man formerly lived in Hartford township, and attended school there. Evidence was submitted to him, and the case taken under advisement.

On May 4 the petition for a temporary injunction was denied, and no appeal was taken by the plaintiffs.

Present Case June 7, 1962
Then on June 7, 1962 the present action was filed, Cause No. 21192 in the Adams circuit court, 22833 in Wells circuit court, and 17032 in Huntington circuit court, and now N-30510 in the Indiana supreme court.

Plaintiffs in the case, as originally filed, were: Robert J. Rice, Elbert J. Fuhrman, Robert F. Carr, Russel Fleming, Leo Workinger, Walter Hildebrand, Otto Boerger, Martin Bulmahn, Ervin Fuelling, Everett Singleton, Fred Bueberich, Myron Simmons, Thomas Rhoades, Gall Runyon, Grant Lindsey, H. D. Moser, Theodore Wilhoite, Malvin Banta, and Wayne Derrickson.

Defendants Named
The action was filed against August Selking, G. M. Grabill, Harold B. Schwartz, L. Luther Yager, L. A. Mann, Randolph H. Everett, Elmer D. Johnson, G. W. Vizard, as members of the reorganization board; Clarence Bultemeier, Louis Krueckeberg, Herb Banning, James Burk, members of the North Adams board at that time; Frederick Fosnaugh, Robert Lehman, Leslie B. Lehman, Harold D. Sprung, Walter Muth, members of the South Adams board.

On June 15, 1962 the plaintiffs filed an affidavit for change of venue from the county, and all defendants made a special appearance on June 20. The motion was denied June 24 on the grounds that the plaintiffs had not complied with the law regarding notices in vacation.

Meanwhile, on June 20, the plaintiffs petitioned for a restraining order and injunction in the Allen circuit court; this was dismissed by the plaintiffs June 30. On June 30, after several other tries, a petition for a restraining order and injunction was filed and granted by the Allen superior court.

On July 3 the plaintiffs filed an affidavit for a change of venue from the county, or in lieu thereof, from the judge. On July 16 the matter was venued to the Wells circuit court, Judge Homer J. Byrd declined jurisdiction because he had previously heard the Wells reorganization case.

Simmons Rules For Plaintiff
Victor H. Simmons, former judge of the Blackford circuit court, assumed jurisdiction July 23, and set the case for July 31. On August 3 Judge Simmons found for the plaintiffs and granted a temporary restraining order.

On August 8, 1962 an undertaking by the plaintiffs was filed, but no further action taken to secure a permanent injunction.

On April 15, 1963 Berne-French appeared and moved to dissolve the temporary injunction; on April 25, 1963, Schurger, acting for the school reorganization board, filed a motion for a change of venue, and it was granted April 29, going to Huntington, where the case was decided in favor of the defendants on July 3, the temporary restraining order being dissolved.

Both North and South Adams have been in existence since that time, and both boards have been administering the schools under their jurisdiction.

there is a direct and definite relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer, according to all the available research and scientific data. During the last 30 years while deaths from all other causes dropped 18%, deaths from lung cancer rose 953%. This was a rise far in excess of the population rise for the period. According to the society's leaflet entitled "Shall I Smoke?" there were 2500 deaths from lung cancer in America in 1930; 11,000 in 1945; and 41,000 in 1963.

"The American public health association estimates that if present trends continue about one million youngsters now in school will die of lung cancer before 70 years of age. Studies and research definitely show that regardless of whether you live in the country or city the more you smoke the greater the possibility of lung cancer. This seems to disprove theories being advanced that lung cancer may be due to air pollution rather than cigarette smoking.

"All persons and groups, but especially parents and school teachers, need to become acquainted with the Cancer society's films and literature concerning lung cancer due to smoking," she concluded.
