Do not move from your precinct as it will mean a loss of your vote.

Now then let the question of organization be uppermost in the minds of every voter who has at heart the election of that peerless statesman, William J. Bryan.

Come out to the club rooms tonight and hear the Hon. Joseph T. Day, the next congressman from this district. He is a pleasing speaker and you will be highly entertained.

The election is but a little more than four weeks away. Energetic and faithful work on the part of every democrat in Indiana, means that the state will cast its electoral vote for William J. Bryan.

There is not a democrat in Adams county, but what has a supreme interest in this election. Then show it by devoting a little time to the organization of your precinct. See your committeeman and organize.

"From the rostrum I heard one of the most eloquent speeches in 1896 delivered by Carl Schurz. They have got him. They have got Bourke Cockran. They have got a few others that were with us in 1896."—Mark Hanna.

AFTER tomorrow you can not move from one precinct to another without losing your vote. Remember this and make no promises or arrangements to move. It is one of the tricks of the republicans to get a democrat to lose his vote, but be not thus worked.

EVERY democrat should sleep with both both eyes open from this time until November 6. Spend some of your time in looking after the organization in your precinct, and by all means be alive to the importance of the duties devolving upon you.

Following the Indianapolis meeting a two days' tour of the state will be made by Mr. Bryan, under the direction of the state committee. The gas belt will be covered entire, stops and speeches being made at Noblesville, Marion, Anderson, Elwood, Alexandria, Muncie, Winchester and many other places.

ANOTHER of the Goebel murderers has been convicted in Kentucky. Fugitive Taylor, who is going over the state making republican speeches, is working hard for the election of Durbin. He does not intend to go back and face that indictment for complicity in this great crime if he can help it.

JOHN P. IRISH, an alleged gold "democrat," who supported McKinley in 1896, and who now holds a nice fat republican job in San Francisco, after making three or four republican speeches in this state, says Indiana will go for McKinley. John P. is not a prophet, but he wants to show that he is grateful.

On the high authority of the Chicago Tribune, chief organ of prosperity and McKinley's most devoted defender, it is stated that Mr. Bryan has the support of "every one that is in distress and every one that is in debt and every one that is discontented." This naturally leaves Major McKinley with only the support of the trusts.

THERE is high treason rampant among the republican organs. The noble major tells us in his letter that labor was never happier. Yet here are the Chicago Tribune and other champions of the trusts and imperialism denouncing Mr. Bryan for appealing to the discontented. How can he appeal to the discontented if there be no discontent?

It is announced that Colonel Durbin is having "heart to heart" talks with the republican party managers over the state. What's the matter with having a few "heart to heart" talks with the people about the issues of the campaign? Does Colonel Durbin have any objection to telling whether it is true that he resigned from the directorate of a trust in order to run for governor?

COLONEL DURBIN turned up in Brazil the other day, but says The Miner, "no one knew he was in the city except the faithful who had been summoned to meet him at headquarters." Now, we insist that this is not fair. Why is Durbin afraid to face the people? Is it because some awkward question might be asked as to his connection with the strawboard trust and other trusts?

THERE will be a democratic majority of not less than ten in the next house. That is the way the congressional campaign committee figures it out, and in doing the figuring allowance has been made for every reasonable contingency. Republicans privately admit that these figures are very conservative, and that they have almost given up hope of retaining control of the house, unless there is a change in public sentiment amounting almost to a stampede before election day.

MARK HANNA defends trusts and Senator Beveridge defends imperialism and wants more of it. McKinley's campaign managers burned our junior senator's first speech, but he gritted his teeth and wrote another one, worse than the first. With Hanna, Beveridge and Roosevelt all on the stump at the same time it is no wonder that the republican party is in doubt whether to take to the sea or the woods.

ANOTHER trust has also entered into the campaign of terrorism and starvation. The Deering Harvesting company of Chicago last Saturday signaled its royalty its creator, the republican party, by reducing its working force from 7,000 to 3,000 men. The wages of those retained have been reduced from 15 to 40 per cent. The wages of 200 finishers were reduced from $4.50 per day to $2.25 per day.

