Fred Richards, aged seventy, of this county, died at the northern prison, at Michigan City, Saturday, after an illness of several months with tuberculosis. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Elwood Blazer of this city, but so far as learned no arrangements have been made to have the remains brought here. Mr. Richards lived in this county many years. About twenty-five years ago he was arrested for the murder of a man named Amos Backestoe, was tried at Fort Wayne and found guilty and sentenced to Michigan City for life. In 1904 he was paroled after having served nineteen years. He came back here and remained for some time, but was unable to work and Alonso Uptgraft, convicted in the circuit court three weeks ago at attempting to rape his niece, Miss Bonnie Owen, will escape a trip to the state prison through the clemency shown him by Judge LaFollette on Saturday forenoon when he was arraigned in court that judgment might be rendered on the verdict returned by the jury which found Uptgraft guilty of the crime with which he as charged but through sympathy had recommended him to the mercy of the court. Judge LaFollette announced that he was prompted solely in his lenient action in suspending the sentence by the reports made to him by the two practicing physicians who since the conviction of Uptgraft have examined him at the county jail relative to the probable effects of the gunshot wound in his head and said that the reports indicated that if sent to prison Uptgraft's days on earth would be considerably lessened as he was in no condition to withstand the close confinement and the hard labor imposed on state prisoners. Mrs. Uptgraft and two children arrived in the city on the morning train and were in the court room at the time their husband and father was arraigned before the court and later went with him to the county jail. Following the re-committal of Uptgraft to jail, the wife overjoyed with the action of Judge LaFollette, approached him intending to thank him for the kindness shown her husband but Judge LaFollette refused to accept her proffer of thanks.—Portland Sun.

THE HOLTHOUSE DRUG CO.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, announced shortly after his arrival from New York to deliver his lecture that he will acquiesce in the proposition that the University of Copenhagen be asked to waive its claim to a prior examination of his records, in order that American geographical societies and other scientific bodies in this country may be enabled to review his data. He said he would be satisfied to have the decisions of all these tribunals announced simultaneously. Frankness characterized Dr. Cook's answers to every question asked by newspaper men, although the explorer added but little to what he already has said and published since he returned to civilization. When asked if he would in the future fit up an expedition to go to the south pole, Dr. Cook said he was not yet prepared to answer on that point, but he added that discovery of the south pole would be much easier than the north pole and would be attended by far less dangerous risks. He pointed that a probable route to the south pole would be along stretches of land on which stations might be established. Dr. Cook's lecture was frequently interrupted by cheering. He sought to confine himself more to his travels and experiences than to a discussion of criticisms aimed at him. Prefacing his remarks, the explorer asserted that while he was glad to have discovered the pole, and was glad also to have returned to tell the world about it, he had endeavored to make it plain that his was a private expedition, and not one backed by the government or by a "polar trust." His only reference to Commander Peary was in lauding the bravery of nearly a dozen explorers whom he named, and this evoked loud cheering. At the close of the lecture, Dr. Cook was the guest of the National Press club during the remainder of the evening. He met personally the newspaper men of Washington and scores of others prominent in the official life of the capital. He answered the writers that he was alive to the fact that they were indebted to him as the means of filling newspaper space during a dull season.

Geneva, Indiana, October 4.—(Special to the Daily Democrat)—Mrs. Frank Steed was a heroine for a time Saturday, and saved the home of Mr. and Mrs. Art Coleman from being perhaps entirely consumed by fire. The fire originated from a gas-oline stove when Mrs. Coleman was absent from the house for a short time. The kitchen was badly burned and damages to the extent of fifty dollars was done. It was a narrow escape and the Colemans are happy in the thought that it was no worse.

The Cincinnati store, after a special closing out sale of thirty days,

The ladies of the Methodist church gave a noodle supper at the Masonic banquet room Saturday evening that was quite the event of the season. The noodles were delicious, and the many side dishes were equally good.

Saturday every business man in Geneva did a thriving business, the town being chuck full of shoppers, and it looked like the good old days. There is no better town to trade in either Adams or Jay county, and Geneva business men know it.

The schools under the superintendency of Prof. Horton, are making rapid progress, much to the satisfaction and gratification of all the patrons of the Geneva public schools.

The case of Herman Miller, convicted in the circuit court here with John Stout and John Baker of the murder of Marshal Columbus Croy, of Woodburn, will be filed as the appeal case. The papers prepared are voluminous, including 2,500 pages of typewritten record and a 165-page brief. Notice of the filing of this appeal was served on State's Attorney A. E. Thomas yesterday. AFTER ABSENCE OF TWO YEARS

Herman Weickling of Bluffton, Home from Abroad.

Herman Weickling arrived back in Bluffton last evening, after an absence of about two years, which time he spent at his old home in Germany. He went abroad two years ago in company with D. A. Walmer, who visited a number of the principal cities of Europe before returning. Mr. Weickling returned to the United States about three weeks ago, but stopped off in New York City. While in that city he got to see Dr. Cook, discoverer of the north pole and also witnessed the Hudson-Fulton celebration during the past week. Mr. Weickling looks perfectly natural to Bluffton citizens and his two years abroad has made no noticeable changes in him.—Bluffton News.

The Clover Leaf Monday began the use of modern motor cars, that is, cars propelled by gasoline engines and dynamos. The first service of this kind on that road will be between Marion and Frankfort, where they began today on a regular schedule. It is a wonderful stride and it is expected that this mode of power will revolutionize railroading in the next few years. Speaking of the new service, the Marion News-Tribune said Saturday:

With the establishing of the gasoline trains the Clover Leaf will have six daily trains between Marion and Frankfort, thus doubling their service. In addition they will have a train each way daily between Kokomo and Marion and in all probability more trains will be added in the near future. H. C. Webber, general agent of the Clover Leaf, returned to Marion yesterday from Frankfort where he spent several days with other officials of the road completing arrangements for establishing the gasoline motor car service. He announces that a large car owned by the General Electrical company has arrived in Frankfort and that all is in readiness for inaugurating the service. The regular two trip fares will apply, which are slightly less than the fares on the electrical lines, and the runs will be made in faster time than in the electric cars, with no stops between stations. The service which will be established Monday is expected Monday is expected to be only a step toward the changes that will mark the new era and it is thought that a like service will be established between this city and Bluffton and Decatur in the near future. The big gasoline train will make its initial appearance in Marion today when it will make a preliminary run over the line between this city and Frankfort. The train will carry a number of officials of the road and a number of newspaper men on its initial trip. The new trains will consist of one large coach which will accommodate seventy people. Each coach will be equipped with a large gasoline engine which will be used to drive a large dynamo that will generate the electricity which will run the car. The engines will be very powerful ones and will be in charge of experts.

The will of the late Henry Peters was probated Monday p. m., and by the terms thereof, his estate valued at about $100,000 was distributed among the members of his family. Mr. Peters was perhaps the richest farmer in Adams county, and while he had previously given away valuable property and some cash, the estate left was a large one. The will was written July 1st last and his son-in-law, Fred Bloemker was named as executor, qualifying Monday. By the terms of the will Mr. Peters gave to his wife, Fredericka, $2,000 in cash and notes and the undivided one-third interest of the home farm in this county, containing eighty acres and one-third of a forty acre tract in Wells county, to hold during her life and then to go to a daughter, Mathilda.
