

The Blues

is one signal which foretells physical decay. Another is pale lifeless skin. The muscles shrink and become flabby; the body becomes emaciated, and there is an early tendency to round shoulders. The step lacks elasticity, the nerves become weak; mental and physical activity are a burden.

This condition is called Nervous Debility; it is cured by the use of

Sexine Pills

They feed the hungry nerves, revive the weakened organs and make life brighter and sweeter to any man or woman who has suffered from physical drains.

Stricken with paralysis. Henderson Grimett, of this place, was stricken with partial paralysis and completely lost the use of one arm and side. After being treated by an eminent physician for quite a while without relief, my wife recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after using two bottles of it he is almost completely cured.—Geo. R. It is most widely known however, as a cure for rheumatism, sprains and bruises. Sold by Holthouse, Callow, & Co. o

Tot Causes Night Alarm.

"One night my brother's baby was taken with Croup," writes Mrs. J. C. Snider of Crittenden, Ky. "It seemed it would strangle before we could get a doctor, so we gave it Dr. King's New Discovery, which gave quick relief and permanently cured it. We always keep it in the house to protect our children from Croup and Whooping Cough. It cured me of a chronic bronchial trouble that no other remedy would relieve." The Cosmopolitan for October is full of entertaining fiction. Thomas A. Janvier, for some time not seen in the magazines, reappears in the Cosmopolitan with a Mexican story of love and adventure, "Forfeit to the Gods." Bret Harte, whose "condensed novels" won him so much fame, contributes a side splitting parody of Hall Caine's "The Christian." Irving Bacheller writes a short sketch of a little New York inn: "The Shadow of Happiness." E. W. Kemble tells a short humorous story of "How the Buzzards worked a Spell," while Clara Morrison's love story reveals her as an accomplished writer, capable of analyzing and sympathizing with man's deepest emotions.

Good Advice.—The most miserable beings in the world are those suffering from dyspepsia and liver complaint. More than seventy-five per cent. of the people of the United States are afflicted with these two diseases and their effects, such as sour stomach, sick headache, habitual constiveness, palpitation of the heart, heart-burn, waterbrash, gnawing and burning pains at the pit of the stomach, yellow skin, coated tongue and disagreeable taste in the mouth, coming up of food after eating, low spirits, etc. Go to your druggist and get a bottle of August Flower for 75 cents. A short while ago the Cosmopolitan published an article by a well known writer under the nom de plume of Rafford Pyke on "What Women Like in Men," which created wide interest, not only in America, but also in England. The Review of Reviews, of London, said that the article showed "rare sympathy, rarer penetration and rarest knowledge of woman's nature." In the Cosmopolitan for October the same author discusses with brilliance and keenness "What Men Like in Women." There are few in all the world who would not care to possess the pass ports to a man's or woman's affection, and it is doubtful if truer words were ever written about a problem which has occupied the world from the earliest days of which there is any record than those of this pointed little essay.

The electric fountain used in the production of that greatest of comedy dramas, "Old Arkansaw," is a marvelously beautiful and bewildering display. Streams of bona fide water spurt forth, forming in conjunction with the secret electrical arrangement a display never equalled by contemporary scenic amusement promoters. This truly great electrical apparatus was constructed for this company at an enormous outlay and has delighted and amazed the public wherever seen. This feature will be used during all performances given by this great company while en tour.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. It is related that recently a good Methodist and a good Baptist clergyman got to talking with each other at a church social. "I dreamed I was in heaven and saw no Baptists there," remarked the Methodist. "I inquired where they all were and was told they hadn't arrived yet, but were coming by water." "I dreamed that I was in heaven," replied the Baptist, "and saw no methodists there. Upon inquiry I was told that they were all outside the walls on six months probation."

A typical South African Store. O. R. Larson of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by Holthouse, Callow & Co.

