Cleaning Downtown Streets

Every Decatur merchant has a big stake in keeping our downtown area as free of litter as possible.

And most merchants sweep every morning as they open up their stores. They then carefully place the litter in containers for disposal, rather than sweep it into the streets, since much of the litter will just blow about.

The Downtown Idea Exchange, of New York City, which provides interesting sidelights on downtown renewal throughout America, points out that many merchant associations are most effective when they wage their litter prevention campaigns for both the downtown merchant-businessman and the general public.

The most beautiful city in America would look dingy and ugly if allowed to let little pile up on its main streets. As merchants, we should welcome visitors and customers each day with the clean, neat sidewalks that bring prestige, civic pride, and good will.

As DIE explains, downtown may have its head in the clouds, but if it has its feet in the trash it will still be a mass. Gleaming new buildings, tree plantings, store front improvements, and the rest will fail miserably in giving downtown a new look and a new public image if the same old trash blights the area.

When downtown Decatur fails to observe elementary housekeeping, the finest downtown plan will prove abortive. A filthy sidewalk repels people; a new parking lot littered with junk repels them, too. A busy alley dotted with overflowing trash cans makes an unappealing sight which sends shoppers to the next town or shopping center.

Every child should be carefully trained to put candy wrappers, gum paper, etc., in the many well-placed city litter cans on our downtown streets. Most adults presently obey this sign of courtesy to others. (Think how you would feel if someone threw paper in your front room, front yard, or on your porch!)

And every businessman can help by:

1. Sweeping early each morning.
2. Place sweepings in a trash can.

And then the regular job of street sweeping will be quite easy, and can be scheduled for the better looks of Decatur.

On School Lunches

Two articles which have appeared in your paper in the last week prompt me as a parent to speak out. Last Friday's article regarding our schools' hot lunch program was a very welcome one as far as I was concerned. I was so glad to see that the parents of Decatur were finally speaking out regarding the lunches that were being served. I, like so many others, have discussed many times calling the school but had never done it. Then in Saturday's paper I see that the parents had not been calling and I begin to wonder what was wrong with us. There is only one way for us parents to correct a situation and that is to act and not continue to talk among ourselves and not do anything about it.

I am an average mother with an average knowledge of nutrition and balanced diets. I've heard about the basic four and know about texture and quality of foods but not on a level that would make me an authority. It takes no more knowledge than I have to know that a fish sandwich, buttered corn, bean salad, ice cream, bread and butter and milk is not a well planned meal. This is just a sample.

As parents I feel we have a right to speak and see that our children are not just filled up but are provided foods of nutritional value. In checking other papers in our area and other school menus we can see that this is possible in a hot lunch program. Why not here?

Sincerely,

Mrs. Charles M. Hill

Fires continue to keep the city fire department busy, as they were called to a house first at 4:25 p.m. Wednesday and another fire at 3:55 a.m. this morning, after extinguishing a grass fire earlier Wednesday and another fire at 3:55 a.m. this morning, after extinguishing a grass fire earlier Wednesday afternoon.

The second fire Wednesday afternoon was at an apartment house at 310 N. Third St., which is owned by Roger Litchfield. A short in the wiring in the attic of the house started the fire.

Not too much damage was done, with most of the damage to the ceiling of the upstairs apartment.

The fire early this morning was behind the Adams County Trail Sales property at Washington and 11th streets, formerly the site of the Gilpin factory.

Some trash and used articles behind the building there caught fire but the blaze was quickly extinguished by the firemen and little damage was done.
