Only Minor Damage In City Accidents

A pair of two-car accidents with only minor damage each, occurred in the city Tuesday afternoon.

Howard Hunt, 47, of Ashland, Ky., struck a car owned by Herbert Fravel, 334 S. Fifth St., while attempting to park at 12:48 p.m. at 130 N. Second St. Hunt was backing into the parking space, behind Fravel's auto, when his car struck the left rear of the Fravel vehicle. Damages were estimated at $10 to Fravel's car and $5 to Hunt's auto.

At 4:34 p.m., a car driven by Howard B. Eley, 68, of 1020 Central Ave., backed into a car operated by Albert W. Brushwiller, 71, 803 N. Second St.

Eley was backing from a parking area at the corner of Marshall and Ninth streets, and backed into the right side of the Brushwiller auto, which was east-bound on Marshall. Damage to the Brushwiller vehicle was listed at $75, while Eley's car was not damaged.

were allowed to park near the press gate, No. 2. This saved a long bus ride in from the outer parking lots.

Then, the press guide got us in to the bigger, more prominent exhibits without standing in line. Most of the bigger exhibits, such as Ford, General Motors, Coca-Cola, DuPont, etc., had what were called VIP rooms. Here they had a hostess seat you, and you could watch colored TV (the world series was on while we were there) while waiting for the end of the current showing.

As the show ended, we were taken to the special entrance, and allowed to enter the empty theaters, or get right into a car, etc., without standing in line. This is done for the working press only, who want to see as much as possible in a short time, and write about it.

But it really helped, because we could see much more, much faster, and with less fatigue than if we had to stand in line after line. This was really important to us, because we were already pretty well tired out by the UPI conference in Washington, and the long, five-hour drive to New York, before beginning our first seven hours of touring. And we had had to get up so early to make the Washington to New York trip that we had had only two hours of sleep. So our first day at the fair was pretty tiring, even with the press aide's help.

English Press Aide

Our press aide, by the way, was from London, England, and his name was, Greville Howard. He was extremely obliging, and quite a bit of help, advising us as to what the meaning, etc., was of what we saw. When we had any spare time, and at lunch, we discussed things of mutual interest, such as the political situation in England, where his uncle was a staunch conservative leader up for reelection this month, etc.

Tomorrow we will review some of the things we got to see, and our impressions. No doubt many of those who saw the fair this year got similar or different impressions, and would like to compare how certain features impressed us. Others will be interested in what might be of interest to them to see next year.

Sen. Goldwater Is Continuing Accusations

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Sen. Barry M. Goldwater followed up a "fascist" charge against the Democratic party today by accusing President Johnson of "obstruction of justice" in the Bobby Baker case.

The Republican presidential nominee moved into the home territory of former Democratic President Harry S. Truman in a second day of Midwestern campaigning this week. Truman was famed for his "give 'em hell" campaign in 1948 and Goldwater avowedly was doing the same as his election race neared its end.

"Give 'em hell, Barry," a supporter shouted at Des Moines, Iowa, one of Goldwater's stumping stops Tuesday. "That's what I'm trying to do," Goldwater replied amid roaring approval.

The senator climaxed his effort Tuesday night before a wildly cheering throng of some 8,000 supporters who paid $50 apiece to hear him at the Milwaukee Arena. He used a local issue—ouster of Milwaukee alderman Robert Dwyer by the Democratic party for supporting Goldwater—to denounce the Democrats as a "fascist organization."

Goldwater's barnstorming schedule today included stops at Kansas—City, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; and Denver, Colo.

In a speech prepared for a rally at the Liberty Memorial Hall in Kansas City, Mo., today, Goldwater returned to the Bobby Baker issue which up to Tuesday night had highlighted his campaigning day.

Goldwater said at Des Moines that he had just been informed the Senate Rules Committee had called off—until after the Nov. 3 election—its investigation of an alleged $25,000 payment to the Democratic campaign in 1960 which involved former Senate Secretary Robert G. (Bobby) Baker.

Goldwater poured more fuel into this issue in today's Kansas City speech by saying he had no doubt "that this latest Bobby Baker coverup was done at the express order of or with the implicit permission of the man who now occupies the White House."

David Swickard Is Given Extra Credits

David Swickard, 528 Lamberlost in Decatur, is among 57 Indiana University freshmen who qualified for credit in college courses by satisfactorily passing special preschool examinations. The students earned credit hours either through I. U. examinations or college board entrance tests.

