

HER LIFE TRULY SAVED.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Does It.

Mrs. Chas. La Point, a well-known resident of Denver, praises this wonderful remedy. Her testimony should convince all as to the worth of the New Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. Her letter dated Sept. 11th, 1894, reads as follows:

Mrs. LA POINT, 2157 Humboldt St. "Typhoid fever left me with heart trouble of the most serious nature. Nothing the doctors gave had any effect. I had severe pains in the heart, and was unable to lie on my left side for more than three minutes at a time. My heart seemed to miss beats, and I had smothering spells, in which it seemed every breath would be my last. We accidentally saw an advertisement of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine, and purchased a bottle of each. After taking the remedies a week, I could be lifted in a chair and sit up an hour, and in a short time I was able to do light housework. I shall be ever grateful to you for your wonderful medicines. Truly they saved my life.

MRS. CHAS. LA POINT. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle for $5.00 in advance. It will be sent prepaid on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

PEARL BRYAN CASE

Scott Jackson, the Accused, Placed on Trial.

GETTING THE JURY TOGETHER.

A Hundred Citizens Summoned to Select From—Judge Helm Is on the Bench. What the Prosecution Will Attempt to Prove Against the Prisoner During the Progress of the Trial.

NEWPORT, Ky., April 21.—The trial of Scott Jackson, accused of the murder of Miss Pearl Bryan, began in the circuit court here today. Judge Helm is on the bench and it is thought the entire day will be taken up in impelling a jury from the 100 citizens summoned to serve in that capacity.

The prosecution will attempt to prove that Jackson and Walling are guilty of the murder; that Pearl Bryan was induced to come to Cincinnati from her home at Greenfield, Ind., by the representation that Scott Jackson intended to marry her; that she did not know that an operation was intended, and that she never consented to one. They expect to prove that Jackson had a motive in getting rid of her, and that his nature is to stop at nothing in his efforts to accomplish any task he may set out to perform. They expect to prove that Walling had knowledge of the relations that had existed between Jackson and Miss Bryan, and that he had consented to perform the operation. They expect to prove that Miss Bryan, while in Cincinnati, was seen in the company of Jackson and Walling only, except once, when she spoke with a friend from Greenfield at the postoffice. Proof will be adduced that she was seen with Jackson and Walling together and separately.

Jackson was seen with her on the streets of Cincinnati, called on her at the Indiana House and in several other places. Walling was in her company at the Union depot and on the streets of Cincinnati. All of this the prosecution will put witnesses on the stand to prove, and offer many depositions to the same end. It will finally be maintained that Pearl Bryan had determined to go home rather than to submit to an operation, and that Walling met her in the Grand Central depot, and persuaded her to remain in Cincinnati, knowing that Jackson intended to kill her, if necessary. It will be proved that the last time Miss Bryan was seen in life and conscious was in Walling's saloon. The witnesses who will testify to that fact are Dave Wallingford, the keeper of the place, and Allan Johnson, the porter. Previous to this Miss Bryan, so far as is known, was seen in Walling's company. An important witness is George Jackson, the colored man who claimed to have driven the cab to the Highlands that contained Jackson, Walling and Miss Bryan. He will testify that he drove the cab under duress, and that Pearl Bryan was alive, though semi-conscious when removed from the vehicle by Jackson and Walling, and that he escaped back to the city at the first opportunity.

Pennsylvania Youth Inherits $70,000 as a Reward for Kindness.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—The luckiest youth in Pennsylvania today is J. Spencer Miller of Media, a few miles from Philadelphia. Yesterday Miller, who is now a law student, was notified that Mull had died some days ago and had bequeathed him $70,000. It was known that Mull was rich, and he left other bequests. Miller's parents are well-to-do people.

It was shown at the time she wedded him he already had a wife in Indiana. Tetley's father is a wealthy manufacturer of Leeds, England, and the young man has caused him no end of trouble in the states. His marriage to Miss Lewis created quite a sensation at the time. The grand jury, which has just adjourned, indicted the young actor for bigamy, but he is now safe across the Atlantic.

OHIO IS STORMSWEEP

Two Persons Killed and Several Others Injured.

MANY BUILDINGS DESTROYED.

Tree Blown Across a Railway Train. Baby and its Cradle Carried Across a Road—Houses, Barns, Bridges and Fences Go Down Before the Fierce Winds—A Hamlet Nearly Destroyed.

FREMONT, O., April 21.—A tornado, accompanied by a rain fall, swept over the Northwestern part of Sandusky county late yesterday afternoon, killing two persons, injuring a number of others and doing great damage to property. The tornado came from the southwest with great fury and every building it struck was swept away. After smashing a road bridge and blowing a big tree across a Wheeling and Lake Erie freight train, it crushed the caboose and came near killing a number of trainmen.

