ELLIOTT-McDONALD

VOWS READ RECENTLY

The Rev. Robert McQuaid officiated at a double ring wedding ceremony that recently united in marriage Miss Helen Elliott and James McDonald at the First Baptist church of Decatur.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Elliott, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Harold McDonald, 131 North Eighth street.

The wedding music was provided by Miss Karen Daniels, organist, and Mrs. Eugene Lehman, vocalist. Selections included "Evening Star," "Wedding Bells," and "Lievestra." Mrs. Lehman also sang, "I Love Thee" and "Because."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of chantilly lace and nylon tulle over taffeta. Topped by a Victorian lace jacket, panels of lace and tulle formed the waist-length skirt. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. Her elbow-length veil was caught to a crown of pearls.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Larry Bradtmiller, Fort Wayne, appeared in a green sheath dress topped with an overskirt. She carried yellow mums.

Max Elliott, brother of the bride, served as best man, with Jack McDonald and Carl Elliott, Jr., serving as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Elliott chose a sheath of black lace over taffeta with dark accessories. The mother of the groom, Mrs. McDonald, wore a green figured jersey with a skirt of unpressed pleats and light accessories. Both mothers wore a corsage of white carnations.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the parish hall which was beautifully decorated by Mrs. Ned Ray. A yellow and white color theme was carried out throughout. A three-tiered wedding cake and a crystal punch bowl were centered on the serving table. Serving the guests were the Mesdames Ned Ray, Carl Elliott, Jr., James Elliott, John Brunner, James Riley, with Mrs. Nancy Brick registering the guests.

The couple are both graduates of Decatur high school. The new Mrs. Elliott was formerly manager of the Equity Dairy store.

McNamara And Taylor Report On Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor returned today from a close-up inspection of the front lines of the South Viet Nam guerrilla war to give President Kennedy a frank appraisal of the situation.

McNamara and Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, spent a week on a fact-finding mission for Kennedy to clear up some of the confusion over whether the South Vietnamese war effort had been diluted by its domestic religious crisis.

McNamara declined on their arrival at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md. today to give newsmen any inkling of what his report contains. He saved it for a conference the two Pentagon leaders had with the President at the White House, only a little over three hours after their return.

On their departure from Saigon Tuesday, McNamara issued a statement saying he and Taylor had traveled the "length and breadth of this land" and had spoken with several hundred persons during their visit.

Assess Situation
Kennedy sent McNamara and

Taylor to South Viet Nam Sept. 23 to make a first hand assessment of the progress of that country's war against the Communist guerrillas, a war in which 12,000 to 15,000 U.S. servicemen are involved.

The President gave the two investigators a three-way assignment.

To assess the military situation now, compared with the period before late August when the Vietnamese government cracked down on Buddhists and threw the country into a political turmoil.

To assess the probable effect of the Vietnamese government's repression of the Buddhists and other policies on the future progress of the war.

In the light of the first two findings to recommend what action the United States should take.

U.S. officials said it was not a question of deciding U.S. "policy" in Viet Nam — the policy is and has been to see the war won and help the Vietnamese economically toward a better life. Kennedy has stated this country would not pull its forces out of Viet Nam, whose defeat he believes would ultimately mean the loss of all Southeast Asia to communism.

The question, officials said, is one of tactics — how forceful the United States should be in trying to persuade the Vietnamese regime to make reforms, what U.S. aid policy should be, how the Vietnamese war effort should be organized and what its working relationship with U.S. military officials should be.
