

Increase In Girls' School Staff Is Urged

Correction Commissioner Arthur Campbell recommended today that the staff of the Indiana Girls School be increased about 50 per cent and housing facilities replaced or extensively remodeled.

Campbell made the statement in a report to a new legislative committee shortly after a Sept. 10 riot at the school. The committee, headed by State Sen. J. R. Rees, R-Columbus, and State Rep. Richard Bodine, D-Mishawaka, held its first hearing today.

Campbell's plan calls for increased staff expenditures of about $70,000 for the rest of this fiscal year ending next June 30. Estimated costs of the added staff on a biennial basis were $283,286.

The school also is under investigation by a Marion County grand jury, which is questioning present and former employees and inmates and police officers who answered the riot call and later reported evidence of homosexual activity.

Campbell urged that seven instructors be added to the teaching staff and that a goal be set under which about one-half of the staff would be men.

"This will add to creating a more normal school environment," Campbell said.

Campbell also proposed creation of a job classification called "cottage mother" and the hiring of 12 "mothers," one for each cottage. They would "assume a role in which a parent identity is created for the residents," he said.

The house mother job would pay $315 or $325 a month and hours would be 2 to 10 p.m. Among her duties would be supervision of homework, overseeing of ordering and repair of clothing, and aiding in recreation. They would need high school diplomas and three years experience with youngsters.

Campbell also urged that 45 employees be assigned to security functions. The present staff on 115 includes some security personnel who must perform other duties.

Escapes from the school are easy and frequent since the girls need only to outrun the employees.

Campbell also urged a fenced

NFO Blocks Chutes At South St. Paul

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—National Farmers Organization members blocked livestock chutes at the South St. Paul Stockyards today. Police arrested one man they said attempted to throw a sickle bar in front of a livestock truck.

Authorities booked James J. Ryan, 26, West Concord, Minn., on a charge of disorderly conduct. An estimated 30 to 35 pickup trucks driven by members of the NFO blocked entry to the hog chutes. Police said each truck had one animal in the back. Apparently the men did not intend to unload the animals but merely wished to block entry to the chutes, police said.

A crowd of about 200 NFO members milled around the chutes and one member was cheered as he walked a hog through the stockyards on a leash.

At Murphysboro, Ill., county authorities, a state deputy fire marshal and state police detectives investigated the dynamite bombing Wednesday night of a garage owned by the co-owner of a trucking firm.

Authorities said five to six sticks of dynamite were used in the blast that blew out a three-foot square section of concrete flooring. The explosion knocked out a section of tin siding and blew out windows in the garage owned by Ronald Flowers.

Flowers and his father, Claude, operate a truck service which hauls livestock, fertilizer, coal and grain. Flowers said tires on trucks operated by his outdoor area for "a vigorous, well-planned games program." His proposals for physical facilities left it up to the committee to decide whether the present cottages, described as "fire-traps" by the state architect, should be replaced or renovated.

But he also proposed construction of an activities building and remodeling of one room in the school building to permit psychological, counseling and chaplain interviews.

His program called for employment of additional counselors, a contractual arrangement with a doctor for a daily sick call visit, and an extra practical nurse.

Campbell also urged addition of an assistant superintendent at a cost of about $6,600.

Bishops From Four Countries Hit Declaration

menical Council bishops from four countries today attacked and American-backed declaration that all men have the right to worship God as they please.

Two Americans replied that a council declaration in favor of religious liberty is essential to the "dignity of man." They were Bishop Ernest Primeau of Manchester, Vt., and Msgr. Joseph Buckley, American superior general of the Society of Mary.

But Italians, Spaniards, an Irish cardinal and a Brazilian bishop all objected that freedom to spread all religion was "like sowing cockle in the field of the Lord."

Eleven bishops in all warned of grave dangers that might stem from freedom of worship. The archbishop of Saragossa, Spain, Pietro Cantero, said flatly "There is no freedom of religion before God. Man cannot choose when God has spoken."

The proposed declaration proclaims that religious liberty, the right of every man to follow the dictates of his own conscience in religious belief and practice, "must be recognized and respected by all and everywhere."

Three U.S. cardinals outspokenly supported the declaration in the face of conservative counterattacks Wednesday.

Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston led off the American presentation by declaring that recognition of religious liberty is necessary in the world today to show "a decent respect for the opinion of mankind."

Albert Cardinal Meyer of Chicago and Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis backed up Cushing's view that "we must give to others what we claim for ourselves."

Another Spaniard, Bishop Anastasio Granados of Toledo, complained that this would be new church doctrine, radically reversing the traditional Catholic view that "rights are for truth, tolerance is for error."

Msgr. Buckley, although backing the U.S. view as regards the free exercise or practice of religion, leaned towards the conservatives in warning that men privately have no choice except to believe in God, as taught by the Catholic Church.
