

Central Indiana School of Anti-Communism

A new school for adults, entitled as above, has opened recently in Indianapolis, with headquarters, significantly enough, at the Indiana War Memorial.

The editor is inherently suspicious of anti-movements, whether they be anti-Communist or anti-vivisectionist, or whatever. This does not mean that he is either pro-Communist or pro-vivisectionist — it just means that his neo-positivist philosophy curdles at the thought of being "against" something, rather than "for" something else. If a group were called pro-democratic-capitalist, or pro-experimentation-without-harm-to-animals, it would just sound better to the editor.

But there is more to it than "sound." A positive approach is quite different from a negative approach, and leads to quite different results. This is a thesis that cannot be developed adequately in a short editorial, however.

Now it's fine to be against Communism — but this should be intelligent opposition, not just name calling and definition-splitting.

The school's approach, if untempered by considered reason, could be quite dangerous to America as a nation, as well as to the individuals attending the session, as individuals.

You cannot, repeat CANNOT, tell what a Communist nation will do, or how it will react, or how "dangerous" it is to democratic - capitalist, monarchist-capitalist, or monarchist-feudal systems by studying Marxist-Leninist theory.

This is tantamount to studying Christian theory, and then attempting to say that the United States, and other "Christian" nations, do not react in the manner of Christ, or they would not have been at war with each other for 20 centuries. It would be wonderful if they did!

And quite obviously, anyone who is actually familiar with Marx and Lenin must realize that neither foresaw separate states, but a single government, with economy and politics controlled by Communist dogma.

This does not exist, and could not possibly come to be, without "wars" between Russia and China, and their respective "satellites" and neutralist "Communists," etc.. Communism, as envisioned by Marx and Engels, is not now in existence, is not visibly coming into existence, and is not even seriously threatened anywhere, unless the unlikely conquering of the entire world by China, was to take place within this generation, and a single government formed. It is no more likely than the unification of the world under Christianity as taught by Christ in this generation, without miraculous intervention.

Thus, while Communists and socialists will argue over Marxist texts, it would be completely illogical for educated people to study either texts to find out how dangerous either is as a threat to present world governments. To find out about power struggles between nations, history must be studied. Political background and religion are strong considerations in the total picture — Leninist thought is wrong — they may have to justify decisions in Marxist-Leninist terms — this is true — but neither is controlling and the assumption that Communist nations are closely controlled by Marx — true — but that is all it is — a justification.

Visit Completely Rebuilt Village

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnson and children, the daughter, son-in-law, and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crownover of Moore, stationed at the American embassy in Tehran, Iran, near the Russian border, visited a village completely rebuilt by the world council of churches following last year's disastrous earthquake which took 12,000 lives.

The Presbyterian mission and Community Episcopal church sponsored four buses to take interested people the 120 miles northwest of the Persian capital to the village site. The roads, they wrote, were quite rough.

The group went through village after village of dried mud homes which had been leveled a year ago by the quake.

Dedicate 306 Homes

Purpose of the bus trip was the dedication of 306 modern homes for the 1,600 Ematabad citizens. The homes were built through donations from churches all over the world, totaling nearly half a million dollars.

In addition, donations from Christian institutions and individuals were used to build schools for both boys and girls, a community center, a dispensary clinic, public bathhouse, a modern water system with piped water from a deep well near each home, a demonstration farm plot, and a city square. A water tower will provide water pressure for the water system.

Grown wheat, barley and cotton, main area crops, will be shown at the demonstration plot, very important to the agricultural farm village.

Shortly after the earthquake disaster, the church council of Iran, composed of the Evangelical church and the Episcopal church, set up an earthquake relief committee under the chairmanship of Dr. John Elder, of the American Presbyterian mission.

The committee contacted the world council of churches with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, and an appeal for help went out. A spontaneous, generous response was immediately forthcoming. Contributions came in from Australia and Canada; from Burma and the United States; from Formosa and Britain; from New Zealand and Denmark. The largest contributors were the Netherlands ($135,552), Sweden ($113,775), and Germany ($100,755); and the smallest contributors were Kuwait ($36), Fiji ($73) and the Philippines ($98). Others were France, Hong Kong, Korea, Malaysia, Norway, Okinawa, and Thailand.

Watch Deeds Presented

The Johnsons watched as Dr. J. Wyan Klinken of the Reformed churches of the Netherlands spoke on behalf of the world council of churches, presenting the deeds for the new brick-and-steel homes to the people.

"It was wonderful," they reported, "to see the looks of happiness on the people's faces as they received their homes. But the people were so very poor and the children looked so pathetic and dirty and malnourished that they could hardly stand it. They ate on the bus rather than let the children see their food."

That evening they returned to Tehran, and spent two hours at Rev. Little's home discussing what they had seen.

Upholds Life Terms Of Two Kidnapers

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Supreme Court Wednesday upheld the life terms of two men convicted of kidnaping a police officer in Scottsburg after he caught them leaving the scene of a robbery.

William Sherman Packwood and Clyde Allen Fabel, Jr., had been given life terms in Scott Circuit Court in connection with the events of Feb. 16, 1961, when Officer Wallace Porter observed them leaving the rear of a tavern which was closed.

Evidence was that Porter was forced to ride about for several hours with the two robbery suspects while they held a gun to his head and debated whether to kill him. He finally was released and immediately called state police.

