BOULDER IS A BEAUTIFUL CITY

It is a College City, But is Filled With Western Progress and is Rapidly Increasing in Population

Boulder, Colo., Jan. 14, 1906. Thinking it might be interesting to some of the Democrat readers to know something about "Boulder, the place to live," will give a short description of our western city.

Boulder is located in one of Colorado's loveliest valleys, 29 miles north-west of Denver. It has a population of 12,030. A beautiful stream, from which it derives its name, flows through the city. The Arapahoe glacier, one of the slow moving, but sublime powers, which have transformed the topography of Boulder county, is located at the headwaters of this stream. Here you can stand on the Arapahoe's ice covered peaks from whose inexhaustible stores Boulder people get the water they drink. The water is brought direct to the city in a steel pipe line recently constructed at a cost of $200,000. The whole system cost the city nearly $500,000. This chain of lakes, lie twenty miles up the mountains at the foot of the Arapahoe's peaks and fed by the Arapahoe glacier comprising nearly 250 acres of ice, the whole mass moving from seventeen to twenty-seven feet per year, the only typical glacier in Colorado. The gutters of the streets are running full of this clear water, to cleanse and cool and to cause to spring up a forest of delightful shade along every thoroughfare.

Boulder is called the college town of Colorado. It has the college spirit as no other town in the West. Seat of the splendid state university, its citizens are first to herald and to witness its athletic events, its commencements, its oratorical and debating contests. Even the banks close on a big foot ball day. This university has 1,000 students and grows as does the town, 20 per cent every year. Boulder never boomed. Like Topsy she "just grew." She was the only town in Colorado that didn't have a failure in the awful panic of 1893.

We have four banks which are pillars of strength. They hold two million dollars of deposits. Boulder is a delightful city with admirable schools several sanitariums, an admirable sewer system, fine churches, representing nearly all denominations.

Boulder valley teems with coal and produces over a million tons a year. Fuel is very cheap. Good oil and gas wells are found near Boulder and many homes here enjoy gas fire-places and gas ranges for the housewife.

In the foothills to our west an average output of $750,000 of gold and silver is produced—mostly gold. Boulder county produces more tungsten than any other district in the world.

The great prosperity of Boulder county is due in a large measure to the intense development of agricultural resources with the best sugar industry the greatest stimulus, though other industries have contributed to the general prosperity.

The Colorado Chautauqua has done much toward increasing the population by bringing strangers to our city who later become investors and home builders.

More than $400,000 was spent last year in building operations. A new $100,000 hotel, a $40,000 Y. M. C. A., a $30,000 Carnegie library, a $60,000 federal building and a $350,000 beet sugar factory are among the new buildings for the present year. Through the efforts of the Boulder Commercial association and the enterprise of the county commissioners a scenic drive-way has been recently built by the county, leading up Flag Staff mountain above the city and joining the old Gregory canyon road about two miles above the city, leading to south Boulder canyon and Magnolia.

As we go up this scenic driveway we see both a world land and a wonderland, with thousands of canyons, glens, valleys, parks and snow-capped peaks (even in the month of July) raising their mighty forms up into a world of their own.

The balmy aroma of the pines, the exquisite beauty and endless variety of wild flowers, the picturesque peaks and all the wonders of nature as shown in her mineral and geological world confer upon the visitor perfect health, gives him the most idealistic recreation, teaches him some of nature's mysteries and fills him with an uplifting awe for the Creator of the Universe.

NEW PARTITION SUIT IS FILED

By J. E. Moser Against Harry Cordua —Motion to Dismiss Fritzing Appeal.

Today marked the closing of the November term of the Adams Circuit court and a two weeks' vacation follows, preceding the February term.

James E. Moser, through Attorneys Peterson & Moran, has filed suit against Harry Cordua for partition of real estate located in the south part of this township. The case is said to contain an interesting law question.

In the appeal of Erastus Fritzing from his assessment on North Second street, L. C. DeVoss representing the city of Decatur, filed a motion to dismiss the appeal.

Susie Melching vs. William Melching, divorce and alimony, answer filed by prosecuting attorney.

Old Adams County Bank vs. W. E. Smith et al., defendant ruled to answer on February 4th, 1907.

Elizabeth Kern vs. Chicago & Erie railroad company, $1500 damages, defendant ruled to answer first day of February term.

Andrew Miller vs. Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad company, $300 damages, defendant ruled to answer on first day of next term.

Daniel N. Erwin, guardian for Benjamin and Clarence Hoagland and filed bond for $1500. A petition was filed for the sale of an interest in real estate and W. A. Lower and Curtis Brown were appointed appraisers.

Attorneys Beatty and DeVoss had a heated argument over the Fritzing appeal in court this morning and the court reminded them as to time and place, an apology being the result.

INDIANA DELEGATION DIVIDED

Ship Subsidy Bill Making Them Sweat —The House Legislators Increase Their Salaries.

Washington, Jan. 19.—There will be no currency legislation of consequence at this session of congress. So much opposition to the bill reported by the house committee on banking and currency, embodying the recommendations of the commission representing the American Bankers' Association, has developed that the speaker will not open a right-of-way for it. In the meantime, various suggestions for currency legislation will be informally discussed by the legislators. Perhaps by next December it may be possible for congress to agree on a bill.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The members of the Indiana delegation in the house have not decided how they will vote on the ship subsidy bill. With possibly one or two exceptions, the representatives from the state were inclined to support the compromise bill subsidy bill until they received letters from home warning them of the strong sentiment in the state against any subsidy legislation. These letters have been coming in by the wholesale in the last twenty-four hours.

