

Kennedy To Retire From Cabinet Post

LONDON (UPI) — Robert F. Kennedy said today he will quit as attorney general after the presidential elections in November.

"I am not going to stay on as attorney general," he said. "I was appointed by President Kennedy, and it seems to me that President Johnson would like to start out with new people appointed by himself."

Kennedy made the statement on his arrival here on the way home from a tour of Poland and West Germany.

He arrived aboard a special U.S. Air Force plane with his wife, Ethel, and their three older children.

Asked about reports that he would like to live outside the United States, Kennedy said:

"I would never live permanently in another country. I am interested in government service."

"After November I don't know what my plans will be. I have thought about taking the family abroad for at least year or so."

He said England is one country he has considered.

Before leaving Warsaw, Kennedy called on Poland to help ease Soviet-American tensions and end the East-West division of Europe. He referred to Poland's "special position" between Moscow and Washington.

At news conference at the end of a hectic three-day unofficial visit which raised the eyebrows of Communist officials but left thousands of Poles cheering, Kennedy said Poland enjoys "a special position in the world for it has political ties with the Soviet Union and personal ties with the United States."

"Poland, therefore, has a unique opportunity to contribute to European security and the easing of tension between the United States and the Soviet Union," the attorney general told the news conference. He also invoked the famous "let us begin" phrase from his late brother's inaugural address.

"Our objective is clear," the attorney general said. "It is to facilitate the reconciliation of Eastern and Western Europe in association with the United States."

"This is the only sure guarantee against nuclear war, whether by design or accident."

"As President Kennedy said in his inaugural address, 'Let us begin.' Just because we can't see clearly the end of the

No Polio Cases In Indiana This Year

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana apparently went through the first half of 1964 without a single polio case. The latest morbidity report of the State Board of Health listed no cases through June 27, compared with 2 this time last year and a 5-year median of 2.

obviously approved the levy, that will adequately but not lavishly meet the projected needs of the school district, and that it was high time all of the people started thinking about all of the pupils and stopped grinding their old, local axes about individual schools.

No Other Cumments

Harris then asked several times if anyone had any more to say, and when no one spoke up, he explained that there was nothing new about building funds, that they have been in effect since 1945.

He explained that he and Poff would then examine all of the schools, and he invited anyone who desired to accompany them; several objectors, as well as several in favor, did this.

They stated that they would make their report back to the full commission, which would, in due time, consider the matter, and let the local people know if they levy is approved or rejected.

The meeting was well-conducted throughout, the audience was attentive and polite, and Harris complimented them on it, despite the hot day. The hearing lasted one hour.

Courthouse Clock Off Due To Fire Hazard

Decatur residents who've been looking at the courthouse clock and getting the same monotonous 12:30 reading for the past week probably won't feel any better to know that it will be at least several days until the Roman-numeralled relic begins ticking again.

Electric power for the old timekeeper has been temporarily disconnected because Indiana and Michigan Electric company deemed that the wiring which fed it constituted a fire hazard. The wiring was to have been replaced some time ago, but the work has not yet been done.

Divers Search For 18 Missing In Rig Blast

MORGAN CITY, La. (UPI) — The Coast Guard prepared to send divers to the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico today to search for 18 crewmen missing and presumed killed in the explosion of an oil exploration vessel.

The 260-foot rig, C. P. Baker, exploded and sank Tuesday when its drilling bit struck an unexpected natural gas pocket. Two bodies were recovered and 23 burned survivors were rescued from the flaming sea.

"If hell is any worse, I don't want to go there," crewman L. C. Franks of Winnfield, La., said.

The survivors told of jumping into the flaming Gulf after the 260-foot catamaran rig's drilling bit struck an unexpected gas pocket causing the explosion.

Some of the survivors leaped swam to the safety of clear water. One told of swimming underwater to avoid the flames. Another said a fellow crewman saved his life by telling him to hold on to his life preserver and towed him to safety.

Other survivors told of being jolted awake to find their cabins in flames and their own hair and clothing on fire.

One survivor who was on the drilling tower at the time of the explosion said the entire rig started to vibrate and then everything seemed to go up at once.

The vessel, the C. P. Baker operated by a drilling company for Pan-American Petroleum Corp., went down within minutes after the explosion. All the survivors had jumped off the vessel before it went under.

Only two bodies were recovered Tuesday after the 23 burned survivors were plucked from the water. Two men aboard rescue boats also were injured.

Most of the 18 men still missing were believed to be inside the wreck about 186 feet down.

County coroner Dr. G. P. Musso said all indications pointed to an accident which could not have been avoided.

The Coast Guard said the search for the missing crewmen would resume at dawn when divers were to be sent down to the wreck.
