Juvenile Decency

When we write about a girl stealing a dress from a local shop, everyone talks about it that evening and the next morning.

But when another young lady wins a scholarship, or a Boy Scout does his regular daily good deed, their actions are little heeded by the general public.

Which event is more important — a four-year scholarship to a university, which will mean a life of ease, reward, responsibility, and creative use — or the winning of a sectional tournament? Yet which gets the most attention from the general public?

Every day 99% of our youth do a fine job. Young boys and girls, helping to support their families while family members are sick, report to their jobs unnoticed by society.

Optimist International, a service club dedicated to helping the youth of America, and headed locally by Tom Sefton, mortician with Gillig & Doan has launched a program to give credit to the younger generation's juvenile decency standard bearers.

Known as Youth Appreciation Week, the program is held annually in November. This year it will be held this week, Nov. 11-17. During this week Optimist International's 2,100 clubs sponsor such programs as youth in government days, outstanding student awards, scholarship awards, and youth-in-industry days.

These programs are designed to show high school age youth that others are interested in their hopes, dreams, and future. During this week Optimists also attempt to balance the publicity scales by pointing out that 95% of today's youth are high calibre youngsters.

Optimist club members need your support during Youth Appreciation Week in Decatur in order to fulfill our youngsters' need for appreciation and to create a true and favorable image for our youth.

Do your share, give those youths who deserve it a pat on the back. The reward for your time and effort? A new respect for our teenagers and the knowledge that the responsibility for a promising future will be placed in their capable hands.

Decatur's Optimist club is relatively young, compared to the other service clubs in Decatur, it has already proved itself in sparking the drive to found the Wildcat League, and in many other useful services to youth.

Youth Appreciation Week Is Proclaimed

Circuit judge Myles F. Parrish, in cooperation with the Optimist club of Decatur, has issued a proclamation setting the week of November 11-17, as youth appreciation week.

The week, recognizing the commendable actions of the majority of teenage youths, is a project of Optimist International and is being carried out in both Canada and the United States.

Dedicated to giving deserving youth a "pat on the back," the program, which originated seven years ago, is sponsored annually to emphasize the fact that 95 per cent of today's youth practice juvenile decency, not delinquency, said local Optimist president Tom Sefton.

Bill Bauman will serve as local chairman of the youth appreciation week committee. The program for the week centers on recognition to be awarded to the outstanding scholars at the two Decatur high schools.

The judge's proclamation read: Whereas, members of Optimist International in the United States and Canada, believe that 95 per cent of the deserving youth do not receive the recognition they deserve, and

Whereas these Optimists strive during youth appreciation week to give North America's worthwhile youth a pat on the back, and Whereas, the citizens of Adams county wish to join the Optimists in expressing their appreciation of these young people and their deeds, now

Therefore, I Myles F. Parrish, judge of the 26th judicial circuit, proclaim November 11-17, 1963, as youth appreciation week and urge each adult of Adams county to give praise to the younger generation and to extend to them your confidence that they will succeed in the roles which they must assume as they enter the adult world.

Judge Parrish was asked by the Optimists to issue the proclamation because he is also judge of the juvenile court.

Young Girl Held For Killing Stepfather

NEW YORK (UPI)—An 18-year-old girl is being held without bail for a hearing Thursday in the fatal stabbing of her stepfather, a 260-pound professional boxer who knocked out former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles in 1955.

The victim was John Lee Storey, 35, known professionally as Young Jack Johnson. According to police, Johnson's stepdaughter, Bobbie Steptoe, inflicted a fatal knife wound on the boxer in a family dispute late Saturday.

Two officers, called to the Johnson home in Queens to investigate a report of a disturbance, said they found Johnson and the girl arguing in front of the house, with Johnson's wife Matilda attempting to keep the peace.

Bobbie allegedly slipped into the house and picked up a kitchen knife with a six-inch blade. Returning outside, she stabbed him in the chest, according to police reports.

The hulking Johnson, six feet three inches tall and 260 pounds, refused medical aid at the time. Within minutes, he slumped to the street. He was dead when an ambulance arrived.

Johnson, twice heavyweight champion of California, turned professional in 1953 and still was fighting this year whenever he could get a match.

In 1953, three of his seven bouts were major victories. He outpointed Marty Marshall, the only conqueror of heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, and

SPECIAL WASHINGTON REPORT

JOB TRAINEES FIND NEW WORK

By U.S. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.)

The Manpower Development and Training Act is proving its worth in combating one of the basic causes of long-range unemployment, and in encouraging sound manpower planning based on research.

In 1959, the Senate Special Committee on Unemployment Problems, of which I was chairman, recommended "institution of a nationwide vocational training program through federal grants in aid to the states, including specialized courses for youths who have dropped out of school and for older workers who require retraining." Passage of the Training Act in 1962 was a beginning toward meeting the needs identified in our committee study.