At the close of Cleveland's administration in 1896 the entire cost of the government was $4.94 per capita. The cost in 1899 was $7.97 per capita, which means $48 per year to a man with a wife and five children. In 1900 the cost per capita was $9.01. The estimate for 1901 makes the cost $9.59 per capita, or nearly double the cost under Cleveland. So long as the Hanna-McKinley imperial policy is continued, just so long will the cost of the government increase.

REPRESENTATIVE LIVINGSTON of Georgia, thus sums up the attitude of the two parties towards trusts: "In a recent speech made by Senator Beveridge, this statesman says that the republican party, as well as the democratic party, is opposed to trusts, only the republican party proposed to limit and regulate trusts, while the democratic party would do nothing. Now, this statement was made to intelligent people. If this is so, how could Mark Hanna go to Baltimore and get from the trusts of that city alone $80,000, while Bryan, even had he tried could not have got 80 cents. Senator Hanna has said there are no trusts. He knows and so does every thinking man or woman that this is false. Here is evidence of the trusts. Thus it takes fifty per cent more wheat to buy a pound than it did last year. It takes twenty per cent more corn and it takes from $4 to $4.50 a month more to live now than it did a year ago. Why is this? It is because of trusts."

THE Hon. Joseph T. Day candidate for congress, is in Adams county this week. Monday evening he addressed a large and enthusiastic audience at Berne, Tuesday evening he appeared at the Brandyberry school house in this township. Wednesday evening at Linn Grove, tonight he will be at the club rooms in this city, and tomorrow night at Geneva. Mr. Day is a pleasing and conspicuous speaker and makes votes wherever he appears. His canvass in Delaware, Randolph, Jay and this county has increased his vote materially and made his election probable. Republican organizations in the labor districts are aiding him and his election need be no surprise when the votes are cast and counted. He is in every way superior to his republican opponent, and in congress will represent the district, instead of a few political henchmen in each county, who have had a death grip on the machine that secured his nomination. His reception in Adams county is pleasing to the democrats, all of whom are working hard for his election.

THE national convention of Democratic Clubs now in session at Indianapolis, is one of the greatest political events of the campaign. All the great orators, including Bryan and Stevenson, are there, together with 50,000 democrats from all sections of the country. Indiana is certainly highly favored in getting to entertain so distinguished and important a political gathering, and its effects will be effective in placing in the Bryan column the electoral vote of our fair state.

THE Journal is just now very much exercised about the prosecution of Dan P. Bolds, and for their benefit will say that the case is set for trial, and in all probability will be heard this term of the Wells circuit court. However, we have no jurisdiction over courts, but have generally found them fair, honest and impartial—something the Journal is not bothered with much. The democratic officials of Adams county brought suit and have and are pushing it to trial, and asked and were given an appropriation for its continued prosecution. In this the democratic officials deserve commendation instead of cheap criticism.

LOOKOUT for prosperous republican claims. Orders have gone out from republican national headquarters to the party newspapers to print continually and conspicuously during the three weeks previous to the election paragraphs claiming states enough to give McKinley 25 or 30 more electoral votes than he had in 1896. The idea is said to be that such wholesale claims persistently made, will catch voters who wish to be on the winning side.

THE insolence of the trusts was never better illustrated than by the threat of one of them in a Nebraska city last week to prevent Mr. Bryan speaking. The situation was so grave that the mayor had to issue a proclamation commanding the peace. This happened about the same time that one of Roosevelt's "rough riders" provoked an outbreak at Victor, Colorado, by tearing a banner from a woman's hand and destroying it. As they are powerless to meet the issues, we may reasonably expect the republican managers to use all sorts of schemes to divert attention from them.

WILLIE AND HIS PAPA.

"Well, well, Willie, what is it this time?"
"We're playing Republican minstrels, and Teddy wants to be the two end men and the middle man, too!"—New York Evening Journal.

ON Feb. 21, 1900, the Indianapolis Press said: "The republican party will make a very grave mistake if it fails to enact reasonable legislation on the subject of trusts before the session closes. Of course it will have an anti-trust plank in its platform, but that will not be enough. Congress is in session; both branches are republican. The people will be likely to hold it responsible for the failure to check or regulate these great combinations of capital. Congress knows quite as much now as it will when the national platform is made." The people surely will hold the republican party responsible. It had the power, but it not only failed to enact legislation, but through the man who absolutely controls its policy it is now denying the existence of trusts.

