

Fifty Years Ago.

This is the way it was bound to look when grandfather had his "picter took." These were the shadows cast before the coming of Conjuror Daguerre And his art; like a girl in a pinacote Some day to bloom to a goddess fair. Men certainly were not as black, we know As they pictured them, 50 years ago.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

began to make new men, just as the new pictures of men began to be made. Thousands of people fronted the camera with skins made clean from blotch and blemish, because they had purified the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is as powerful now as then. Its record proves it. Others imitate the remedy; they can't imitate the record:

LATEST HAPPENINGS

CREAM OF THE NEWS FROM THE GREAT HOOISER STATE.

Events of the Day Specially Prepared For Our Readers—Interesting Newsy Gossip of Indiana and Their Doings—Minor News in a Brief Form.

OSSGOO, Ind., July 27.—Drs. A. F. and E. P. Joseph, father and son of this place, have been arrested under a warrant charging them with assaulting and robbing Herman Kamman and wife at their residence, two miles east of Milan, on Friday morning, July 23. Mr. and Mrs. Kamman are the aged parents of Postmaster Kamman of Milan. The Josephs gave bond for $500 each for their appearance at the preliminary trial which is set for tomorrow.

The arrest was the result of a recognition by a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kamman, who formerly lived in this vicinity. Mr. Kamman was in Verailles the evening before the robbery, and expected to receive $500 in payment of a mortgage which he held against Mr. Butt, husband of his daughter.

NEW FUEL FOR WAR VESSELS.

Anderson Man's Invention Permits the Use of Oil Instead of Coal.

ANDERSON, Ind., July 27.—Frank M. Reed of this city has made application for a patent on a devise for using oil instead of coal on war vessels. The system makes it possible for some of our largest war vessels to carry fuel sufficient to last on a trip around the world. Gas is generated from the oil by an atomizing plan, is smokeless, and capable of 33 per cent more heat than the government is now getting from coal, making it possible to work up to great speed. Instead of 30 stokers, which are now necessary on a great war vessel, one man could handle all the valves. A storage tank is provided that is absolutely bullet and shell proof. The cost of the equipment is very small and would be paid for in a month or so in the saving of the fuel.

MISTAKEN IMPRESSION.

Two-Year-Old Child Given Concentrated Lye For Licorice.

ENGLISH, Ind., July 24.—Pearl, the little 2-year-old daughter of Elmer Fette, a farmer of Perry county, a few miles south of this place, ate concentrated lye which her older sister gave her under the impression that it was licorice. The parents were absent, and by the time they had returned and summoned a doctor the child had passed beyond the physician's aid.

Daily Mail Service For Farmers.

SEYMOUR, Ind., July 26.—For the past nine months the postoffice department has been experimenting with free mail delivery among the farmers of one township in each of several states. Hawcreek township, Bartholomew county, was selected in Indiana. The experimental period has just expired and the department has notified the postmaster at Hope that the service will be continued for another year. The farmers in Hawcreek township now declare it would be a hardship to be deprived of a daily mail service.

Prominent Physician Dead.

LEANON, Ind., July 26.—The funeral of Dr. D. C. Scull took place this afternoon. He was one of Lebanon's best known physicians. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and the G. A. R., having served three years in the Thirteenth Indiana during the war. At one time he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress, being defeated by Major C. T. Doxey.

Disband and Sell Their Church.

CHESTERFIELD, Ind., July 27.—The Methodist organization here has disbanded and has sold its church property to the Christian denomination. The house was built in 1873 and cost $2,000. The Christians paid only $150 for the building. The Rev. E. L. Jones, pastor for this charge, will probably discontinue his work here after next Sunday.

Suddenly Loses Her Voice.

NEWCASTLE, Ind., July 26.—Mrs. T. F. Burns of this city, a singer of more than local reputation, suddenly lost her voice Saturday. She had been singing quite freely the evening before. She has no idea what caused the trouble, unless it arose from some medicine she had been taking.

Stepped In Front of a Passenger Train.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 23.—Joseph Field was killed by an Indianapolis and Vincennes passenger train here yesterday. Fields stepped out of the way of an Evansville and Terre Haute freight train immediately before an approaching passenger train. He leaves a widow and two children.

Will Travel to Alaska In an Airship.

RICHMOND, Ind., July 27.—Dr. Samuel Charles, a prominent local physician, announced yesterday that he had perfected an airship with which he will sail for Alaska's gold fields. He has actually begun the solicitation of stock among business men to promote the project.

Popular Young Lady Drowned.

HOBART, Ind., July 27.—Miss Emma Newman, a popular young woman of this place, 18 years old, was drowned in Lake Michigan at Camp Fry, a new summer resort, while bathing. The accident occurred in the presence of several hundred people.

GWINNEVILLE, Ind., July 27.—Frank Morris, postmaster here, in attempting to board a moving train yesterday received injuries from the effects of which he died last night.

Epidemic of Flux.