By October 30 more than 2,107 training projects for over 83,700 unemployed and underemployed persons had been approved since August 1962. As of October 15, 52,000 trainees had begun or completed training. Approximately 31,000 are presently being scheduled for courses.

Of the 15,000 workers who had completed courses by September, 70 percent have been placed in jobs almost wholly or predominantly related to their training.

In addition, experimental and demonstration projects have been approved to service 31,000 individuals. These projects are aimed at developing new methods of reaching the hard-core unemployed. They are directly concerned with the jobs in big-city slums, the older worker, the emotionally handicapped, the educationally deficient, the dropout, minority groups and other disadvantaged workers in the labor force.

Data compiled so far shows that MDTA programs are focused on meeting the needs of primary wage earners. Over 75 percent of the men and 40 percent of the women enrolled in courses under the Act are heads of families or households. Of those who have completed training, 75 percent of the men have been placed in jobs as compared to about 60 percent of the women.

Almost half the trainees have scored knockouts over Zora Folley and Charles.

Bobbie was arraigned Sunday in Queens Criminal Court, where she will have a hearing Thursday.

Congress In Recess For Veterans Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress took its Veterans Day recess today with final action on civil rights and a tax cut still far away but with administration leaders talking about other legislative achievements.

Democratic leaders are not feeling especially unhappy at the way things have been going, although they know that neither of the two priority items—an $11 billion tax cut and civil rights bill—will get through the Senate this year.

However, Congress runs for two years and both measures will go over to the second session, starting in January. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said Sunday he definitely thought "a reasonably good" civil rights bill would be enacted next year.

"Fruitless Congress" Dirksen said in a television interview with Rep. Harold C. Ostertag, R-N.Y., that it had been a "rather fruitless Congress in many respects."

He blamed this primarily on the controversial nature of much of the proposed legislation.

Democratic leaders are quick to point out some achievements of Congress this year.

Safely passed and signed into law are two bills putting the government in a big way into the mental health fight.

Under one of these bills, up to $329 million could be spent over four years for construction of community out-patient hospital centers. The aim is to hold down commitments to state asylums, which sometimes have been subject to easy confusion with jails.

The companion bill authorizes outlays of up to $355 million over five to seven years to combat mental retardation in infants.

Now in the wrap-up stage, and sure of enactment, is a $12 billion college aid bill, a genuine breakthrough in this field. The money will go into loans and grants to colleges public and private, including those that are church-related.

Small Bills But big ones have been mixed in with the small. Servicemen got a pay raise at a cost of $1.2 billion a year. The draft law was continued four years. A new law was passed assuring equal pay for women who do the same work as men.

Nobody has figured yet how to solve the farm surplus problem. Pending that, the first session of the 88th Congress kept alive for two years a temporary program of payments to farmers who hold down production of corn.

Appropriations bills this year have come even slower than usual, but when the adjournment gavel has fallen the way will no doubt have been cleared for government spending of close to $100 billion in the current 12 months.

And to staff off any bouncing of Uncle Sam's checks, the legal ceiling on the national debt will have been lifted not once but three times during the year, to a record $315 billion.

Whether all that activity and lack of it warrants a raise for U.S. lawmakers is currently being debated. They get $22,500 now and are listening eagerly to pleas of underlings and advisers that they boost this to $32,500.

City court was not held this morning due to the Veterans Day holiday.

The accident occurred at 6:15 p. m. Sunday, a mile south and a mile and a half east of Decatur, on county road 29, near the drive-in theater.

Courtney was northbound on the county road and sideswiped a southbound auto operated by Merlin Owen Wolfe, 23, of route 3, Decatur. Damage to the autos was estimated at $50 each.

Berne Youth Charged Two cars were damaged and a Berne driver was arrested after another two-car accident at the intersection of state road 124 and U. S. 27, at 4:10 p. m. Sunday.

Lynn Jay Augsburger, 16, of Berne, was charged with making an improper turn after he turned in front of a car operated by Martha J. Chilcote, 40, of Berne. Augsburger was northbound on 27 and was attempting a left turn onto the state road, when he turned into the path of the southbound Chilcote vehicle.

Damages were estimated at $300 to each of the two cars, and Augsburger was cited into Berne justice of the peace court at a later date.

The state police and sheriff's department investigated both mishaps.

20 Years Ago Today

Nov. 11, 1943 — Adams county's 1944 war food production goals call for the same acreage of corn, 25 per cent more wheat, 10 per cent less acres of oats.

Decatur citizens are reminded that they must file reports of any foreign holdings with the treasury department by Dec. 1.

Rev. George Holston, Linn Grove pastor, is the prohibition party's candidate for the United States senate.

Sale of war bonds for the first week of November totaled $25,429.75 toward the Months goal of $107,371.

The Decatur Commodores lost their season opener to New Haven, 33-22, and Hartford edged Pennville, 32-30.
