How Christian life begins
Paul speaks here also of how the Christian life begins. It starts with what theologians call "justification," which literally means a judge's verdict of "Not Guilty." Justification refers to man's status in God's sight, not to his state. A newborn baby is in a wretched state. He badly needs a bath. But he is his parents' much-loved child all the same. They do not demand that he must do something lovable before they love him; they welcome him with love even before he is born. God is like that. He loved us before we were born not because of what we have done but because he is love.

How Christian life operator
The life of God in the life of man; how does this operate? There is mystery here, to be sure; but some things are clear. One truth is that it means to be daily, even constantly renewed. The Christian's life is not an automatic business that starts with one big bang! and keeps on with no further effort. The greatest Christians are those who feel most strongly the need of being continually re-created. This has its definite effects. The Christian is one who becomes, with the passage of time, more and more godly, that is, God-like. This is so tremendous here has not been touched) the Christian lives a life of hope. He expects Christ to be Lord of All. No Christian ever wept that he was born too late for the Golden Age. The Golden Age for us is not in some lost yesterday, it is the great tomorrow, when all tears have been wiped away and God shall be all in all.

Every Rock of Ages Memorial starts with the priceless heritage of Nature's finest material. Talented craftsmen use patented processes to create polished finishes of breath-taking brilliance and beauty, charm of line and true character in decoration. Our showrooms include an especially wide variety, new, modern, reasonably priced.

Gospel in Brief
Lesson for November 29, 1964

Background Scripture: Titus 1:1-3; 2:11-14; 3:1-6.
Devotional Reading: Ephesians 2:1-10.

THIS WEEK we shall do something a little different. This is an invitation to study the Bible together. The verses under "Background Scripture" are remarkable in bringing out, in their brief sentences, many of the most vital truths taught by the Christian Church. Taught to the church, we ought to say, first of all, for what the church teaches she first learned, at least

Dr. Foreman in vital germ, from her own first teacher, Paul, and above him, our Lord himself. The grace of God
The word of "grace" often means gracefulness, as when we speak of the grace of a violinist's work, or the invitation of a hostess. In the New Testament it means graciousness, a quality some people have without knowing it, the quality we associate with true aristocracy. We can say for instance that Dean Rusk is a more gracious character than Gromyko. Grace is not the same thing as goodness; some people can be mighty good without being very gracious. Grace is goodness come to life, shining. In the New Testament the grace (Graciousness) of God is mentioned far oftener than the grace of men. (Why should this be so?) The New Testament speaks often of the grace of God as something which has up to now not been well known or understood. For the crowning act of God's grace is the gift of his son, Jesus Christ, the living, walking grace of God in human living. The supreme moment of that grace, of course, is Christ's identifying himself with sinners and being willing to "give his life a ransom for many" — to use his own words. The grace of God and the Saviorhood of Jesus are not two different things; they might almost be called, from the Christian point of view, the same thing.

Paul speaks here also of how the Christian life begins. It starts with what theologians call "justification," which literally means a judge's verdict of "Not Guilty." Justification refers to man's status in God's sight, not to his state. A newborn baby is in a wretched state. He badly needs a bath. But he is his parents' much-loved child all the same. They do not demand that he must do something lovable before they love him; they welcome him with love even before he is born. God is like that. He loved us before we were born not because of what we have done but because he is love.