NASHVILLE, Ind., July 24.—There has been a number of deaths near here recently from flux, the disease being prevalent. Blood poisoning was at first thought to be the cause, but physicians now say it is flux. The cause of the epidemic is unknown.

Bitten Twice by a Rattler.

PICERETON, Ind., July 24.—A young man 17 years old, by the name of Twine, was bitten twice by a rattlesnake while hunting near here. His condition is critical.

Four Killed and Six Injured on Board the Nutmeg State.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 24.—At 6:30 o'clock last evening a dreadful explosion occurred on the steamer Nutmeg State of the Bridgeport Steamboat company's line while she was lying at her slip at the foot of South street, and as a result four men are dead, three others are thought to be fatally injured and a number more are in a serious condition. The steamer was damaged about $1,000.

Investigation showed that a deck hand went into the hold to light his pipe and it is believed that the lighted match in a closed forecastle caused some naphtha vapor to explode.

VOORHEES' BIOGRAPHY.

Ex-Senator's Life History Being Compiled by His Sons.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 24.—Charles and Reese Voorhees are in the city engaged in the compilation of a biography of their late father, ex-Senator Daniel W. Voorhees. It will consist of two volumes of 750 pages each, containing, in addition to his life history, many of his more famous speeches and his two lectures upon "The Holy Sepulchre" and "Thomas Jefferson." The work will be profusely illustrated. It will probably be issued some time in the coming autumn.

CLOUDBURST.

Youngstown, O., Flooded and Railways Greatly Damaged.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 23.—A terrific cloudburst which struck this town flooded the entire valley and caused great damage to property, both in the city and along the railroad lines. The entire county east and west for 20 miles was flooded and the damage will be enormous, the railroads being the heaviest losers.

CAMPAIGNING IN INDIANA

ISSUES ON WHICH THE NEXT CONTEST WILL BE BASED.

Lockwood Interviews Five Hoosier Members on the Probable Effect of Legislation Upon the Voters of the State—Mistaken Prophecy by Some of Them, Since They Disagree Politically.

From Our Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The close of the extra session, which marks the conclusion of the first chapter in the history of the new administration, opens a field for speculation as to the effect of its legislation upon public opinion, and especially is this problem an occasion for solicitude among the politicians of Indiana, a state much given to the tidal wave habit, and which is within a year to begin the struggle attendant upon the selection of a senator. There is a divergence of opinion on this subject among the members of the Indiana delegation in congress, which shows that both parties will enter the campaign in Indiana next year full of fight. Among the members of the Indiana delegation who took the most active interest in the legislation of the extra session were Major Steele, who, as a member of the ways and means committee, was an active factor in the framing of the Dingley bill; Mr. Henry, who, like Mr. Steele, represents a distinctively industrial district; Mr. Crumpacker, who has been one of the most aggressive among the new members of the house, and on the Democratic side Representatives Robinson and Miers, both of whom made their maiden oratorical efforts on the floor of the house in speeches condemnatory of the Dingley law. As revealing the lines of future campaigning in Indiana, the opinions of these members concerning the work of the extra session and its effect upon the political outlook in Indiana will be of interest.

"No part of the country will be more benefitted by the new tariff law than will the state of Indiana. Already, in anticipation of the effects of the new law, the various industries of the state have taken on new life and the industrial benefits which will follow its enactment are even now partially realized. The political effect in Indiana cannot be doubtful. Last fall the state gave its verdict unhesitatingly in favor of sound money and a protective tariff. With a certainty that a treasury surplus will take the place of the treasury deficit, which has continued all the time the Wilson law has been in force, confidence will be restored. D. With the workshop busy, heretofore idle laborers fully employed, better prices for the products of the farm and ready sale for all that the various industries will produce, the people will soon forget the sad days of the administration of Grover Cleveland. The Republican party must be benefitted by the results of this legislation. The people will not hesitate to continue in power a party which has quickly responded to their wishes and needs. With the praiseworthy record of the last state legislature before them and a clean administration of state affairs, coupled with the influence of Republican management of the national government, the Republican party in Indiana need have no fears concerning the election in 1897."

"I believe that the wishes of the country as indicated at the polls in November last," said Major Steele to your correspondent after the Dingley bill returned from conference, "have been fully followed in the framing of the tariff law, which, as its title states, is calculated to afford adequate revenue for the government and encourage the industries of the United States. The chief need of the country was the immediate passage of such a law, and the house acted wisely in giving the measure a clear track. The treasury has been rescued from danger and conditions favorable to the development of American industry have been restored. As a legacy from the Wilson bill, the warehouses of the seaboard are filled to overflowing with merchandise imported in anticipation of a protective measure. This will retard the restoration of the conditions which prevailed under the McKinley bill, but the house, which passed the Dingley law within a few days after the convening of the extra session, and which adopted it immediately after its return from conference, is not to be held responsible for this delay, which is chargeable to non-Republican influences in the senate and Democratic opposition in the same body. The strenuous opposition which the Democratic party in congress has offered to the law shows that the protective principle is still a vital issue in politics. The state of Indiana, which made such splendid progress along the line of industrial development under the McKinley law, is not likely to cast its vote in favor of the restoration of such a law as the Wilson bill, which has thrown its shadow over the entire country for the past four years. The industrial interests of Indiana are amply protected in the Dingley bill, and there is certain to be a revival of business which will play havoc with the free silver propagandists in the country."

