

Pope Is Studying Issuing Encyclical

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI, back from a triumphal journey to the Holy Land, may soon tell the world of his spiritual experience in an encyclical, a high Vatican source said today.

The Pope was cheered by a million Romans Monday night on his return from the pilgrimage to the land of Christ's birth. Observers said the success of his trip has cast him in a new role as a traveling apostle of peace and unity, and they predicted more trips for the pontiff.

The Vatican source said the 66-year old pontiff was expected to take a few days of rest and then start work on the first encyclical of his half-year reign. They said it was likely to tell of the sources of inspiration and hope the Pope found in the Holy Land and reiterate the message of peace he proclaimed from Bethlehem.

At a later date, they said, the Pope may issue encyclicals on other subjects.

Fitting Occasion
One of these, they said, was on scientific research, for which this year's fourth centenary of the birth of Galileo could be a fitting occasion.

Galileo, the 16th century Italian physicist and astronomer, was condemned by the Roman Catholic Church of his day for his theory that the earth revolves around the sun. This was considered heresy at the time. The Vatican's stand on Galileo has long since been reversed.

The sources noted that the church's approval and support for science already has been outlined in a number of documents and speeches by the late Pope Pius XII.

They said Pope Paul was not thinking so much of adding something new to this stand on science but of recording it in the form of an encyclical.

Broader Encyclical
In any event, they said, an encyclical on science and technology was not likely to come before the issuance of the Pope's broader encyclical on religious and world problems.

This would be a sweeping "State of the Church" message. The sources indicated it may be weeks before the encyclical is finished because the Pope has so many experiences to analyze and fit into it.

They include world reaction to his message from the Holy Land appealing for peace, his experiences visiting the places of Christ's life, and most important of all, his meeting with Patriarch Athenagoras, head of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

In addition to this activity, the Pope is considered virtually certain to make more trips abroad.

Vatican sources said the Pope is likely to accept an invitation to visit India in November for the World Eucharistic Congress.

On Sunday, he received a message from President Johnson expressing the wish to meet at the appropriate time and place. He told Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver, who delivered the message, that he would be "happy to place himself at the convenience of the President when the opportunity arises."

Suggests U.N. Visit

London's Daily Herald suggested today that the Pope's next journey should be to the United Nations in New York. It said this would help the cause of world peace as had his Holy Land trip.

Pope Paul laid equal stress on his visits to the shrines of Christianity and his meeting with Athenagoras in remarks he made on his return Monday night.

The warmth and crush of his torchlight welcome by nearly half the population of Rome slowed down the Pope's motorcade to walking pace.

He appeared at the window of his private study to tell the crowd of more than 75,000 in St. Peter's Square below:

"I had the great luck this morning of embracing after centuries—after centuries—the patriarch of Constantinople."

The meetings in Jerusalem Sunday and Monday were the first between leaders of the divided churches for more than 500 years, and their talks were aimed at healing a split that goes back another 400 years before that.

More Meetings Planned

"Let us hope that these beginnings give good fruit," the Pope told the crowd in the square. He said the 77-year-old Orthodox leader left him with these words: "Tell us what we should do. We are ready."

More meetings between prelates of the two churches were believed planned.

The Pope took time from his strenuous schedule to send messages from the Holy Land to 224 heads of government and leaders of organizations, appealing to them to "do all in your power that peace shall prevail in the world."

The messages met with an immediately favorable response. Queen Elizabeth II of Britain cabled the Pope she would join him in praying for peace, justice, and well-being for all peoples.

WAY OVER QUOTA—A total of 162 pints of blood were donated Monday, exceeding the quota of 125 pints by 37. Thought it added a decorative touch, he said in his communication to the Jaguar Journal magazine. It is a live—and dangerous—cobra. This jungle livestock is not too unusual sight for the car owner, A. Furrer. He lives in Enugu, Nigeria.

Suit Against Union Filed By Greyhound

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—A union whose members created a stoppage that stranded more than 20 hours faced today a $50,000 federal court suit filed by Eastern Greyhound Bus Lines.

Greyhound said the union, Division 1211 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, staged Sunday a "wildcat and illegal strike."

Maurice Horton, president and business agent for the union division, today expected to receive formal notification of the suit by a federal marshal.

The stoppage turned the Indianapolis terminal into a vast parking lot of idle buses, about 50 in all, as the transcontinental drivers came to stay when drivers learned of the dispute, leaving passengers to their own devices. Some of the passengers waited nearly 20 hours.

The $50,000 was asked in damages for the estimated loss of revenue during the stoppage. The company claimed the walk-out was prohibited by the contract-in force between the company and the union.

