The grand jury room was a busy place Tuesday and Bailiff Joseph Johnson had no complaint to offer that he lacked company. All day long the corridor was crowded and some of those summoned will have to return tomorrow. From a glance at the witnesses it was easy to guess that the case under consideration behind the secret walls was that of young Wolfe who is charged with causing the death of Jacob Mangold. There are several other crimes of more or less seriousness to be investigated and the session may require a few days longer than usual.

CLEAR TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS

Rummage Sale Was a Most Successful Affair.

The Methodist ladies who have just closed a rummage sale in the city building are delighted with the success and they certainly have a right to feel good. The credit side of their bank book shows a balance of about two hundred dollars as a result of the ten days in business, and besides this they fitted out a number of poor families who will bless them on many a cold day this winter. They also saved about twenty-five dollars worth of goods with which to pack their missionary barrel. The ladies are likewise more than ever certain that it pays to advertise. They sold quite a number of articles through the notices given them in the Daily Democrat and were very earnest in their thanks for same. One man came thirteen miles to secure some of the bargains after he had read of the sale, and several others told them in plain language how it happened that they knew of the sale.

Friends and neighbors numbering about seventy-five, most of whom were members of the W. R. C. and G. A. R. went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Russell, the newly wedded aged couple, where an old fashioned bellringing was given. The bellringers were invited in the house and the groom distributed cigars to the men, while the ladies contented themselves by an old-fashioned taffy pulling. Games and music furnished amusement until the wee hours of the morning when the guests departed declaring it the time of their life.

A small company of friends were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Archbold last evening. The playing of "500" was indulged in for several hours, two tables being surrounded by the guests. That every Decatur industry is in operation at present is encouraging. The wage earners are promised employment throughout the winter and in this event it is not probable that so many families will be in destitute circumstances.

Mr. Guy is remembered for his connection with the famous Guy Stock company, in which he was featured for many seasons. A strong acting company is in his support in his new play.

While here Deems was fixed out with some household goods by his employers, but which did not belong to him. When he got ready to leave he sold the goods and kept the money. An affidavit was filed and Ed went north. Deems heard of his arrival and hid, but was discovered and his employers at Kendallville finally paid the bill and Deems was released.

The Decatur public schools are being largely attended this year, and the superintendent and school board are appreciative of same. Interest is at high tension in every room and the pupils are accorded the best of instruction. It seems that a little visiting by the parents as was done last year would help to put the proper gingers in the schools. Nothing should be neglected which tends to advance the interests of young manhood and young womanhood.

The beautiful winter weather we are enjoying at present is very acceptable to all. We have long hoped for rain, however, without getting any amount mentionable. Rain would be of little value to the farmers now, anyway, unless to fill their cisterns. The wheat could be benefitted little if any and in fact but a half crop has been planted. The weather of this winter and next spring will determine whether or not the wheat that is planted will turn out well.

The wedding of two old people in Decatur Saturday is of interest here because of the fact that the groom is the father of Marion, Sylvester and Charles Fouts, the carpenters. The couple was Timothy Fouts, aged 76, and Mrs. Jane Wible, aged 72. They came from their home in Geneva accompanied by Rev. G. M. Myers, of that city, and securing license were married in the east room of the clerk known as "Lovers' Retreat" in the court house of Adams county. The only witness to the ceremony was Clerk Roop. The bride is a nurse by profession and has been married twice, while Mr. Fouts is venturing his third time into matrimony. They will reside on his farm near Geneva, to which place they repaired at the conclusion of the ceremony—Bluffton News.

Harper was hunting in his home township of Wabash county and the law permits a man to hunt rabbits in his own township without having a state license. Harper was hunting in his home township Thursday afternoon when he scared up a bunny that broke all speed records in making its getaway. Harper followed the rabbit, and the chase carried him out of his township. Unwittingly he had left the boundaries of his own township. He pleaded guilty at Marion to hunting without a license—Bluffton News.

When the young boy met with the accident it was not thought that it would be serious other than the break in the arm, which it was thought would soon heal. Since then, however, internal injuries have come to light and the life of the little fellow is despaired of—Bluffton News.