"The issue of the last campaign," said Mr. Miers, "the currency question, has been wholly ignored by the extra session. The work of the session shows that congress has not been governed by the will of the people, but has been controlled by the trusts and combines of the country. No legislation has been permitted except that of passing the tariff bill. The bill enacted will increase the power and wealth of the trusts and the burdens of the people. In the mad rush to pass a tariff law that will assist the combines to accumulate great fortunes, the interests of the people have been ignored and the spirit of liberty, honor to the old flag, the right of every American citizen to protection from indignity and insult has been forgotten. Not even a resolution of sympathy for the murdered and cruelly treated Cubans was permitted to be introduced. The new tariff bill will not even increase the government's revenue. It was enacted at the behests of the trusts, solely for their selfish purposes. It will largely increase their profits and the price of the article to the consumer. It is no wonder that at the close of the session we find business stagnant, less money circulating among the people, more men out of employment and less confidence than when the session began. The factories, instead of being opened, as our Republican friends promises, are closed, wages are reduced and the men are out on a strike by reason of reduced wages. The Republican advance agent of prosperity has proven to be a false prophet. Prosperity cannot be restored on a suppressed circulation and the high price of money under a gold standard, extravagant appropriations and a tariff constructed on the plan of affording protection to the great corporations without reference to the will of the people, no matter how much revenue it will raise. It can only be restored by a general retrenchment in public expenditures and an increase of the circulation by restoring the silver dollar."

"I do not believe that the work of the extra session is satisfactory to the Republicans of Indiana or to the country," Representative Robinson said. "By successive promises prosperity was to come on the defeat of Mr. Bryan, on the election of Mr. McKinley, on his induction into office, on the calling of the special session and on the passage of the tariff bill. All these successions have passed into history and people of all parties are still waiting in hope that promises to 'break all records in its strain upon patience. Notwithstanding that the minority party announced that it would not obstruct the passage of a tariff bill, save to show up its demerits to the country, the majority in congress, for over four months, has exhibited a vicious struggle for the spoils of taxation, a battle royal among trusts and combines. Every interested industry, for weeks and weeks and from time to time, has been elevated by hope and depressed by fear, and this state of tension lasted till the day of final adjournment. This uncertainty that came from an attempt to legislate for trusts, at the expense of the people, has resulted in a general lack of confidence and demoralization, so that it may be truthfully said today that neither the taxed nor the sharers in the bounty, not even the sugar trust, so favored, are satisfied. Though it was not desired by the minority that those in power should enact general legislation, yet it is evident that the country justly demanded the passage of the senate Cuban resolution by the house, as well as a bankruptcy bill. In addition to this thousands of pension bills, many passed by the senate, should have been passed by the house, all of which could have been done without interference with the general policy. It is evident that these shortcomings will be disastrous in Indiana to the party in power."

"The wisdom of the house in refusing to consider general measures," said Representative Crumpacker, "will be fairly indicated with time. A revenue law was imperatively demanded by the fiscal condition of the government, and the Dingley bill, in the form in which it became law, is in my judgment the best revenue measure with incidental protection that was ever passed by the American congress. It will produce ample revenue to defray all expenses of the government, fortify the gold reserve and furnish adequate protection to American industries. The 'endless chain' has already ceased to operate, bond selling has become unnecessary, and I confidently predict that the country will soon enter upon an era of prosperity not surpassed in all its history. The business revival will come gradually, like the recovery of health after a long siege of sickness, but it will come surely and steadily. Congress has done its full duty, and renewed enterprise will soon be discovered in all lines of production. The political effect cannot help but be highly beneficial to the Republican party in Indiana and elsewhere."

"Colonel William R. Holloway is said to have in sight the reward for his patience. About Sept. 1, so gossip says, he is to be named as consul general to St. Petersburg. This is not the most desirable of the consulates, but it is also a whole lot better than many of them."

Representative Henry ventures the opinion that congress has never more quickly and more faithfully carried out a special commission delivered to it by the people. "The commission given by the last November election to the Fifty-fifth congress," he said to your correspondent, "was two-fold in character. First, that it should not authorize the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. Second, that it should give the country a tariff law which would produce enough revenue, and at the same time enable the producers of the United States to furnish American products to American consumers without unfair competition from foreign producers. The first required no action—it was simply negative in its character. The second required a careful and painstaking revision of the tariff law. The house acted quickly and sent to the senate a new tariff bill on March 31. Since then, carefully regarding the commission of the people, it has continually refused, notwithstanding Democratic clamor, to take up any other legislation. Waiting patiently month after month, the house has now finished its work and the members go back to the people with the assurance that they have conscientiously and faithfully obeyed the mandate of their constituents.
