Receipts Gain In Sectional Tourney Here

Receipts at the Adams Central sectional tourney the last week in February totaled $4,360 an increase of $100.50 over the 1963 receipts, according to the financial report released today by Carl Honaker, Adams Central high school principal and tourney manager.

All sessions of the tourney were sellouts in advance, with 2,152 tickets at 50 cents each sold at the Wednesday and Thursday night sessions, and 2,152 tickets at $1 each for the Saturday afternoon and night sessions. In addition, Adams Central paid admission for 28 concession workers at each session.

Deducted from these receipts were expenses of $1,283, leaving a first balance of $3,077. Listed in these expenditures were these items: meals, $320; referees $311.50; scorers, $20; timers, $20; help, $307.50; printing, $166.05; incidentals $29.30; basketball, $23.95; janitors, $37.50; tickets, $47.10.

Deducted from this first balance were: tourney center school, $150; transportation of teams, $345.60; tourney center school, $100; IHSA, one per cent of fourth balance, $24.81. This left a total of $2,456.59 for distribution to the eight participating schools.

Each school receives $153.53 on the pro rata basis, and the following amounts on an enrollment basis: Adams Central $199.67; Berne, $169.85; Decatur, $229.18; Decatur Catholic, $133.64; Geneva, $114.48; Hoagland, $129.38; Monmouth, $96.90; Monroeville, $94.25.

Checks sent to each school, including meal expense, round trip mileage, pro rata share and enrollment basis share, are as follows:

Adams Central, $393.20; Berne, $386.42; Decatur Catholic, $354.05; Decatur, $510.59; Geneva $354.09; Hoagland, $407.39; Monmouth, $328.83; Monroeville, $387.62.

The six named were Jim Davis, Colorado; Wayne Estes, Utah State; Les Hunter, Loyola of Illinois; Howard Komives, Bowling Green; Doug Moon, Utah and Bud Koper, Oklahoma City.

Rex Mundi Is Favored Team At Evansville

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—The South remains unpredictable in Indiana's high school basketball tourney.

Last year Terre Haute Garfield was the big surprise and made the four-team state finals from the Evansville semi-state. The Purple Eagles were completely overlooked in pre-tourney speculation, perhaps justified. They lost to eventual runnerup South Bend Central by 27 points.

And who would have thought that two teams beaten 14 times during the season would gain the Southern semi-state this time?

Martinsville and Springs Valley made it, and both are underdogs in Saturday's afternoon session at Roberts Municipal Stadium. Springs Valley, a tourney finalist in 1958, meets Seymour while Martinsville goes against Evansville Rex Mundi.

Martinsville is one of three former state champs left. Seymour, like Rex Mundi, has never been in the final four.

Rex Mundi Favored

Rex Mundi, a first-time sectional-regional winner, has the advantage of playing at home for the third consecutive week and thus should be favored.

Coach Jerry Altstadt's Monarchs, the first parochial team ever in the "Sweet Sixteen," also boast the best record of the foursome—24-2. Only Indianapolis Washington and Evansville Central, both "Big 10" members during the season, beat Rex Mundi during the season—Central in the next-to-last game before the sectionals. Both were eliminated in the first week of the state tourney.

Between its first loss to the Indianapolis crew and its last to its city rival, Rex Mundi put together a 15-game winning streak. Jerry Mattingly, a 6-1 senior, and 6-4 junior Earl Schneider have been two of Altstadt's steadiest performers.

Luck and Effort

It takes a combination of luck and an extra special coaching and playing effort for a pair of big-time losers to get this far. Both Springs Valley and Martinsville were relative "soft touch" teams during the season, with Martinsville playing a considerably tougher schedule in the South Central Conference, the same league high-flying Columbus belongs to.

Seymour, 22-3, beat Martinsville in an SCC game during the season, 71-67, but the others have not met.

Huntington, Rushville and Columbus beat coach Barney Scott's Owls, and all three are still in the running. Seymour pins its hopes on four lettermen, headed by 6-4 Charlie Phillips and 6-2 Phil Schroer. Statistically, there is little to choose between the four. Their offensive averages range from 67.1 points per tourney game for Martinsville to 78 for Seymour. Their defensive statistics range from 53.3 points for Rex Mundi to nearly 65 for Seymour and all gained the third round by a winning margin of about 10 points or better.

Three From County On All-EWV Team

Don Egley of the Adams Central sectional champions, Dean Schieferstein of Monmouth, and Mike Newcomer of Geneva were named to the first all-star team of the Eastern Wabash Valley Conference, announced Thursday evening at a dinner meeting of the league at the Dutch Mill in Bluffton.

Five boys were named on the first all-star squad and five on the second team. Joining the Adams county players on the first team were Denny Cotton and Dean Elzey of the conference champion Ossian Bears.

Newcomer led all scorers in Adams county during the season, for the second year in succession, and Egley and Schieferstein were also among the top ten county scorers. All three are seniors.

Second Five

Four Adams county players were named to the second all-star team, including two Berne players, Loren Wanner and Fred Clauser. Tony Ehrsam of Adams Central and Danny Conrad of Monmouth were also named to the second squad, along with Gary Netherland of Lancaster.

Wanner and Clauser are seniors, while Ehrsam and Conrad are juniors. These four were also included among or near the top ten scorers in Adams county last season.

Each of the six clubs in the Eastern Wabash Valley Conference is represented on the 10-player all-star squad.

Braves May Make Bid For Howard

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—Rumors spread today that the strange story of Frank Howard, who is quitting the game he loves because he doesn't feel up to playing it, may have its climax in Milwaukee.

Howard's break with the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers appeared complete when his letter to E. J. "Buzzie" Bavasi, Dodger general manager, announcing his decision to quit leaked out Thursday.

Howard, reached at his home here, was angered and called the announcement "premature." But he said the news leak might strengthen his decision.

John McHale, president of the Milwaukee Braves, said for the record he really doesn't think the big power hitter was serious. Howard at 27 has yet to reach the brilliant peak baseball men have predicted for him since he burned up Big Ten diamonds at Ohio State.

"After all, it's contract time," said McHale. Speculation has it Howard is using his retirement threat as a wedge to collect more money, although Howard denied it.

But McHale couldn't hide his excitement at the thought of the 6-foot-8, 258 pound slugger in the Milwaukee lineup. He said the Braves might make a bid for him, and admitted third baseman Eddie Mathews might be involved in such a deal.

Howard has been a Green Bay resident since 1958, when he was a home run king for the old Green Bay Bluejays, a Dodger farm team.
