ANOTHER STORY ON BRYAN

Some Wise One Thinks He is Itching to Put on the Gloves With Roosevelt.

Washington, October 21.—If congress at the coming session prohibits the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia, as now seems probable, President Roosevelt will be in an embarrassing position. For tactical reasons the prohibitionists will tack their bill to an appropriation measure, so as to assure its passage. When such an appropriation bill comes before the president he will have to decide, first, whether he can afford to jeopardize the interests of the branch of the government for which the appropriation is proposed, by vetoing the whole bill in order to get rid of the objectionable clause. If he decides he cannot afford to interpose a veto he will have to decide whether he shall obey it and furnish no wine to guests at the white house. There is no power on earth that can compel the president to observe any law. As all writs in the District of Columbia run in his name, it is obvious that he would not arrest himself for disregarding a law. That he had disregarded it would be notice to all peace officers that he had decided not to enforce it against himself.

Washington, October 21.—Mr. Bryan has been delivering addresses in the country south of Washington, and some of his strong friends in the faith have just come from his presence. They seem to have heard things that were much more interesting than anything he had to say in his public addresses. These Washington adherents of the Nebraska intimate so sharply that intimation has the strength of direct statement that when December comes Mr. Bryan is certain to declare himself a candidate for the Democratic nomination, provided that then it seems to be clear that the Republicans are to renominate Roosevelt. If it appears that the president cannot under any circumstances be forced into the field, Mr. Bryan will put off the declaration of his intentions for another month or so.

THE VILLAGE KNOCKER.

Under the spreading lemon tree The village knocker stands; The tree is never known to yield Aught but the sweetest brands: And unto all that come that way The fruit thereof he hands.

And though his knocks be loud and long; As sour as sour can be— He helps to boost the world along— A fact 'tis plain to see.

Without him we would all go wrong. And be a fool like he. Mrs. Wm. Sullivan and daughter Nellie left Wednesday for Decatur, after a short visit here with relatives and friends. The Sullivan family is at present located at Robinson, Ills. Mrs. Sullivan and her two children Nellie and Clyde came to Decatur Tuesday to attend the funeral of Grandpa Augsburg, who died at the infirmary. Clyde has concluded to remain in this part of the state again and is clerking in the restaurant of his uncle Charles at Decatur.—Berne News.

Adam Brown, supposed to have been connected with Sell's Bros. shows; also supposed to be to un-sound mind and from Schenectady, New York, and who has been at the county jail for six weeks, is just as much of a prize puzzle and a white elephant as he was on the day he was brought here. Adam is contented as long as he can have his own way but he gets vicious when he is crossed in any manner. When the county will do with him is a matter that is at a stand still.—Columbia City Post.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE. This Sentiment Abroad at Fontanet. Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 21.—Sunday, following the disaster which destroyed the town of Fontanet, was spent in quietude by the citizens. The day was spent consoling one another and the sentiment seems to be "It might have been worse." Men, women and children with bandaged heads and arms were to be seen here and there with sad and drawn faces and others were cheerful and optimistic as possible under the circumstances. About ten thousand curious visitors and sight-seers thronged the streets today. Proprietors of stores did a thriving business in the way of lunches and cigars. The soldiers were busy today keeping souvenir-seekers off of private grounds. Although close guard was kept, some of the barbarously inclined remembrance seekers were seen to have many gruesome objects in their possession, such as a dismembered finger or a toe. Religious services were held as usual today, and at the same time carpenters were working busily repairing houses. Many buildings have given away since the disaster and fallen to the ground.

TOWN VISITED BY BIG BLAZE

Loss is $20,000—Mr. Peterson's Loss is $1,200 With Partial Insurance.

Word has been received from Sherwood, Ohio, from Bob Peterson, who recently moved to that city where he is representing the Watkins' Medical company that their beautiful little city was visited by fire on last Friday and as a result he was burned out entirely. The fire started in a candy kitchen and soon spread rapidly into the adjoining buildings which were frame and before the flames were gotten under control seven business places were wiped out of existence with losses ranging from two hundred and fifty dollars to five thousand. The total loss being estimated at twenty thousand dollars. Mr. Peterson's loss was on household goods, clothing and a stock of patent medicines which were valued at twelve hundred dollars and on which he carried but seven hundred insurance, thus making his actual loss five hundred dollars. Mr. Peterson had just become nicely settled in his new home and was working up a nice business when this misfortune overtook him. Bob will still continue to reside in Sherwood and will at once move into new quarters and commence all over again.