By passing a test in a given subject, a student received credit in that subject, and was admitted to either the second-semester course or the second-year course of the subject. Swickard received credit for one semester of history of western civilization and one semester of American history.

Reports For 'Work,' Courthouse Closed

No one can charge that county school superintendent Gerald W. Vizard isn't faithfully attending to his office duties.

While he has been gently chided by the press and his friends for continuing to accept the county school superintendent's salary more than a year after all the schools in the county passed from his jurisdiction, Vizard still reports to the office.

In fact, he even reported to the court house on Monday, with his small, portable TV in his hand, and couldn't understand why the door was still locked at 8:30 a.m.

The scholarly school superintendent, Historical society member and official of the local bank, had forgotten that it was Columbus Day — Oct. 12.

(And we hasten to suggest, least anyone suspect that the TV set was to watch the fifth game of the World Series Monday afternoon, that it is possible the erudite scholar wanted to monitor some of the Purdue University educational programs!)

P.S. — Vizard was not the only person to show up at the court house on Monday — Michael Thoele, Decatur Daily Democrat editorial reporter, who covers the Monday county commissioner meetings, also "tried" the door, before realizing it was Discovery Day.

Cardinals Fourth

K. Boyer struck out. Groat fled out to Maris. McCarver beat out a slow roller to Linz for his fifth straight hit of the series. Shannon struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees Fifth

Tresh hit a ground rule double, the ball bouncing into the left field stands. Peppone struck out. Maxvill threw out C. Boyer. Tresh moving to third on the play. Bouton singled to left center, scoring Tresh to tie the score 1-1. Linz fled out deep to Brock. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Cardinals Fifth

Maxvill fled out to Mantle, who made a one-handed catch after almost misjudging the ball. Simmons popped out to Linz. Flood drew the game's first base on balls. Brock singled to center. Flood moving to third. Bouton fielded White's hopper and made the out at first himself. No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Yankees Sixth

Richardson popped out to Groat. Maris homered over the right field pavilion, putting the Yankees ahead 2-1. The ball was fair by inches. Mantle homered over the right-center field stands at the 322-foot mark to give New York a 3-1 lead. Howard fled out to Shannon. Tresh was called out on strikes. Two runs, two hits, no errors, none left.

Hurricane Isbell Moves On Florida

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Isbell, its 80-mile an hour winds building, moved to within 60 miles of Florida's southern tip today. Storm preparations along the keys were rushed.

Isbell left at least four dead in Cuba and heavy property damage before heading on a northeast course toward the southwest Florida coast. Gusts of up to 100 miles an hour were anticipated in the lower keys during the morning.

The Cuban dead included three persons in western Pinar Del Rio province and a child in Havana. Widespread flooding and heavy crop damage was reported and thousands of families were moved to higher ground.

Storm-wise residents of the Florida Keys, the long string of islands jutting south of the mainland, smoothly made preparations as the storm — ninth tropical howler of the season — approached.

Although the storm was expected to pass west of Key West and strike the island of Dry Tortugas, Navy officials at southeastern United States.

At midnight EDT, the season's sixth hurricane was centered near latitude 23.0, longitude 84.0, or about 185 miles southwest of Key West and 105 miles west of Havana in the extreme southeastern corner of the Gulf of Mexico.

Isbell was moving north-northeast at 10 miles per hour and forecasters predicted it would change course slightly later today.

"The hurricane is expected to gradually turn to a more north-easterly course at about 12 m.p.h. during the next 12 to 24 hours which would take the center near Dry Tortugas about midday Wednesday and probably to the southwest Florida coast Wednesday night," forecasters said.

Hurricane warnings flew from Dry Tortugas eastward to Key West and on the west coast of the state from Flamingo northward to Fort Myers. Gale warnings and a hurricane watch were in effect for the Keys from Marathon to Key Largo and a hurricane watch from Fort Myers northward to Tampa.

Sales Tax Netting $420,000 Per Day

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Revenue Commissioner James C. Courtney said today that sales tax revenue is averaging more than $420,000 per day, compared to the original estimate of $250,000 during the first year of operation.

The two per cent tax will be a year old Oct. 24. By last June 30, the daily average was $275,000.

"Several factors appear to be contributing to the accelerated increases," Courtney said. "Retail sales are up; loopholes are being closed by the department; the establishment of 16 branch offices of the revenue department has provided material educational assistance to the taxpayer, and a continuing stepped-up collection effort by the department is producing better and better results."
