Barry Carries Vote Campaign Into Michigan

WITH GOLDWATER IN Michigan (UPI)—GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater today carried his campaign for votes and party unity into the harmony - reluctant domain of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

The Goldwater camp hoped Romney's welcome for the Arizona senator might be as warm as the carefully measured tribute he won Friday from his former foe, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

But they had no assurance that Romney's introduction of Goldwater at an afternoon ex-rost at Midland, Mich., would be anything more than a token presentation.

Goldwater, flying from Louisville, Ky., scheduled Saturday speeches at Niles, Midland and Detroit. His day climaxed a week that has taken him into the South, Southwest, central farm belt, New England, New York and Kentucky.

Emphasizes Unity

The presidential candidate placed as much emphasis on party unity in New England and New York speeches Friday as he did on denouncing President Johnson.

He told New York voters bluntly to "quit this childish horseplay of being divided."

And to show his own good faith, he called for the re-election of Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, who has refused to have any part in the Goldwater campaign.

Rockefeller introduced Goldwater at Albany with a declaration of respect for his "dedication and his willingness to fight for his philosophy."

The governor said the senator is one of the "most dedicated, hardworking and courageous" of Republicans.

Friday night Goldwater repeated his unity appeal to 20,000 persons attending the National Federation of Republican Women's Convention in Louisville.

Urges Party Unity

He urged to "get his party united so we can present the strongest minority party we ever had." He said it is neither wise nor prudent for Republicans to say "We are going to sit this one out because I don't like the way he parts his hair."

Goldwater's arrival in Michigan coincided with the strike, shutdown of the vast General Motors Corp. operation. But the candidate, whose past views on "right-to-work" legislation have aroused labor's ire, was expected to sidestep any involvement in that contract renewal controversy.

There was little doubt that Goldwater would urge full party support for Romney, a candidate for re-election as he did for Keating.

Job Security For Railroad Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A labor dispute which threatened to shut down a major portion of the nation's railroads was settled Friday when workers received the job security guarantees they sought.

Federal mediator Francis A. O'Neill said the dispute over automation and job security between 150,000 members of six shopcraft unions and the railroads had been resolved and that "all strike action is canceled."

The single issue in contention was a union request for 60 per cent pay for a maximum of five years for any trained shop employee laid off because of automation.

Representatives of management and craftsmen who do rail and maintenance work already had settled issues involving contract work outside railroad shops, the use of supervisors, assignment of authority to couple air and hydraulic hoses, and the specifying of outlying stations to be manned by union employees.

All major U.S. railroads but the Pennsylvania, the Long Island, the Southern and the Florida East Coast were affected. These four lines already had settled the issues with the unions or were not parties to the dispute.

The state's sales for August were $10,101,094, which is a loss of 14.9 per cent compared with last August.

Twenty-five of the state's 92 counties reported sales gains for the month when compared with sales of August, 1963.

Peace And Freedom Emphasized By LBJ

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) —The voice was President Johnson's but the campaign slogan was, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's.

Turning the oratorical tables on his Republican opponent, Johnson told enthusiastic crowds in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas Friday:

"You know in your heart I am right."

That was the President's biggest applause-getter before a throng of many thousands Friday night at Texarkana, where the platform and audience straddled the Texas - Arkansas border.

He used a similar line earlier at Oklahoma City, opening the 1964 state fair. Laughter from the crowd indicated that many recognized the phrase as a plagiarism of Goldwater's own theme.

"In your heart you know we're right."

Johnson's speeches at those cities and earlier at Eufaula, Okla., and El Paso, Tex., technically were non-political. But winding up his one-day southwestern tour at Texarkana, Johnson pulled out some partisan stops.

Returns To Ranch

Then he flew with his wife, Lady Bird, to their ranch to rest for the weekend.

At Texarkana, Johnson stayed with the peace and freedom emphasis of his prior addresses. But he went several steps further by saying:

"Who leads America must speak what is deep in the hearts of Americans—not what comes from the top of the head."

"The ultimate test of moral fitness for men who seek a public trust is their devotion to perfection of our system and their devotion to justice in our society."

"All that we are—all that we ever hope to be—is placed in mortal jeopardy by those who set class against class, creed against creed, color against color, and section against section."

"But there are voices abroad in the land that have a strange and brittle tone. They cry out that we are weak and America is soft and blind. They insist the way to the future is the road back into the past."

Truth Is Simple

"The truth is simple and the truth is this:

"Our beloved nation was never stronger than it is at this hour."

"Our nation was never more prosperous than it is right now. And all of you know in your hearts that I am right."

Johnson did not mention Goldwater at any point in his speeches.

By the end of his 16½ hour speaking tour, Johnson showed fatigue. His voice was hoarse. And he referred to one of his Texarkana hosts, Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus, as Orville Freeman, Johnson's agriculture secretary.

Alice Voglewede Is Wed In Morning Rites

Miss Alice Kathryn Voglewede, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Voglewede 603 Madison street, and James Weber, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Weber, Quincy, Mich., were united in marriage before the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph's altars graced with gold altar vases filled with large white mums and oak foliage. In the foreground were standing beauty vases filled with white, gold and bronze mums and oak foliage. White satin bows marked the pews and a white carpet adorned the aisle. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Simeon Schmitt officiated the double ring ceremony at the St. Mary's Catholic church, which took place at 10 o'clock this morning.

Wedding music was presented by the men's choir, directed by Edward Heimann and accompanied by Mrs. John Girard, organist.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of faille satin. The bodice with its high scoop neckline and long tapered sleeves was highlighted by a wide contour midriff encrusted with chalk beads and opalescent bugle beads. The controlled skirt swept in unpressed pleats to a chapel train. Her tiered veil of imported illusion was caught to a clache of lace petals edged with pearls and studded with crystals. She carried a white orchid stephanotis and ivy with white satin streamers arranged on her own white Bible.

A square neckline and elbow length sleeves styled the bodice with an embroidered organza band encircling the waist of the controlled skirt. A matching head bow with bouffant veil completed their ensembles. They each carried cascade arrangements of white, gold, and bronze pompons tied with white streamers and green foliage.

The best man was Charles J. Voglewede, brother of the bride, and Glen VanDyke and Walter Weaver, friends of the groom, served as ushers.

To her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Voglewede wore a golden lurez crepe ensemble sheath dress with a jacket. She wore a cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Weber wore a beige A-line dress with brown accessories and a white orchid corsage.