A GOOD ONE ON SOL.

A Clover Leaf Freight Was His Jonah the Other Day.

Because a Clover Leaf freight train stood across the street more than the time allowed by law at Bluffton last evening Sol Carter missed the M. B. and E. traction car standing on the opposite side waiting when he arrived at the blockaded street crossing. An hour and a half's wait for the next car was not calculated to put the traveling representative of the Attica Bridge company in the best of humor, but he took the next car, which left Bluffton on time, and had about forgotten the occurrence when he arrived in Marion. But there, standing right across Fourth street and blockading the passengers who wanted to get up town was the same freight train that had caused his long wait in Bluffton. After waiting for several minutes, Mr. Carter, with other traveling men, walked back around the end of the train. The fact that the conductor of the crew was arrested and fined may have been a direct result of the stimulus given the depot policeman by Sol Carter. Who knows?—Marion Leader.

J. Kirby Risk, of Lafayette, district chairman and secretary of the Jackson club of his home city, has extended an invitation to Congressman John A. M. Adair to accept a place on the program at the club's annual banquet to be held at Lafayette on the evening of Monday, November 18th. This is one of the big annual Democratic events of the state. Hon. W. J. Bryan has likewise accepted an invitation to be present and address the assembled democracy.—Portland Sun.

The Appellate court has handed down a decision of great interest and importance to attorneys in Indiana. In the case of Wm. P. Miedreich, an Evansville attorney, who is suing to recover his fee in a matter that his client compromised with an insurance company after she had instructed him to bring suit to enforce the payment of a policy, the court decided that Miedreich cannot be defrauded of his fee, and that he may proceed to collect it.

Reports just compiled by the Indiana Bureau of Statistics indicate that the Hoosier hen has not been working overtime during the last year. These reports cover the year ending March 1, 1907. They were gathered by the township assessors. According to the reports 62,980,103 dozens of eggs were produced in Indiana during the year ending March 1 last. During the year ending March 1, 1906, the number of dozens of eggs produced was 63,096,754.

A Rigid Examination. Colonel Alexander Gardner, in his volume entitled "Soldier and Traveler," says that during a stay in Asia he was once suspected of being a Russian spy.

This was an accusation of great consequence, as Russians were very unpopular at the time, but the traveler was prostrate with fever and almost indifferent as to what might befall him.

Application was made to the kham of Khiva, and in a great state of anxiety as to the traveler's identity he deputed three learned men who had traveled over half the world to examine him. This was the abstruse and terrific examination with which they were satisfied.

"What are you?" asked they. "An American," was the answer. Still they were suspicious, and one man, a very enlightened scholar, offered as a crowning test this deep and conclusive geographical question: "Could you go by land from America to England?"

"No," was the prompt reply, and the questioner, as much delighted at his own superior learning as at the traveler's integrity, declared that he was convinced. This was an American indeed.

"Listeners Seldom Hear," Etc. Two elderly maiden sisters had long lived together—one gentle and sweet the other arid in temper and forbidding in appearance. The former was taken suddenly ill, and the other, anxious to know whether the doctors thought her sister would live—as she was desirous of acquiring the money she knew her gentle sister had willed her—hid behind a screen in the morning room, where the doctors soon after came down to consult.

"Well," asked Dr. Harris, "what do you think of her?" "Think of her?" cried Dr. Brown. "Of all the antiquated, vinaigrette old hags ever created I think she is the very worst! What is Providence thinking of to inflict pain on that gentle soul upstairs and leave untouched a gaunt, withered caricature of humanity such as this, other? Jump into my motor with me, and we'll chat about our patient as we go."

And they "goed," leaving the eaves-dropper to come from her hiding place as they retreated.—Illustrated Bits.

Literary Stone. The struggling author boldly entered the editorial sanctum.

"I have come with my latest story," he announced. "That so?" ejaculated the busy editor. "Let us hear how it runs."

"Well, this is from the first chapter. 'Casper had been standing as motionless as a block of granite. Suddenly he dropped on his knees before the beautiful girl with the alabaster brow and boldly proposed. It was then that she answered with a stony stare and banded him the marble heart. Then!'"

But the busy editor reached for the clipping shears.

"Young man," he thundered, "you have made a mistake. Take that story down to the nearest stoneyard. This is an editorial office."—Chicago News.
