INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Sixty-one Indiana mayors seek reelection Nov. 5 in the municipal balloting among the state's 111 cities, including two Democrats who lost in the primaries last May and came back to run independent of party labels.

But the luckiest man among the more than 225 candidates seeking to control the Hoosier cities next year is City Councilman Don Sell of Angola, a Republican. Sell announced for mayor after Mayor G. Wendell Jacob declined to seek renomination.

National Honor For Local Insurance Man

S. J. Hain, Decatur representative of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company and a member of E. B. Bingham & Associates of Fort Wayne, gained national recognition for his record of personal production for September; it has just been announced by Henry W. Persons, vice president and director of agencies.

Hain ranked seventeenth in total sales. This honor was won in direct competition with all of the company's more than 2500 sales representatives throughout the country.

Truck, Taxi Are Involved In Wreck

A truck and a taxi were damaged in an accident at 8:18 a.m. today at the intersection of Monroe and Second streets.

James Closson, 33, of 616 W. Monroe St., was driving the taxi west on Monroe street and had stopped at Second street in the right lane to discharge a passenger.

A west bound truck driven by Richard L. Marbach, 27, route 5, Decatur, was in the center lane and failed to see the taxi and both attempted a right turn onto Second street and collided. Damages were estimated at $200 to the taxi and $5 to the truck.

VOTE DEMOCRATIC

ation. Sell attracted no opponents for the May primary, and the Democrats put up nobody against him this fall, so he got both the nomination and the election without turning a hand.

The 61 mayors who are running include 43 Democrats and 18 Republicans. However, the Democrats include Mayor M. Jack Edwards of Marion and Mayor Arthur J. Ferguson of Ligonier, who were defeated in the primaries and refused to give up without a struggle as candidates for independent parties.

Prohs Field Two

Edwards and Ferguson are among about a dozen independents running this fall, including a couple of Prohibition Party nominees in Lake County, and Sam Unger in the state's largest city—Indianapolis.

Besides Sell at Angola, one present Democratic mayor is assured of reelection for lack of Republican opposition. He is Mayor Charles W. Decker of Bluffton. Also unopposed is Avery Smith of Loogootee, a Democrat but not a current mayor.

The field of mayors seeking new terms when the primaries started last spring was a bumper '74. But 12 Democrats and 3 Republicans were beaten in the May voting.

For awhile, it looks as if James L. Lightner of Batesville, a Democrat, was going to be in the same enviable position as Sell at Angola. He won the primary without opposition and the Republicans didn't field a candidate to run against him. But an independent candidate filed in the person of John P. Curran.

9 Ex-Mayors Running

Nine former mayors, most of whom lost in re-election bids in 1959 or some earlier year, also are seeking to return to their old city hall posts in Alexandria, Evansville, Huntington, Jasper, LaPorte, Lebanon, Muncie, Monticello and Portland.

Three women are among the candidates—Mayor Mary Alice Cunlap of Bloomington and Mayor Mary Bercik of Whiting, and Mrs. Margaret H. Prickett, a supermarket owner at Mishawaka.

Mrs. Prickett is a Republican and has to battle it out with Mayor Joseph Canfield. The other ladies already hold office and have the natural advantage of patronage. Mrs. Bercik has won mayoralty elections before, but Mrs. Dunlap was appointed to fill a vacancy due to a resignation and this is her first ballot box test for mayor, although she's won elections for lesser offices before.

The third major health bill passed in this session of congress Senator Hartke identified as the maternal and child health and mental retardation act, which was sent to the President for signing on October 15. Indiana's expected share in the grants of this act over the next five years will come to about $6.5 million.

"In all of these matters," concluded Senator Hartke, "you will find that I have worked and voted consistently for the improvement of health services to the residents both of Indiana and of the nation as a whole."

Federal Grants For Hospitals Revealed

FRENCH LICK, IND.—Federal grants for construction by Indiana hospitals, authorized since the start of fiscal 1963, some to $6,809,736, Senator Vance Hartke (D-Ind.) revealed today in a speech before the Indiana hospital association at its convention here. The total value of hospital construction involved is near $20 million, spread among 10 hospitals in as many Indiana cities: Bloomington, Elkhart, Marion, Peru, Rensselaer, Evansville, Fort Wayne, Terre Haute, Connersville and Corydon.

The senior senator from Indiana described to the convention three bills with implications for the state enacted within the past month. Together they "comprise a vital and surprisingly large achievement" in the public health field, he said.

Under the mental retardation facilities and community mental health centers construction act of 1963, Indiana will be allotted on a matching grant basis funds building facilities to serve the totaling nearly $3.5 million for mentally retarded and for work at the community level on mental health problems.

"Never before," said Senator Hartke, "have we had a federal program aimed at strengthening the much-needed attack on these great sore spots in our public health program. It would be hard to overestimate the importance of the entry into this area for the first time by the national government."

Another of the recent passed bills is the health professions educational assistance act of 1963, aimed to increase the number of doctors, dentists, nurses, and related health workers trained in teaching institutions. "To maintain the present ratio of 137 physicians and 56 dentists for every 100,000 persons," said the senator, "we must produce 50 percent more doctors in the next 10 years than in the last ten, and double the number of dentists trained."

The third major health bill passed in this session of congress Senator Hartke identified as the maternal and child health and mental retardation act, which was sent to the President for signing on October 15. Indiana's expected share in the grants of this act over the next five years will come to about $6.5 million.

"In all of these matters," concluded Senator Hartke, "you will find that I have worked and voted consistently for the improvement of health services to the residents both of Indiana and of the nation as a whole."

Parts Of State To Change Time Sunday

By United Press International
A zigzag line dividing Indiana into two time zones during the six cool months each year reappears this weekend, looking little different than it did a year ago.

Except for a few changes mostly in areas where residents in 1962 submitted to the inconveniences of operating on two different time zones in the same counties, the line takes in all or parts of 22 counties in the northwest, southwest and south central portions of the state.

The change will be made at 2 a.m. Sunday. Unless alterations are made locally thereafter, Central Standard time will remain in effect in those areas until the last Sunday next April.

The "slow" time zone will include all or parts of Lake, Porter, LaPorte, Starke, Jasper, Newton, Vermillion, Parke, Vigo, Clay, Sullivan, Greene, Knox, Daviess, Gibson, Pike, Dubois, Perry, Spencer, Warrick, Vanderburgh and Posey counties.

If you have something to sell or trade — use the Democrat Want ads — they get BIG results.