In the tense language of the theatrical advance agent, "Old Arkansaw" is a corker. Like the cat, it has more than nine lives, and like the feline in the song, it always comes back. Jumping with a bound into popularity, it has maintained its hold upon the public with a grip that there seems no possibility of breaking. It has distanced all its rivals and bears the proud distinction of being the only big scenic production worthy of the name before the public. A strong, compact play, possessing those delicate touches of pathos and humor and all the virile force and vigor of the drama, it ought to run on indefinitely. Another excellent reason may be given for its success—its owner now possesses the most elaborate and expensive stage outfit of any company traveling. No attempt has been made to cheapen the attraction by the engagement of incompetent actors. The old standard of excellence is religiously maintained and the result is shown in the continued loyalty of the supporters. "Old Arkansaw" is a play of many parts, and will be seen in this city at an early date.

One Way to Boil a Ham.

The following is the recipe of the famous John Chamberlin of Washington for boiling a ham: "To boil a ham a la Chamberlin, the night before put the ham in a tub of cold water, flesh part downward, skin part up. Next morning put the ham in a large kettle or pot of cold water to boil. Let the water get hot gradually and continue to cook the ham out, throw the water out of the pot and fill it with fresh cold water. Put the ham back immediately and let it simmer or boil slowly five hours more. Then add, according to the size of your purse, a gallon of vinegar or a gallon of claret or burgundy or champagne; then simmer or boil for three hours more. Then take the ham off, skin it and put in a cool place. Next morning trim it and eat when you are ready.

"To prevent the ham from tearing or the water suddenly boiling too fast it is always safe to sew a piece of cotton cloth tightly around the ham so as to fit as close as a glove. This will keep the meat firm and guard against the neglect of the cook in letting the water boil too fast."—New York Herald.

A Clever Woman's Answer.

"Do you not consider your husband the most graceless sinner in existence?" This question was asked the wife of a gay Lothario by a rival for his affections while playing a game called "candor."

The stillness became intense and every pair of eyes grew rounder as those present looked from one woman to the other. It was the husband's voice that broke the silence.

"Your question is out of order, Beatrice," he said quietly. "It is a rule laid down in courts of law that a woman is not required to testify against her husband."

In the confusion that followed as the game broke up the man sought his wife's side. "What should you have replied to the query of the fair Beatrice if I had not come to your rescue so neatly?" he demanded.

"I should have said you were a sinner, yes, but a graceful rather than a graceless one."—Lippincott's.

Slow but Inexorable Justice.

In October, 1900, Pietro Giacconi and Marie Bonelli were tried at Rome on a charge of sextuple murder by poisoning committed 31 years before. In England Eugene Aram was hanged for the murder of Clarke 14 years after the offense. A man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child in the eighteenth century no less than 35 years after the offense. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was executed in 1802 for a murder committed in 1782. Sherward was hanged at Norwich for the murder of his wife after a lapse of 20 years.

But Sir Fitzjames Stephens recalls what is the most remarkable case of all. He prosecuted as counsel for the crown in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register 60 years before—that is, in 1803. In this case the prisoner was acquitted.

The Strength of a Shark.

Given special advantages, such as that of holding the end of a stout rope at the other extremity of which is a hook fixed in a shark's mouth, man may, with the assistance of a number of his fellows, have the best of the shark. But alone and in the water the advantage is wholly and absolutely the other way, and the strongest swimmer and the bravest heart fail when the tyrant of the sea seeks to make his acquaintance.

The shark is a creature gifted with great strength, a savage temper, dogged perseverance and exceptional power of jaw. The lion and tiger may mangle, the crocodile may lacerate, the bulldog may hold fast—the shark alone of living creatures possesses the power of nipping off a human limb at a clean bite.

Gender of the Sword.

Among the many curious notions obtaining among the different races using the sword may be noted the gender of the weapon. In the north of Europe it was either masculine, as in Britain, or neuter, as in Germany, while in the south it was uniformly feminine. Its force and cruelty appealed to the northern mind. Its grace and elegance attracted the warriors of the sunny south. It typified to the one strength, to the other dignity.—Exchange.