THE same bulldozing coercion of 1896 is to be again employed. Many of the trusts are notifying their employees that if Bryan is elected their factory will close. This but demonstrates the intimacy of the trusts with this administration. Since McKinley's election one hundred and fifty-three trusts have been incorporated in New Jersey, with a capital of $3,131,100. Every one of these trusts are protected with a protective tariff, until now they have grown from "infant industries" to gigantic corporations whose influences can not easily be reckoned. They absolutely control the administration, to the disgrace and detriment of the American people.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE should take good care of the speech he made in Chicago the other night. If he leaves it lying around unguarded the wicked Mark Hanna is liable to slip up on it and give it to the flames as he did his previous one. Beveridge devotes his whole speech to a defense of imperialism, which Hanna says is not an issue. The speech is labeled "An Answer to Bryan." That is what it is called, but there are no internal evidences of an "answer." In fact, it is in substance a brazen admission of most of the things which some other republican orators and many newspapers are busy denying. Beveridge thinks we should follow the example of imperial Great Britain.

THE republican campaign committee, before the great strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania, distributed a circular labeled in big black letters: "Coal; a Barometer of Prosperity and Activity to Labor." This document is remarkable just now in two or three respects. One statement is as follows: "There is a tariff on coal, yet we appear to be capturing the markets of the world with that product." And then it is shown that for the year ending June 30, 1900, coal was shipped abroad to the value of more than $19,000,000. After this comes the statement that "Expansion is the order of the day in our coal industry as in all others. More men are employed at the mines. More wages are paid. The output is larger." Yes, there is a tariff on coal. It keeps foreign coal out so that the coal barons may levy a tribute on the American people to the extent of millions every year. The coal trust is thus assured of the American market at its own prices, and is enabled to send coal abroad and compete in foreign markets. Who gets the benefit? The trust, of course. The people get none of it, and as for the miners—well, just now we all know that nearly 150,000 of them are engaged in a life and death strike against starvation wages and trust tyranny. The statement that more men are employed in the mines is a self-evident lie. As for expansion being "the order of the day in our coal industry" that is true in a sense, but it is the expansion in cruelty and greed on the part of the trust and of suffering and hopelessness on the part of the miners.

THE CAMPAIGN ON.

The Adams County Democracy Lining Up.

Enthusiasm Growing and Much Interest Being Shown in the Campaign.

The appearance of Gen. P. Watt Hardin at the court house last Friday evening was the means of packing that public place with an enthusiastic crowd. The speaker was ill and unable to speak, but nevertheless for more than one hour his eloquence and convincing statements were attentively listened to and heartily cheered. He is a pleasant, yet forcible speaker, reviewing political history in a way that demonstrated his familiarity and knowledge thereof. Aside from his public speaking he also shows his culture, being a conversationalist that it is a treat to listen to.

At Berne Monday night a large crowd turned out to hear the Hon. Joseph T. Day, the next congressman from this district. He spoke for an hour and a half and fairly captivated those who heard him. He is an earnest talker and discussed well the pending issues. He makes a good appearance and is making an active canvass.

Tuesday evening a rousing meeting was held at Brandyberry school house in this township. The speakers were Hons. Joseph T. Day, C. M. France and John C. Moran. The issues were thoroughly discussed and much interest shown. The democrats in that part of Adams county are organized and alive and will come up smiling with a large majority for the democratic ticket.

The organization of the Boys Bryan and Stevenson Club was duly effected Monday evening, with twenty-three youthful members, all anxious to lend a helping hand in bringing about the triumphant election of the democratic standard bearers. They have a drum corps and are otherwise prepared to defend the honor and do missionary work for democracy.

Let it not be blotted from your mind that the man who wrote the anti-trust was Van Wyck, the New York Ice Trust magnate.—Journal.

Let it not be blotted from your mind that the above Van Wyck is not a member of the New York Ice Trust. Let it not be blotted from your mind that Senator Platt, the head of the republican machine, is one of the most influential members of this same ice trust, and for this reason Governor Roosevelt is not using his official power derogatory to the wishes of Boss Platt. But the democratic party is against the ice trust as well as every one of the other one hundred and fifty-three trusts organized since the reign of Hanna.
