

Three From County In Student Teaching

MUNCIE, IND. — Ball State Teachers College will send 243 full-time student teachers into Indiana public schools the spring quarter to get practical experience in teaching and meeting all of the extra challenges that a teacher faces in a school day. In addition to the full-time program, the college has part-time student teaching in schools within commuting distance of the campus.

Full-time student teachers will report March 23 or March 30, whichever date falls after the local schools' spring vacation, said Dr. E. Graham Pogue, director of student teaching.

There will be three student teachers from Adams county. Also, one Ohio student will teach at Berne high school. They will be teaching with the following teachers:

Karen Kay Bucher, Decatur, will teach second grade under Mary Helen Moran at Northwest school, Decatur. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bucher, R. R. 4, Decatur.

Winifred Mae Mankey, Decatur, will be teaching sixth grade under Anna Newhard at Ossian elementary school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Mankey, R. R. 1, Decatur.

Phronia Clayton, Decatur, will be teaching shorthand, typing and bookkeeping under Maynard Hettick at Decatur high school.

Mrs. Janice Heller Wise, Convoy, Ohio, will be doing her student teaching in health and physical education under Norma L. Jones at Berne high school. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Heller, R. R. 2, Convoy, O.

Preserve Steel Wool

To preserve steel wool for cleaning indefinitely, each time after it is used, rinse and put it into a container of soapy water. This will prevent its rusting and it lasts actually until worn out.

Youthful Lifer Is Granted New Trial

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A Terre Haute youth sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of a 3-year-old girl will get a new trial because a court-appointed lawyer who refused to file an appeal for him was reappointed to handle it when the defendant himself filed the appeal.

The Indiana Supreme Court reversed itself Wednesday to grant a new trial to Donald Sparks in the slaying in 1962 of Brenda Dawn Fredericks. The high court had upheld the youth's conviction by a 3-2 vote in January but reversed itself Wednesday on his request for a rehearing.

Sparks, then 18, was convicted in 1962 of killing the girl while babysitting with her. His court-appointed attorney refused to file an appeal but when Sparks, with the help of other prisoners, filed the appeal a lower court then named the same attorney to handle it.

In his opinion Wednesday, Supreme Court Judge Norman Arterburn held that the lawyer "took an inconsistent opinion. If he thought there was ground for a good faith appeal, he should have filed a motion for a new trial."

This festival has become one of the largest of its kind in Indiana and is sanctioned by the Indiana association of secondary school principals activities committee.

NOTICE

Due to late winter snows combined with repeated freezing and thawing, rural highways in this area have become soft and for the time being, are unable to withstand the loads ordinarily carried. Heavily loaded vehicles are "cutting through" and causing considerable damage to some of our county roads.

In lieu of setting load limits the Commissioners of Adams County hereby request a voluntary reduction in weights carried during this early Spring season.

Claim Kennedy Inclined For Second Place

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Att. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy is inclined toward accepting the Democratic nomination for vice president if President Johnson asks him to run, sources close to Kennedy said today.

But the same sources emphasized, however, that Kennedy had done nothing and would do nothing to campaign actively for the nomination without Johnson's approval.

They discounted reports of a feud between Kennedy and Johnson and said the attorney general was "amused" by such stories, most of which centered on the write-in campaigns staged for Kennedy in some state primaries.

The sources said that Kennedy and Johnson had not talked to each other about the write-in campaigns. Asked why, one source said the President had not called Kennedy and the attorney general was hesitant to call because he felt Johnson had more important things to think about.

Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said Wednesday night he was convinced there is no rift between Johnson and Kennedy. "From my own knowledge, I am sure there isn't any rift," Bailey told United Press International.

One write-in campaign netted Kennedy 14,548 votes to 18,058 for Johnson in the New Hampshire primary this week. There were reports that Paul Corbin, a Kennedy intimate who was reported to have been forced off the Democratic National Committee staff by Johnson supporters, had sparked the campaign on behalf of the attorney general.

Bailey denied that Johnson had ordered Corbin's dismissal from the committee staff. He said Corbin "was with us for a few years, he did a good job and then left."

Sources close to Kennedy ridiculed the report that Corbin inspired the New Hampshire campaign. They noted that Corbin is from Wisconsin and does not know political leaders in New Hampshire.

"If he (Kennedy) really wanted to promote a write-in campaign in New Hampshire, he would have sent someone who knew more about the state's politics," one source said. "After all, most of the Kennedy people are from Massachusetts and he could have found someone better qualified than Corbin to conduct a campaign in a state that borders Massachusetts."

The plan was presented to the committee by Sol Rubin of New York, attorney for the National Council on Crime and Delinquency which is sponsoring the model act.

No state has adopted the entire act despite endorsement by an advisory council of 50 judges although some states have adopted part of it and added sections to their existing penal codes.

Rubin said most present sentencing laws are a failure and he blamed many prison riots on "chaotic sentencing practices."

The model act, which drew critical comments and questions from committee members would divide all criminals into dangerous and non-dangerous classes.

