

The State Candidates

Much is written during each campaign concerning the nominees of the Democratic and Republican parties for governor and senator — but very little appears about the other candidates — and there are 15 state candidates on each ticket!

The candidates for lieutenant governor are quite important — the winner will preside over the state senate, and break tie votes, as Ristine did in voting for the present sales tax. They also head the department of commerce, serve as head of the department of agriculture, head up tourism for the state, and have many other important functions — not the least of which is the title of "their apparent" to the governor's office. Robert L. Rock, 36, Anderson real estate and insurance agent, and a leader in the house of representatives where he served as minority caucus chairman in 1963, is the Democratic nominee; Appellate court Judge John M. Ryan, 44, of Indianapolis a graduate of Notre Dame and Indiana university, is the Republican candidate.

The office of Secretary of State is likewise important, as the secretary will attest official state documents, publishes the statutes, administers certain laws, and is a leading figure in state politics. John D. Bottorff, popular Seymour school teacher, is opposed by Gerald L. Powell, Peru public relations man.

Mark L. France, 56, Fort Wayne public accountant, is the Democratic candidate for auditor of state, opposes Republican Allen J. Lindley, 53, of Westfield, who is presently deputy auditor. France is well-known in Decatur.

Jack L. New, 40, of Greenfield, executive secretary to Gov. Welsh, and formerly campaign manager with Henry Schricker in 1948, is Democratic candidate for treasurer of state against Republican John K. Snyder, 43, of Washington, a sales representative.

We will outline a little about the remaining state candidates on Monday.

MAX HOBBS FAMILY— Democratic candidate for Congress, his wife, Holly, and their two sons, John and Thomas. Hobbs is a native of Decatur and was raised in the Monroeville area, and his uncle, Ralph Hobbs, is presently serving in that area as township trustee.

Congress Long-Time Goal Of Max Hobbs

Ever since he mingled with congressional leaders 16 years ago as a congressional page, Max Hobbs, Democratic candidate for congress, has had a goal to return to Washington, representing the citizens of Northeast Indiana.

Although he has fond memories of conversations with Sam Rayburn, Joseph Martin, John McCormack, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and others during that time, he has had little time to reminisce since the first of the year.

For Max Hobbs is a campaigner, and he hasn't stopped since he announced his candidacy last spring.

Now can Max Hobbs afford to slacken his pace, for his opponent, E. Ross Adair, has had seven previous congressional victories.

Need Active Man
When Hobbs began his campaign, he said: "The temper of the times calls for more active representation in the fourth district and support of the dynamic program being carried out under President Lyndon Johnson."

Ten months later, he is still saying this. And it is still the basis of his campaign.
Quiet-spoken in small groups, the aggressive, 33-year old Fort Wayne attorney can be heard easily before throngs. For the past ten months, he has waged what he calls a "campaign on facts," discussing key issues with everyone he meets—whether in bustling Fort Wayne or serious-minded ed Berne, at county fairs, at teas, fish fries, barbecues and pancake suppers.

Born In Decatur

Hobbs is at home with farmers, laborers, businessmen, educators, The husky six-footer, who was an amateur league hockey player while serving with the Air Force, was born in Decatur and grew up on his parents' farm near Monroeville. Today, his love of nature finds outlet in raising flowers and taking his two small sons on fishing trips along northeast Indiana's lakes and streams.

In his law practice, Hobbs has become an authority in the field of labor law. He has devoted many overtime hours, speaking at union meetings.

As for business acumen, an alert young lawyer learns, "in depth" the problems of many clients. At one time, Max Hobbs, on behalf of a client, took over the management of a pet store. The former farm boy, within six months, had the store well into the black!

Wife A Teacher

Married to a former school teacher, Hobbs likes to combine his interest in young people with his interest in politics. Recently, he was a guest of the South Side high school political science club in Fort Wayne. He told the youngsters that he, in the same school, under their same teacher, had first learned the importance and the fascination of debating political issues.

Hobbs enjoys hard work. He has to, for political campaigning is the most rugged work there is.

The James E. Brown who has been ordered to pay a sum of $399.04 to the Associates Investment Co., is a former resident of this city, and not the James E. Brown who resides at 114 Grant St. at the present time.

Self-Help Program

Last week, in a debate with a GOP spokesman at a Methodist youth meeting in Topeka, Hobbs told the group that he supported the administration's "self-help anti-poverty" program. One of the young people asked him pointedly: "Don't you believe in people standing on their own two
