inhibit the proliferation of nuclear weapons, thus reducing the danger of accidental or catalytic nuclear war, as well as nuclear war by design.

May Isolate China
The members said it has "already deepened and complicated the divisions within the Communist orbit," which on balance is "a net gain for the rest of the world."

Red China's unwillingness to sign the treaty may further isolate her from the rest of Asia and other countries as well, in turn encouraging resistance to Chinese "expansionist policies," the committee held.

The foreign relations group cautioned against a loosening of the Western alliance because of Russia's agreement to the treaty. It said the treaty should lead to "even stronger efforts to improve" Western cooperation but warned that "this will be difficult."

Dr. Dester To Quit State Job Sept. 20

PUTNAMVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Dr. Herbert R. Dester, resigning as physician at the Indiana State Penal Farm in the wake of a riot of 500 prisoners last month, said today the frustrations he experienced in his institutional job were worse than those of his 30 years as a medical missionary in the jungles of India.

Dester issued a statement bitterly criticizing "medieval standards" of hospital service at the farm, lack of accommodations to isolate tubercular patients and long delays in requisitioning medicines, including 4 1/2 months to get aspirin tablets.

Dester announced he will leave his job Sept. 20 and move with his wife to Berne. The 76-year-old physician was virtually forced into retirement after prisoners rioted in protest over the alleged inadequate treatment of a young Indianapolis inmate who died of pneumonia a few hours before.

Asked why he was leaving, Dester said the reason was "the frustrations experienced in trying to get a workable staff for the hospital."

"Never in the 5 1/2 years I have been here have we had a trained, qualified nurse," Dester said. "Much of the time we had no qualified laboratory or X-ray technician."

"Some months ago in discussing the problem with the superintendent, I said I was accustomed to work under adverse conditions, having spent 30 years in the jungles of India. But never have I had such frustrations as here."

"Another difficulty was the delays in getting medicines. Usually it takes over three months from the time requisitions are sent in until medicine is supplied or received. Very often it is longer."

"Recently it took 4 1/2 months to get aspirin. Hospital records are very important. During most of my stay at the farm the clerks we had did not have the training and experience necessary to keep records satisfactorily."

"It has recently been said that our hospital services at the farm are on medieval standards. In spite of all my efforts to get suitable accommodations to isolate active tubercular patients, there are today no suitable accommodations for such isolated. Our technique in this respect may well be classed as medieval."
