OFFICIAL PAPER OF ADAMS COUNTY.
THURSDAY, OCT. 3.

The anti-Tammany forces of Greater New York have nominated Seth Low for mayor.

The portrait of the late president will adorn the new series of national notes that will soon be issued.

HAVING seen nothing to the contrary, we suppose that Judge Hench is still a candidate for congress in the twelfth district.

CZOLGOSZ, the doomed assassin of President McKinley, was taken from Buffalo to Auburn state prison Friday to await death by electrocution.

THE Indianapolis election takes place next Tuesday, and while the result is in doubt, yet the democrats have made a noble fight and deserve to win. Indianapolis is at least 3,000 republican and with 6,500 voting negroes, the odds numerically are against the democrats.

KENTUCKY authorities have asked Governor Durbin for a requisition for Taylor and Finley, the two refugees who have been harbored by the Indiana g. o. p. for the past two years. Up to this time the governor has rendered no decision in the matter, but indications point to a refusal.

THE Muncie Times editorially preaches against yellow journalism and then makes room for a contributor to puke up a column of dirty rag weed in which he tried to maintain that the principles advocated by Emma Goldman were identical with the teachings of Bryan. The Times is certainly too yellow to be making faces at any of the fraternity.

CZOLGOSZ says it was the teachings of anarchy that instigated him to take the life of the president, while the republican organs say it was the influence of the Hearst newspaper cartoons. If the editors are correct in their view then every republican newspaper that published a villainous caricature of William J. Bryan was a teacher of crime.—Miami County Sentinel.

THE foreign born voting population of Patterson, New Jersey, the hot bed of anarchy, exceeds the native born population by more than 3,500. It was at this place the plot was formed to murder King Humbolt of Italy, as well as that President McKinley had been marked for assassination. Italian anarchists make up this foreign population at Patterson, they being employed in the large silk factories. The red flag waves with absolute freedom at Patterson, and the anarchists there are in the employ of the trusts, and the trusts are closely allied to the g. o. p. Draw your own conclusions as to which political party is responsible for the wholesale scattering of the seeds of anarchy.

THE Indiana weekly wage law has been held constitutional by a test case in the Delaware circuit court.

THE Indianapolis Sentinel is making a lively fight in the municipal campaign now raging at fire heat. Their election occurs October 9, and the outlook is bright for the triumphant election of the democratic candidates.

FRANK MARTIN, deputy auditor of state, has been mentioned as the new warden of the northern prison, to take the place of G. A. H. Schidler whose resignation a few weeks ago caused a sensation. Dr. Horn of Bluffton, has accepted the post of resident physician for the prison.

PATTERSON, N. J., has gained the unenviable reputation of being an anarchist headquarters for the United States. Patterson is in a republican congressional district in a state whose governor is a republican. These facts are mentioned for the benefit of a few republican organs which have seemingly allowed their partisanship to run mad.—The Commoner.

EDITOR FORNSHELL of the Elwood Call-Leader, is proving to be a very irritating fly in the ointment of Congressman Cromer. It is claimed that he has organized the republican newspapers of the eighth district against the Muncie statesman and that his nomination is now impossible. All this grows from the fact that there is but one postoffice in Elwood and Editor Fornshell did not get that one.—Kokomo Dispatch.

It is rather picayunish in many republican journals to insinuate that the assassination of President McKinley can in any way be attributed to democratic doctrine. The democratic party is and always has been a believer in law, order and the majority rule. On the other hand the files of the republican newspapers during the campaigns of 1896 and 1900 will show with what tender solicitude they alluded to democrats as "anarchists." History records in no instance of the democratic party running rough shod over the will of the people and stealing a presidency, or of a democratic governor setting aside the federal constitution, and taking under his protection men legally indicted for murder in another state. Here is anarchy not taught but practiced.

THE petitioners in asking that the Decatur and Preble macadam road be built within the corporate limits to Fifth street, was the means of defeating the whole proposition, at the election last Saturday. Many of those who are favorable to macadam roads voted against the road Saturday because they felt the imposition of building their own streets and their neighbors as well. They were justified in such a course on such an argument. At the same time it might have been better to have laid this little defect aside and voted for the road. Decatur as a business center depends almost entirely upon its agricultural trade, and to get it good roads must prevail. The macadam roads now built and under construction have already amply demonstrated their benefits to the merchants of our city. Let the building of good roads continue.

FALL SUITS.

NOBODY means to buy poor clothes—certainly not, but a lot of them get worn out every year. Even poor stuff looks pretty good at first. Better not go by your own judgment alone, except as to style. Better trust us, not so much because our clothes are better than usual—THEY ARE—but because we make them right if they go wrong.

