The halls of dear old Decatur high were decked with poster, notebook paper, and even scraps of paper as a means of campaigning before elections this week. The students took a great effort in campaigning this year.

These students are the new class officers for the senior class: Bob DeVoss president; Jim Brown, vice president; Marilyn Harman, secretary, and Jane Jacobs, treasurer. The sponsors for this class are Mr. Feasel, of the art department, and Miss Weidler, English.

The new junior officers are Tom Schnepp, president; Tom Hakes, vice president; Jayne Macklin, secretary; Carol Hoverman, treasurer. Their sponsors are Mrs. Houk, home economics; and Mr. Journey, biology.

Dave Spiegel is the new sophomore class president; Dave Baughn, the vice president; Sally Fletcher, secretary; Cheri Colter, treasurer. Mr. Kelly, speech, and Miss Vera, Latin and French, are their sponsors.

Mrs. Clark and Mr. Scheider, are the sponsors of the new freshmen. Jerry Brown is the president; Ron Lesiuk, vice president; Carol Cook, secretary; Darlene Gase, treasurer; John Lengerich. This is a branch of the National Honor Society and will participate in many events of the N. H. S.

For Students

Students who carry a rule with their books will find it helpful to use a rubber band stretched around the rule lengthwise and over one outside cover of one of their books. While slipping a rule between the pages of a book will tear the pages and damage the binding, carrying it outside and against the cover of the book does not harm the book. To prevent the rubber band from slipping off the ends of the rule, cut a notch in each end to accommodate it.

The unique advantages of the all-electric laundry let you "Waltz through Washday." It's flameless—free of combustion by-products. With no flame or fuel, the electric laundry gives you greater peace of mind.

Here are a few benefits that only the flameless electric dryer can give you:

Lower costs. The flameless electric dryer has fewer parts. This manufacturing savings is passed on to you through a lower retail price. And, the cost of installation is less because there's just one connection and no flue is needed.

Minimum maintenance and repair. Since there are fewer parts in a flameless electric dryer, there's less to go wrong. In fact, there's virtually no maintenance required. There's no igniting device to get out of order or combustion by-products to clog up the operating mechanism.

Fresh, clean clothes. Your clothes are dried by radiant heat in pure, fresh air. There's no fading or yellowing, no odors which linger in your clothes and laundry room.

Another convenience to help you "Waltz through Washday" is the quick-recovery flameless electric water heater. It supplies plenty of hot water load after load, even if you are using hot water elsewhere in the house. In an electric water heater, the heating elements heat the water directly. You don't have to heat the tank first, so electric water heater tanks last longer.

Here are some of the other advantages you'll like about flameless electric water heating:

Highest efficiency of any water heater. Since no flue is required, no heat is wasted up the flue. You can install an electric water heater where the hot water is needed—long pipe runs can be avoided. Thick tank insulation keeps the water hot longer with less reheating.

No maintenance or repair problems. The flameless electric water heater is dependable and completely automatic. There's no maintenance—like replacing the vent pipe or cleaning away carbon deposits. Electric water heaters require no vents or pilot lights.

Two electric water heater exclusives. Thermostats automatically turn on the heating elements when the water in the tank drops below the pre-set temperature. Mixing of cold water with the hot water already in the tank is minimized, giving you a constant supply of hot water.

These are a few of the advantages of the all-electric laundry. Why don't you visit your electric appliance dealer and ask him about a flameless electric washer, dryer and water heater for your home?

dryers and water heaters—
