New Type Pin-Ball Machine Gambling

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission chairman Joe Harris said today that a relatively new type pin-ball machine which takes five coins at one time "is obviously for gambling and not amusement."

He said possession of the machine will result in a citation for gambling.

Harris issued verbal orders to Indiana excise police directing them to check for the devices in their rounds of Hoosier taverns and to issue citations even though an actual payoff is not witnessed by the officer.

"You can build up tremendous odds with these machines using five dimes or five quarters," Harris explained. He said the electronic machines began appearing in Indiana about two years ago, but complaints received by his office indicated there are now large numbers of them in Lake and Vigo Counties and in South-eastern Indiana near Cincinnati.

"You press the button and you can lose as much as $1.25 at one push," Harris said. "Obviously the thing is being used for gambling. It costs too much to be called amusement."

Harris said the existing policy on gambling devices on the premise of liquor permits also was revised in his verbal order on one other matter.

He said if valid complaints are received indicating the machines are used in a particular place, a citation to appear before the ABC hearing judge may also be issued. Previously the policy on pinball machines labeled "for amusement only" was to make a citation for gambling only if a payoff was observed.

Report No Check On Food For Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress was told today that $50 million worth of surplus food was sent to Viet Nam without any check on whether it ever arrived, or how it was used.

The General Accounting Office said the shipments extended over a six-year period and were a prime example of the lack of controls over the Agriculture Department's Food-for-Peace program.

In a report to the House and Senate, the GAO also said no check has been made on the "numerous shipments" sent to Yugoslavia since 1960. The same applies to food shipments for Turkey and Colombia delivered in the last year, the GAO said.

Other developments: Price Control: A Senate commerce subcommittee was told that a proposed quality stabilization bill was actually an attempt "to set up a price control system by private agreement. Paul Rand Dixon, the head of the Federal Trade Commission, said the bill was not in the interests of the consumer. Under the proposed bill, retail stores would be barred from selling trademarked articles at below prices fixed by the manufacturer.

Wheat: Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the United States should remove of Soviet troops from Cuba to the proposed wheat-to-Russia deal. Goldwater said the troop removal, plus the price of the wheat should make up the full sale price. The cost of the wheat should also include the approximately 60 cents a bushel subsidy, Goldwater said.

Butter Stains
For butter stains on fabrics, ordinary washing will remove them from washable materials. For unwashables, sponge with carbon tetrachloride. An absorbent can also be used on delicate fabrics. Dust it on, let remain until the fat has been absorbed, then brush off. Repeat this process if the spot has not been completely removed.

Room Procedures Changed At I. U.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI)—Indiana University announced Tuesday a room application procedure for rooms in its residence halls which increases the chance of a member of one race being assigned a roommate of another race.

A simplified form will be used beginning next fall. It will make priority of the date of application and deposit, the designation of a preferred hall and the listing of a preferred roommate by name the only factors to be used in assigning students to rooms.

Under the present system, a student may express a preference for a roommate in the same or a different field of study, from a community of a similar or a different size, or of the same or different race, nationality, or religion, or he could indicate no preference at all.

Vice President Samuel E. Braden, dean for undergraduate development, said that henceforth in order to make preferences effective, two students should list each other as the preferred roommate and mail applications and deposits at about the same time. Otherwise, he said, they will be assigned to roommates in the order in which applications and deposits for particular halls arrive in the mail.

The change in procedure will affect more than 10,000 single students expected to be living in residence halls by the fall of 1964.

Observers said the chance of a person having no preferences drawing a roommate of a different race who also had no preferences would be greater under the revised system "because there are fewer choices." But students who agree to be roommates in advance of application have the same assurance of compatible assignments in the future as they have at present.

dence hall activities, said the university would continue its long-standing practice of changing room assignments in cases where serious roommate incompatibility develops. But observers said "sound reasons" always have been necessary for granting appeals for reassignment.
