Street Commissioner Mann is having a large amount of trouble collecting the city street tax from a number of young men. Several have paid the bills only after being sued and more cases will be filed within a few days if the boys still fail to settle. Remember the Commissioner is only doing his duty when he forces you to work out your poll tax.

It has been fifteen months since one could tell the time of day by a glance at the court house tower, and the inconvenience caused thereby has been felt by nearly every citizen. It is not much wonder therefore that there is much rejoicing over the fact that within a few days, the new dial will be completed and the clock again be in running order. The dial will be illuminated by electric lights and one will then be able to tell the hour from any part of the city at any time of day or night.

Ralston Not a Candidate.

The Decatur Democrat favors the nomination of Hon. Samuel M. Ralston, of Boone county, for governor. The democracy might go farther and do worse. Mr. Ralston is a staunch democrat, an able speaker and debater, and besides a No. 1 man.—New Albany Public Press.

"GOVERNOR RALSTON" is the heading in the Decatur Democrat over a double-column article setting forth the merits of Samuel M. Ralston as a suitable man to head Indiana's democratic state ticket next year. What the Democrat says in Mr. Ralston's behalf is not exaggerated in the slightest degree. He is a good, clever, genial man; an effective campaigner; a lawyer of recognized ability; a citizen of high character, and a democrat all over.—South Bend Times.

The Decatur Democrat, whose publisher, L. G. Ellingham, is one of the most capable and vigorous democrats in Northern Indiana, advocates the nomination of Hon. Samuel M. Ralston, of this city for governor. Mr. Ralston keenly appreciates the many complimentary things said of him by the Democrat, coming as they do from a democratic stronghold, and his nomination would be exceedingly gratifying to the democracy of his home county; but he authorizes the Pioneer to say that he is not and will not be a candidate for the nomination. Mr. Ralston, since the death of his partner, Mr. Keefe, is devoting all his time and energies to his profession.—Lebanon Pioneer.

The opening meeting of the Chiqua Circle of the Ladies' Shakespeare Club met with Mrs. D. D. Heller yesterday afternoon. The study of Hamlet was taken up and the year promises to be a most interesting one.
