JURY OF EIGHT

a just and fair verdict, compatible with modern science—that is what the world wants to see in justice from this community.

"I'll stand here and argue forever against putting a man in Bedlam who has a personality defect and who has epilepsy. Acquit him—by reason of insanity. You can find him insane now and put him some place for treatment, after finding him insane at the time of the shooting."

"You send him where he belongs."

Says Shooting Planned
Dist. Atty. Henry Wade ended the summations with a brief but loudly fervent argument that premeditation in the Nov. 24 killing of Lee Harvey Oswald had been proven in testimony that Ruby had said he first thought about slaying him two days before that when he saw his "sarcastic sneer" in the police lineup.

He also cited testimony about Ruby's having said "I hope I killed the son of a bitch" a few minutes after he had fired a shot into President Kennedy's accused assassin and while Oswald still was writhing and moaning on the floor of a police office.

"He had malice," said Wade. "You have a cold-blooded murder here. Ruby robbed the people of Dallas of the right to try Oswald — not only Dallas but robbed the whole country."

"Jack Ruby was a glory-seeker who wanted to go down in history as the man who killed the alleged assassin."

"I ask you, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, to show Jack Ruby the same mercy, compassion, and sympathy that he showed Oswald. I ask you to return a verdict of guilty of murder with malice and of death. You can write a verdict that will ring out all over this country and this nation."

The jury, which must write the sentence as well as the sentence, a sentence of any number of years but not less than two; it may suspend sentence altogether if it decides to give him two to five years; it may find him not guilty by insanity, just plain not guilty by failure of the state to prove murder beyond a reasonable doubt—or it could be a hung jury.
