

Changing Our Ways

If you are putting a ZIP-Code number (and the correct one, we hope) on the letters which you address, the recipient should receive them 1 day faster, if they are going over 150 miles, according to the local post office.

Not only are small users, like you and me, utilizing this advanced system, but all of the big publishers — like Readers Digest — are switching over. The Decatur Daily Democrat began switching on renewals last July, and by the end of June will complete the transition.

In the nation's huge post offices, such as in New York, Chicago, and other cities, an electronic sorter will soon be in use, and ZIP numbers will be absolutely necessary. The contract has been let for the machines.

All business firms should have the ZIP code in its return address, as well as on the letters it sends just as fast as it can learn the code numbers.

Postmasters the country over are discussing the ZIP program with their big mailers, with service clubs and business groups, in the schools, with all federal agencies, all printers, and other mail users. Why? To help these people change over now, before it is absolutely required, so there will be no last-minute headlong rush and bother.

The code is absolutely essential to a modern post office system, like the number on your check, or any other number. Some people who have a little semantic trouble disassociating themselves from their names and numbers feel that this is some kind of invasion of rights, but it is not — it is a chance to receive mail faster even as population numbers explode, and highways become clogged.

The program has been moving gradually into effect for five years — it is bipartisan, in that it was started under a Republican postmaster-general, and is, of course, being continued under a Democrat, as the post office modernizes with the rest of the world.

Carl H. Smith To Retire From G. E.

Carl H. Smith, an employee of the General Electric company since 1920 and a foreman at the local plant since 1937, has elected to retire from the company, effective April 1.

Smith began his many years of service with the company at the Port Wayne plant February 16, 1920. In July of 1920 he was transferred to the new plant in Decatur and was employed in the rotor section.

In August of 1930 he was advanced to a leading operator and in May of 1936 was appointed an assistant foreman on the flange line. March 31, 1937, he was appointed as foreman of the flange line. Since 1952 he has been a tool room and also a maintenance foreman.

Smith and his wife reside at 121 N. Tenth St. in Decatur, and are planning a trip to the New York World's fair this summer. They will probably spend the winter months in Florida or Arizona.

Shower Curtains

Heavy seersucker makes a practical and attractive shower curtain. Use a bright stripe to match the color of your bathroom. You'll find that seersucker sheds water very well, and dries rapidly.

Pope Issues Appeal To End Persecution

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — An impassioned appeal from Pope Paul VI for an end to persecution of Roman Catholics set the tone today for the final solemn observances of Lent before the church bells of Rome ring out the joyful message of the Resurrection.

Holy Saturday was observed as a day of prayer in churches still shrouded in Lenten mourning.

Pope Paul carried a wooden cross Friday night in the most imposing of Rome's Lenten rites — a procession to the Stations of the Cross in the ancient city.

Looking out over the 1,800-year-old Colosseum, where early Christians were martyred, the pontiff spoke out forcefully against the "unjustified treatment" meted out to the church in many parts of the world.

"The body of Christ is morally and heavily crucified still today in many regions of the world: the church of silence is still the suffering church, the patient church, and in many places, the suffocated church," the Pope said.

The pontiff appealed for peace but expressed pessimism about the possibility of achieving it through exclusively human efforts.

"Human efforts, through very noble and worthy of applause and support, succeed with difficulty in guarding its (peace's) integrity and maintaining it with different means which are not those of fear and temporal interest," he said.

Pope Paul will say Mass on Sunday morning on a portable altar set up on the steps of St. Peter's before delivering his Easter message and his blessing to the city and the world.

THE PROMOTION and transfer of Gene M. Patton to the position of senior engineer in the engineering department at Central Soya's Fort Wayne headquarters was announced today by J. F. Azbell, manager of engineering. Patton is being transferred from the Indianapolis plant of Central Soya, where he held the position of feed mill superintendent since 1961.

He joined the company in 1955 as draftsman-engineer at the company's Marion, Ohio, plant. In 1956, Patton took a leave of absence to serve in the United States Armed Forces. He returned to Central Soya in 1958 and held the position of plant engineer at the company's Chattanooga, Tenn., plant until 1960, at which time he was promoted to feed mill supervisor of the Decatur plant.