Packwood and Fabel then were arrested at Chesterton and tried on the kidnaping charge. They claimed in their appeal that evidence was insufficient for conviction and that their constitutional rights had been violated because of a 39-day recess in their trial.

However the Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Judge Harold Acker, noted that the evidence seemed sufficient for the verdict reached. The opinion said also that while "we do not presume to approve the practice of granting recesses of 39 days in the trial of criminal cases involving life imprisonment, we do recognize the fact that trial courts must be granted wide discretion in the granting of recesses and continuances."

The recess had been granted because of the illness of the defendants' attorney and the high court noted that the appellants had agreed to the recess. The opinion decided that publicity about the case during this recess was not sufficient to prejudice the jury.

Plan State School Tour Next Tuesday

The Adams county association for mental health has planned a tour of the Fort Wayne State school to be held Tuesday. The State school is a school for retarded and physically handicapped persons and has about 2,400 residents.

The tour which is planned will be led by Jim Myers, religious and volunteer director for the school, and will include the physical and occupational therapy rooms, residences, laundry facilities, the school, and the gymnasium. The tour will be about 2 1/2 hours in length.

The tour group will assemble at the parking lot of the First Menonite church in Berne at 8:15 a.m. and will return to Berne following the tour, getting back in early afternoon. Transportation to the school will be made by automobile and all those who can provide transportation are asked to come prepared to drive.

The desire for such a tour was stimulated when a group of local ladies sewed 80 dresses for persons at the school. All those who are interested in learning more about the State School and work being done with the retarded and physically handicapped are encouraged to participate in the tour. Locally the tour is being arranged by Rev. Marvin Zehr, assistant pastor of the First Menonite Church, Berne, a member of the board of the county association for mental health.

Any Decatur persons wishing to join the tour are asked to be at Gerber's Supermarket at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Hoffa Outlines Demands For New Contract

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa expressed confidence today that his union would win most of the $600 million worth of wage-benefit increases it seeks from the trucking industry in a new nationwide contract.

Hoffa said the demands he outlined Wednesday were not unrealistic. He predicted the final settlement would be close to the union's 90-cent-an-hour package proposal.

The controversial Teamsters' chief declared he would not call a national truck strike to enforce the demands although he left open the possibility of "selective" area strikes if the contract talks become deadlocked. Hoffa said that trucking firms would have to raise their freight rates to meet the union's demand for a three-year contract providing average 45-cent hourly pay increases for 450,000 drivers, helpers, warehousemen, mechanics and clerical workers.

First In History

The Teamsters' proposal started the ball rolling in the first nationwide trucking industry negotiations—a longtime Hoffa objective. The union now negotiates either area-wide or city-wide pacts for over-the-road and local truck drivers and related employees.

The pay increases sought by the Teamsters are far above the settlements in other industries in recent years which have averaged about 7 or 8 cents per hour.

The size of the package demand far exceeds President Kennedy's suggested guidelines for wage increases—roughly 3 to 4 per cent—but Hoffa has long ago denounced the Chief Executive's proposal as overmanagement wage-fixing.

Hoffa also announced that the Teamsters would seek tighter restrictions on "piggybacking" or movement of truck trailers on railroad flat cars.

Seeks Assessment

He said trucking firms would be asked to pay $5 into Teamsters' pension funds for each trailer moved by "piggyback." Under the present contract those firms which had used the "piggyback" method before 1955 were exempt from the $5 assessment.

Hoffa estimated the demands, including a 15-cent-an-hour wage increase during each year of the 3-year pact, would cost about $900,000 for each working day or $200 million a year.

He said 16,000 trucking employers in 48 states—all but Hawaii and Alaska—would be notified formally of the Teamsters' proposal on Friday. Negotiations are expected to begin later this month in Chicago.

Hoffa carefully lined up contracts in the Midwest, South, West and East so they would expire next year during the months from February through September. He said the union would seek a common Feb. 1, 1967, expiration date on the new national contract.

Lists Major Demands

At a news conference Wednesday, Hoffa ticked off the following major demands:

—Fifteen-cent hourly wage increases in each year of the three-year pact.

—Additional $1 a week contribution to health and welfare funds and another $1 a week into the pension funds.

—Two additional holidays and reduction from 18 to 15 years service to receive a four-week vacation, and 11 years service to 10 for a three-week vacation.

—Tighter language on "hot cargo" provisions designed to

Farmer, Son Killed As Home Destroyed

CROTHERSVILLE, Ind. (UPI)—Fire destroyed a farm house southwest of this Jackson County town today, killing a man and his 27-year-old son.

The dead were identified as Oliver Matthews, 50, and his son, George.

The bodies were found by firemen when the blaze died down.

A passing motorist, Tom Bridges of Crothersville, saw the fire and called the fire department. But the roof had collapsed before firemen arrived.

Cause of the blaze was not determined immediately.

The Matthews house was located about three miles southwest of here.

Woman Complains Of Voodoo Magic

DENVER (UPI) — A woman called the city attorney's office Wednesday to report that her landlady, a voodoo practitioner, had threatened to kill the woman's daughter by putting a lock of her hair in a green hollow tree.

Asst. City Atty. Richard Plock asked her if she had called the police.

"Oh, the police are scared to come out here," the woman replied. "My landlady said she'd magic them into toads if they bother her."
