Retired Janitor Is Fleeced Of $2,000

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A confidence man boldly barged into an office of a downtown bank Friday in fleecing a retired janitor of $2,000.

Joseph S. Bowman, 66, Indianapolis, said he didn't want a custodial job at the bank which the man offered him but was finally persuaded to accompany him to the bank for an interview with "the president."

At the American Fletcher National Bank & Trust Co. on Monument Circle, the confidence man informed Bowman he would have to withdraw $2,000 for security bond while his employment application was being studied.

While Bowman waited outside a second-floor office the man said was that of the bank president, the man went inside for a moment and returned saying "everything's all right." He handed Bowman an envelope purporting to contain the money Bowman had put up as "security," and told Bowman to wait a few minutes until "the president" came out to talk with him.

After waiting, Bowman opened the envelope and found paper clippings instead of his cash.

had a gun—or so everybody thought. He went backwards toward the press room and encountered Mrs. Edna Biggs, a secretary.

"He pulled me back and put the gun right on my ear," she recalled. "He said, 'I need a way out here.' I said, 'There is no way out.'"

So Gregory sought to make one of his own. He went into Judge John Mead's chambers and threw a chair out a window. It clunked onto the sidewalk. Barely missed a presumably innocent bystander. Mrs. Ruth Thornton, Judge Mead's clerk, told Gregory: "You can't get out there. It's the second floor."

"You take me out," said the gunman, and he stuck the weapon in her ribs and told her to march. Back at the alcove, Little Lynn had collapsed onto the steps. "Get smelling salts," Mrs. Allen told a newsman, Wesley Wise. He dashed out and almost ran into Mrs. Thornton and her abductor. The sight of the two again set Little Lynn screaming.