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, was born in New York on October 27, 1858. The Roosevelt family is one of the oldest in the United States, the forbears of the president being prominent in the early history of New York under the Dutch rulers of that province. President Roosevelt had many advantages, among them being the opportunity to acquire an education and in 1880 he was graduated from Harvard university. Politics early engaged his attention. In 1882 he was elected to the legislature of New York, serving one term in the house. In 1886 he was a candidate for mayor of New York City, but was defeated. The campaign he made for that office attracted the attention of the republican leaders, and in 1889 he was appointed as a member of the national civil service commission. He served in this capacity until 1895, when he was made president of the New York police board. He served in this capacity until 1897, when he was appointed to the position of assistant secretary of the navy. When the Spanish-American war broke out he resigned his position as assistant secretary of the navy and with Dr. (now general) Leonard Wood recruited the First United States cavalry volunteers, of which he was made lieutenant-colonel. This regiment was popularly known as "Roosevelt's Rough Riders." This regiment distinguished itself in Cuba, and after the battle of La Quasina Lieutenant-Colonel Roosevelt was made colonel. Colonel Wood having been promoted. After the declaration of peace Colonel Roosevelt returned home, and later in the year (1898) was nominated by the republicans of New York for governor. He was elected after an exciting campaign and served out a full term. He was nominated for vice-president of the United States by the republican national convention in Philadelphia in June, 1900, and elected the following November. By the death of President McKinley he succeeded to the presidency.

President Roosevelt has especially distinguished himself in the field of letters, having written a number of books and being the author of numerous magazine articles. Among others of his books the following are perhaps known:

"Winning of the West," "Life of Gouverneur Morris," "Life of Thomas Hart Benton," "Naval War of 1812," "History of New York," "American Ideals and Other Essays," "The Wilderness Hunter," "Hunting Trips of a Ranchman," "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail," "Hero Tales from American History," and "Rough Riders," the last being a review of the war with Spain insofar as the regiment commanded by Colonel Roosevelt was concerned.

Theodore Roosevelt's nomination for vice-president was made against his earnest protest. He sought by every means within his power to prevent his name being presented to the convention for that office, but when the nomination came to him unanimously he bowed to the will of the party to which he had always paid his allegiance and entered upon the campaign with characteristic vigor. He traveled across the country making campaign speeches, everywhere greeted by great crowds anxious to see and hear not only the candidate for vice-president, but to see and hear the man, who next to Schley and Schaffer, was the most talked of man in connection with the campaign in Cuba.—Commoner.

BUTCHERS ARE IMMUNE.

Meat Dealers. It Is Said, Never Die of Consumption.

"Butchers never die of consumption." The big man with his sleeves rolled up, wielding the cleaver at the block, said this as he threw a beefsteak on the scale.

It sounded more like a trade superstition than a fact, but so far as diligent inquiry has been able to discover it is true, although not generally known outside of the meat chopping craft.

Butchers are no longer lived than men in other walks of life. They are subject to all the other ills that human flesh is heir to, but consumption they do not have. So far as a reporter was able to learn not a single case is on record of a butcher in this city being afflicted with the incurable wasting of the lungs which claims its hundreds of thousands of victims annually.

The fact is well known among butchers and has been often the subject of their comment, although none of them can give a reason for it.

"No," said a man who has swung sides and rounds in Washington market for the last 20 years; "I have had rheumatism and typhoid fever and lots of other things, but nothing has ever been out of gear with my lungs, and the same is true of every other butcher in this town. I know nearly all of them, and I never heard of one of them having consumption. They don't drink blood or take any especially good care of themselves either. I don't know why it should be so unless it's because the continual inhaling of an atmosphere of fresh meat is strengthening."

"I have often thought when hearing of consumptives going to Colorado and Egypt that I know of a climate nearer home that would do the business just as well. If they would stay in this stall for a while and swing meat, they would get well quite as quickly as they would on the top of Pike's peak."—New York Mail and Express.

ANIMAL LIFE.

In Maryland sparrows have been known to raise six broods in one year. In England there are seldom more than three broods.

Ostrich farms are profitable. Birds are worth $100 apiece, and a good specimen yields about $25 worth of feathers at a plucking.

Cats evince, as is well known, a curious emotional disturbance when in the neighborhood of valerian plant, of which they are very fond. It apparently produces in them a species of intoxication.

There are records of elephants that have lived for 200 years, and an age of 150 years is not regarded as so very old for an elephant. It takes about a quarter of a century to get the elephant to full maturity.

A French anatomist has analyzed the skeletons of 86 chimpanzees, gorillas and orang outangs and asserts that he has found in them bone diseases like those which afflict mankind and in about the same proportion.

He Was Satisfied.

A farmer entered an office in central New York and sent this message to a woman in Canada: "Will you be my wife? Please answer quick by telegraph." Although he waited the rest of the day, he got no answer, but the next morning he got a night dispatch, sent collect, but favorable. The operator in expressing his sympathy said, "Little rough to keep you in suspense so long."

"Look a-here, sonny," the farmer remarked. "I'll stand all the suspense."

SAY!

Our big fair week sale was a "cracker jack," and we have demonstrated that we are a factor in the shoe business of Adams county... We want to say right here that our plan of business is "Big Sales and Small Profits," and your money back if you are not satisfied. Let us show you through our shoes, they will speak for themselves.