The dispute arose over working conditions, when the union claimed Greyhound violated at least four provisions in the contract. Horton said the union members did not strike or walk out but merely staged a meeting.

Asks Auditor Stop Paying Legislators

FRANKLIN, Ind. (UPI)—Former State Sen. Nelson G. Grills has asked the Johnson Circuit Court to order state auditor Dorothy Gardner to quit writing pay checks to members of the legislature.

Grills, in a brief filed with the court, based his argument on two constitutional requirements and a 1961 decision by former Marion County Superior Court Judge John Linder, holding that there could be no legal legislature after 1961 without reapportionment.

The Constitution requires that the General Assembly meet in the state capital unless a different place shall have been appointed by law—which has not been done, so Linder's ruling is binding, Grills said.

Grills also cited another section of the State Constitution, plus a related statute enacted in 1951 which spells out the duties of the state auditor, including a requirement that the auditor examine claims to be sure they are "just, legal and unpaid."

Grills, a longtime advocate of reapportionment and a new opponent of the sales tax, contended that since the Linder decision has not been challenged in any other court, it remains the prevailing law in Marion County.

"The General Assembly being authorized to meet only in Marion County, and the auditor of the state carrying out the responsibilities of her office in that county, this court should grant an order enjoining the auditor from making any payments to persons who were elected as members of the 1963 General Assembly," the brief said.

Grills said that if the Johnson court accepts his line of reasoning, "the sales tax will be an unconstitutional tax" along with all the other 1963 legislation.

Pledge Swift Action To LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson reviewed his State of the Union Message today with Democratic congressional leaders and got a promise of swift action on the administration's top priority civil rights and tax reduction programs.

Speaker John W. McCormack told reporters after the weekly breakfast meeting at the White House that the State of the Union address Johnson will make to a joint session of Congress Wednesday is one "the American people overwhelmingly will respond to — and most favorably."

After giving his legislative lieutenants a peak at the speech, the President meets later today with two highly influential groups of labor and business leaders to solicit backing for his 1964 legislative targets.

He invited members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council to lunch and gets together tonight with business executives.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the State of the Union Message accents domestic issues. He said it is "to the point" in seeking to deal with national interests. But Mansfield would not give specific details of the program Johnson will submit to the House and Senate.

Seeking Ultimate Budget

Mansfield did say Johnson was "endeavoring to do everything he can to see that the ultimate for next year's budget will be under $100 billion."

The President, while at his Texas ranch, indicated last week that he hoped he could keep the spending level for fiscal 1965 within $100 billion.

Mansfield said Johnson and the congressional leaders spent a good bit of time going over the State of the Union Message. He said the speech has not yet been finished.

The White House had indicated Monday that Johnson would have the message completed early today. But after the leadership meeting broke up, officials announced that advance texts of the speech would not be available to newsmen before 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, indicating revisions were still being made.

Johnson planned a stag dinner with the Business Council, a private organization of leading corporation executives headed by Frederick Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T). Again, the topic was the President's program.

Cabinet members were to attend both the lunch and the dinner sessions to help answer questions about Johnson's proposals.

The President's State of the Union message, which he will deliver to a joint session of Congress at 12:30 p.m. EST, Wednesday, may be the shortest since 1934 when Franklin D. Roosevelt gave a 3,000-word address.

Johnson spent a good part of Monday going over the document with his top advisers. He conferred for 90 minutes with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara over defense and foreign policy aspects. He later held a cabinet meeting to discuss the message and also called in Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield for consultation.

Other officials summoned to the White House were John A. McCone, Central Intelligence director; McGeorge Bundy, national security adviser to the President; Undersecretary of State George Ball; Walt Rostow, the State Department's chief policy planner and Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, special adviser on Soviet affairs.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said that Johnson's economic message would go to Congress on Jan. 20 and the budget message would be submitted on Jan. 21.

Record Dividends in 1964 at New York Life

Policy owners of the New York Life, for the second successive year, will receive record dividends totaling more than $185,800,000 in 1964, an increase of $28,400,000 over 1963. The 18 per cent increase, largest in the company's 118 year history, is principally due to continuing trends toward higher interest earnings on investments and lower costs. In the last 2 years the company has increased its dividends by approximately $50 million which means that the cost of insurance for most New York Life policy owners has been substantially reduced.

New York Life is a mutual company and dividends, as declared, are paid to policy owners only — there are no stockholders. Policy owners may take their dividends in cash, apply them toward premium payments, buy additional paid up insurance, or leave them on deposit.

If you would like life insurance protection with one of the oldest and strongest companies, I am here to serve you.
