12-Year-Old Boy Spelling Champion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Kerek, 12, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, won the 37th annual National Spelling Bee today in an all-Ohio, all-boy final. Young Kerek battled back and forth with Robert O. Mathews, 13, of Columbus in a tense showdown on jawbreakers before finally winning the trophy and other top prizes.

When only two spellers remain, the winner must spell what his opponent misspelled and then another word to win Mathews stabled on "geophagy," which he spelled "geophagy." The word means the practice of eating dirt.

Young Kerek negotiated that one correctly and then nailed down the championship by breezing through "sycophant." The contest came down to a head-to-head match between two boys from Ohio after a third boy, David E. Labell, 14, of Greensboro, N.C., representing the Winston-Salem Journal & Sentinel, was ousted. Kerek was sponsored by the Akron (Ohio) Beacon-Journal and Mathews represented the Columbus Citizen-Journal.