The wind then began to play havoc with farm buildings. The barns of Jacob Engler, J. Heffner, Upton Bergoon and Anthony Swint first went down before it. The house of James Green was destroyed. Green's aged father, William J. Green, was killed outright, and his wife fatally hurt and the baby carried across the road in its cradle. The child escaped uninjured. Next the barn of Amos Hetrick in which Hetrick and John Low were shearing sheep was crushed. Low was blown across a field against a tree, being instantly killed. Other buildings destroyed were the barns of Alfred Fairchild, William Henset, Perry Parish, George Waggoner and Charles Tucker. Tucker's child was badly hurt. At Booktown, a hamlet near here, nearly all the buildings were destroyed, but there was no loss of life.

Many Narrow Escapes From Death by the Severe Storm.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., April 21.—The heaviest wind storm that has visited this city within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant occurred last evening. The wind came up suddenly from the west and was accompanied by sheets of rain and lightning. For half an hour the rain fell in torrents and the wind blew everything loose that was movable. The streets were flooded in every direction and pedestrians found it difficult to get around. Fences in every part of the city were blown down, great trees were uprooted and twisted and torn from the earth. There were many narrow escapes from death. The front of Charles Earl's westside store was blown in just as he was at the transom endeavoring to close it and he had several teeth knocked out by the flying debris.

ONLY EARTHWORMS.

YET THEY HAVE CUT QUITE A FIGURE IN THE WORLD'S HISTORY.

The Worm Has No Eyes and No Sense of Hearing, but Is Sensitive to Strong Light and Vibrations of Sound—Objects of Antiquity Preserved by Earthworms.

The common earthworm, despised by man and heedlessly trodden underfoot, fulfills a part in nature that would seem incredible but for the facts revealed by the patient and long continued researches of Darwin. "Worms," says Darwin, "have played a more important part in the history of the world than most persons would at first suppose." Let us follow Darwin and see how this apparently insignificant creature has changed the face of nature. We will first consider the habits and mode of life of the earthworm. As every one knows, the worms live in burrows in the superficial layer of the ground. They can live anywhere in a layer of earth, provided it retains moisture, dry air being fatal to them. They can, on the other hand, exist submerged in water for several months. They live chiefly in the superficial mold less than a foot below the surface, but in long continued dry weather and in very cold seasons they may burrow to a depth of eight feet. The burrows are lined by a thin layer of earth, voided by the worms, and end in small chambers in which they can turn round.

The burrows are formed partly by pushing away the earth, but chiefly by the earth being swallowed. Large quantities of earth are swallowed by the worms for the sake of the decomposing vegetable matter contained in it, on which they feed. The earth thus swallowed is voided in spiral heaps, forming the worm castings. In this case the worm obtains food and at the same time excavates its burrows.

In addition to the food thus obtained half decayed leaves are dragged into the burrows, mainly for food, but also to plug the mouths of the burrows for the sake of protection. Worms are also fond of meat, especially fat. They will also eat the dead bodies of their relatives. They are nocturnal in habit, remaining, as a rule, in the burrows during the day and coming out to feed at night.

The earthworm has no eyes, but is affected by strong light if exposed to it for some time. It has no sense of hearing, but is sensitive to the vibrations of sound. The whole body is sensitive to touch. There appears to be some sense of smell, but this is limited to a certain articles of food, which are discovered by the worm when buried in earth, in preference to other bodies not relished. The worm appears to have some degree of intelligence from the way in which it draws the leaves into its burrows, always judging which is the best end to draw them in by. This is remarkable in so lowly organized an animal, being a degree of intelligence not possessed by many animals of more complex organization. For instance, the ant can often be seen dragging objects along traversely instead of taking them the easiest way.

As we have seen, vast quantities of earth are continually being passed through the bodies of worms and voided on the surface as castings. When it is stated that the number of worms in an acre of ordinary land suitable for them to live in is 53,000, we can imagine the great effect which they must have on the soil.

They are, in fact, continually plowing the land. At one part of the alimentary canal of the worm is a gizzard, or hard muscular organ, capable of grinding food into fine particles. It is this gizzard which is the main factor in trinitating the soil, and it is aided by small stones swallowed with the earth, which act as millstones.

In consequence of the immense amount of earth continually being brought to the surface by worms it is not difficult to understand how objects, such as stones, rocks, etc., lying on the surface will in course of time become gradually buried in the ground. Owing to the burial of stones and other objects by the action of worms, ancient monuments, portions of Roman villas and other objects of antiquity have been preserved. These have been gradually buried by the worms and so preserved from the destructive effect of rain and wind. Many Roman remains were studied by Darwin, and traces of the action of worms found, to which action their preservation was mainly due. The sinking of the foundations of old buildings is due to the action of worms, and no building is safe from this unless the foundations are laid lower than the level at which the worms can work—namely, about eight feet below the surface.

Another useful effect produced by worms is the preparation of the soil for the growth of seedlings. By their agency the soil is periodically sifted and exposed to the air, and in this way is able to retain moisture and absorb soluble substances of use for the nutrition of plants.—Knowledge.