Washington, Jan. 19.—By a vote of 133 to 95 the house today voted that the salaries of senators, representatives and the delegates from Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska be increased to $7,500 a year after March 4, 1907, and fixing the salaries of the vice president, speaker and members of the cabinet at $12,000.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father.

Mrs. Nancy Sheets and family.

At a session of the Adams County Poultry Association officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: D. M. Rice, president; Tom Durkin, treasurer; H. O. Grove, superintendent; Charles Magley, secretary; Fred Bell, vice president; S. R. Peoples, H. C. Clark and Burt Wolf, executive committee.

THE ENTIRE TRAIN IS BURNED

A Score of People Cremated, While Would-be Rescuers are Helpless to Aid Them.

(Scripps-McRae Special.)

Fowler, Ind., Jan. 19.—At an early hour this morning, number thirty-eight, Queen City special on the Big Four railroad, collided with a freight train which had the right-of-way a half mile east of here. At least twenty-five are dead and fifty injured. It was the most terrible wreck in the history of the road. The passenger train was going fifty miles an hour when the crash came. Twenty people, penned in beneath the wreck, burned to death within half an hour. Owing to the dense fog the engineer of the flyer was unable to see the light on the signal tower, telling him that a freight had the right-of-way. The operator at the block knew this and went out on the track, frantically waved his lantern and fired several pistol shots, but the engineer let her fly past at the rate of fifty miles an hour. A moment later the awful crash came. The tender of No. 38 telescoped the baggage car and the rear end of the tender cut through to within ten feet of the smoker. The firemen of both trains were killed instantly, but the engineers both escaped by jumping. The report of the collision was heard all over town. Fire bells and whistles called people to aid of the injured. The wreckage took fire immediately and the flames, fanned by a high wind, soon destroyed almost the entire train, cremating many injured, pinned beneath cars. Those injured and those who could be hastily extricated, were taken to Kankakee. One man pleading piteously for aid, was extricated when the flames were within six feet of him.

The injured were taken to Kankakee, Ill., in Vice President Schaff's private car which was attached to the passenger train and occupied by Mrs. Schaff who escaped uninjured. None of the sleeper passengers were killed. Only a few of the dead have been identified, including P. J. Higginer, Indianapolis; J. McGee, Indianapolis; Henry Outgate, Cincinnati; John Schamman, Williamsport; W. B. Harris, Indianapolis. The heat of the burning cars was so intense that in many cases the rescuers could not get near the injured and they had to be left to burn alive, pleading piteously to be taken out. Strong men looked and wept because they could do nothing. The only woman in the combination coach cried pitifully for help. Farmers brought axes and saws and worked manfully to chop her out of the ruins, in spite of the approaching flames. Finally they got to her only to find that she was held down by a steel beam which they could not break. They had to retire only to watch her burn slowly to death with the most terrific and agonizing cries on her lips. She pleaded that they shoot her but none would do so. She frantically tried to choke herself to death, but her strength failed her. Those who escaped were exposed to cold and rain, none had time to dress, many being attired only in night attire. In this way they were taken to Kankakee after having seen their belongings and traveling companions cremated. Several women are on the verge of insanity. John O'Shannon died on the train en route to Kankakee.

PROVED A BANNER SUCCESS

Many Buyers Here From Far and Near and the Bidding Was Spirited.

The first of the big horse sales to be given by the Decatur Horse Sale Company at the new sale stables of Boch & Rice, on First street was held Saturday, sale starting promptly at ten o'clock. The barn, which is one of the largest sale barns in the state at present, was packed with buyers from far and near, representatives of leading horse firms from New York, Chicago, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Fort Wayne and Winchester being present, and the bidding was spirited and every horse offered brought his actual worth. Over one hundred and fifty head of horses were offered for sale and at the close it was found that every animal offered had been sold and at prices that met with the approval of all. The sale was auctioneered by Fred Reppert, who, as upon past occasions, conducted himself in his usual pleasing manner and always got the top price for the horse offered for sale, thus pleasing the owner of the horse and also the buyer.

The new sale barn is a dandy and Messrs Boch & Rice were the recipients of many congratulations upon the manner in which the same was erected as to accommodating horses, buyers and crowd and in general upon the mammoth stables. The stable is arranged so that several hundred horses can be easily handled, while on the north side of the building is a large pavilion where the horses are shown and sold to the highest bidder. This stable means many dollars for Decatur and also means much to the farmer as he is thus always afforded an opportunity to offer his horse flesh to the market and receive the highest market price for the same. Messrs. Boch & Rice should receive the congratulations of the public at large in this their new enterprise, as they have constructed and erected the best money maker for Decatur that has ever been broached in the city. It will pay any one to call and look this mammoth stable over.

It is stated here in the railroad circles that a spotter, reported to be of the feminine gender, has been making trips over the Clover Leaf system from Toledo to St. Louis, for several weeks. It is claimed that her rides and reports, which had to make a showing, is responsible for the discharge or suspension of two passenger conductors, one on the east division out of here and one of the Frankfort-St. Louis portion.