The act provides no death penalty with life imprisonment the maximum sentence for first degree murder. For all other dangerous crimes, the maximum term would be 30 years.

The top sentence for non-dangerous criminals would be five years, including parole, and they would be eligible for parole immediately after sentencing.

The act also would create a board of psychiatrists with the power to reverse any judge's decision that a criminal was or was not dangerous.

Rep. Keith Bulen, R-Indianapolis, the committee chairman, complained that the model gives judges no discretion."

State Police Supt. George Everett said professional criminals "obey the law only when they're behind bars although the model act terms them non-dangerous and calls for a five-year maximum sentence."

Test I & M Plant Later This Month

The revolutionary new 600,000-kilowatt Unit 4 addition to the Tanners Creek generating plant of Indiana & Michigan Electric company in Lawrenceburg will produce its first electricity in initial tests later this month, R. E. Doyle, Jr., I&M vice president and general manager, announced today.

Commercial operation of Unit 4 in May will increase the plant's capacity to 1,125,000 kw and make it the largest plant in the Hoosier state selling electric energy to the private consumer. It also will become the largest of the 15 major generating stations in the seven-state system of American Electric Power company, I&M's parent firm.

Robert H. Lawson, resident engineer in charge of construction of unit 4, reported these construction milestones as final preparations for rolling the turbine were being made:

* 47,764 tons of concrete poured, including 3,221 cubic yards contained in the 550-foot stack.

* In pouring concrete, approximately 450,000 square feet of forms were used.

* Structural steel involved in the construction totaled 4,364 tons.

* Reinforcing steel in the concrete required 3,985 tons.

Record Efficiency

The unit is designed to operate at an anticipated heat rate of about 8,500 British thermal units per kilowathour of heat generation, which would establish a new record in the efficiency of the conversion of the energy of coal into electrical energy. The unit is expected to burn about 1,600,000 tons of coal annually, all of which will be delivered via river barge.

At full load, it is estimated that the unit will require 6,000 tons of coal daily and 400,000 gallons per minute of circulating water for steam-condensing purposes.

At the peak of construction there were 850 construction workers at the site, and more than 800 workers were still engaged in the final stages of construction in February.

Rolling of the Unit 4 turbine this month will approximate the 13th anniversary of generation at the Tanners Creek Plant. Its Unit 1 went in service March 21, 1951; a second companion unit of 155,000 kw was placed in service late in 1952 and in December 1954 the larger Unit 3, of 215,000 kw, began commercial operation, increasing the plant's capability to 525,000 kw.

A Republican and a Democrat are next in line — Rep. Earl Wilson, R-Bedford, of the 9th District, and Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Gary, of the 1st.

Sat Out Two Years

Wilson went to Congress in 1940, two years before Madden. But he lost his bid for reelection in 1958 and sat out two years while Madden served continuously from 1942. Each has a total of 22 years as of the end of 1964.

A veteran of 15 years' service is Rep. Ralph Harvey, R-New Castle, of the 10th District. Harvey went to Congress in a special election in 1947 and served continuously except for a two-year vacation from 1959 through 1960 when the voters tried a Democrat.

Halleck Is Dean Of Hoosiers In House

By BOYD GILL United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana has only 11 congressmen but they may boast, if they wish, a total of 150 years of service in the House.

In fact, seven of the 11 have a total of 130 years.

Dean of the delegation of 7 Republicans and 4 Democrats is Rep. Charles A. Halleck, R-Rensselaer, who has served the 2nd District since a special election in 1935, a total of 29 years.

At the peak of construction there were 850 construction workers at the site, and more than 800 workers were still engaged in the final stages of construction in February.

A Republican and a Democrat are next in line — Rep. Earl Wilson, R-Bedford, of the 9th District, and Rep. Ray J. Madden, D-Gary, of the 1st.

However, both Brademas and Roush were elected in 1958 and reelected every two years since.

The four-year congressmen are Rep. Richard Roudabush, R-Noblesville, of the 6th District, and Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Indianapolis, of the 11th.

Each was elected first in 1960.

Ten of the 11 are running for renomination in the May 5 primaries. Only Bruce is not. He chose to seek the U.S. Senate seat of Sen. Vance Hartke, a Democrat.

There are four men in the 14-year bracket—Reps. William G. Bray, R-Martinsville, in the 7th; Rep. Winfield K. Denton, D-Evansville, in the 8th, and E. Ross Adair, R-Fort Wayne, in the 4th.

Adair and Bray have served continuously since 1950. Denton went to Congress two years earlier than that but sat out 1953-54 when the voters chose a Republican.

Although one could hardly call them freshmen, the four remaining Hoosier House members have from 4 to 6 years of service.

Brademas Has Seniority

The six-year men are Rep. J. Edward Roush, D-Huntington, of the 5th. Brademas actually has a few months' seniority over Roush because of an election mixup in 1960 in which Roush's Republican foe, George Chambers of Anderson, was certified by the State of Indiana as victor over Roush and had to wait until mid-year of 1961 before he was seated officially on the basis of a House election.
